

This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

Usage guidelines

Google is proud to partner with libraries to digitize public domain materials and make them widely accessible. Public domain books belong to the public and we are merely their custodians. Nevertheless, this work is expensive, so in order to keep providing this resource, we have taken steps to prevent abuse by commercial parties, including placing technical restrictions on automated querying.

We also ask that you:

- + Make non-commercial use of the files We designed Google Book Search for use by individuals, and we request that you use these files for personal, non-commercial purposes.
- + Refrain from automated querying Do not send automated queries of any sort to Google's system: If you are conducting research on machine translation, optical character recognition or other areas where access to a large amount of text is helpful, please contact us. We encourage the use of public domain materials for these purposes and may be able to help.
- + Maintain attribution The Google "watermark" you see on each file is essential for informing people about this project and helping them find additional materials through Google Book Search. Please do not remove it.
- + Keep it legal Whatever your use, remember that you are responsible for ensuring that what you are doing is legal. Do not assume that just because we believe a book is in the public domain for users in the United States, that the work is also in the public domain for users in other countries. Whether a book is still in copyright varies from country to country, and we can't offer guidance on whether any specific use of any specific book is allowed. Please do not assume that a book's appearance in Google Book Search means it can be used in any manner anywhere in the world. Copyright infringement liability can be quite severe.

PREFACE.

THE portion of Caesar's Gallic War most commonly read in schools comprises the first four books. Many teachers, however, desire additional material from which to make selections in place of the portions that are particularly difficult or lacking in interest. The fifth book contains three leading narratives, each complete in itself, — the Second Campaign in Britain, the Defeat of Sabinus and Cotta, and the Siege of Cicero's Camp. The first is of peculiar interest to English-speaking peoples, the second and third are singularly graphic, while all are fairly simple in style. This book has therefore been included in the present edition, as being well adapted to meet the purpose mentioned above.

The text is based upon that of Meusel's School Edition, but where portions are inclosed in brackets as probably not genuine, in some cases the words have been omitted, in others the brackets; otherwise, with few exceptions, only certain changes in orthography and punctuation have been admitted. The quantity of long vowels has been marked in conformity with other volumes of the Student's Series.

To facilitate the acquiring of a vocabulary, each word occurring more than once in Books I–V, with the exception of proper nouns, has been printed in heavy-faced type at the place of first occurrence. A third of these fifteen hundred words the pupil should be familiar with when he finishes his First Book in Latin. Careful drill on these words, with frequent reviews, will familiarize a pupil with ninety per cent of the words on an average page of the text by the time he has read the first two books.

In the introduction, the sketch of Caesar's life is intended to set forth in brief compass the facts most pertinent to Caesar's part in the history of the Roman republic.

The chapters devoted to military and Gallic antiquities, the editors believe, contain as much information as a student needs to have at hand in a text-book. As these topics are naturally to be consulted often by the student, they have been arranged in numbered sections for convenience of reference in the notes.

In the preparation of a commentary it has been kept in mind that a text-book is at best but a supplement to the teacher's work. The editors have therefore endeavored to write as concise notes as possible, while giving adequate assistance to the mastery of Latin idiom and to the understanding of difficult passages. Consideration of disputed questions of antiquities, history, and grammar has in general been reduced to dogmatic statement, in the belief that teachers prefer to have such questions left mainly to the fuller discussion appropriate to the class-room. At the end of the notes on each chapter of the Helvetian War in the first book, and similarly throughout the notes on the second book, questions have been appended relating chiefly to principal parts of verbs and to case and mood constructions. These questions, it is thought, will be of no little assistance, particularly in the reiteration of the commoner syntactic principles so essential at this stage of study.

The value of tables of synonyms and of related and contrasted words has been demonstrated in a preceding volume of this series, — D'Ooge's Cicero, Select Orations. In this volume, as in the former, only broad distinctions in synonyms and contrasted words have been attempted, references being given to the text, where each word may be studied at first hand.

Definitions in the vocabulary have been based on a careful study of the meanings of each word in all the passages in which it occurs. Of idiomatic phrases, only the more common have been given in the vocabulary, while those less frequent or unusually difficult have been explained in the notes.

Maps and illustrations have been taken chiefly from the works of Napoleon, Stoffel, and Rheinhard.

To Professor E. M. Pease, editor-in-chief of the Students' Series, the editors express their grateful appreciation of his many stimulating and helpful suggestions during the preparation of manuscript and the reading of the proof.

INTRODUCTION.

LIFE OF CAESAR.

Boyhood. — Caius Julius Caesar was born in Rome, 100 B.C., on the 12th of the month Quintilis, afterwards called July (mensis Iulius) in his honor. The Julian gens was of high standing and claimed a divine descent. Of Caesar's father we know only that he had held the office of praetor, and that he died in 84. Caesar's mother, Aurelia, who lived until the year 54, seems to have been a woman of admirable character, devoted to her home and children, like Cornelia, mother of the Gracchi. Of Caesar's early education little is known, except that he had at one time for tutor a citizen of Gaul, Gniphon, who may have aroused his pupil's first interest in the Gallic people. Caesar's early years, 100 to 82 B.C., witnessed the bitter strife of two political parties, the optimates and the democrats, resulting in revolution, counter-revolution, and massacre of political opponents now by the one party, now by the other. The most prominent leader of the democratic party during this period was the distinguished general, Caius Marius, Caesar's uncle by marriage. In 82 the optimates, or the party of the senatorial oligarchy, gained the ascendancy, supported by the legions of their general, Lucius Cornelius Sulla, fresh from his victories over Rome's enemies in Asia Minor. Sulla was then made dictator, and before resigning his office in 79 revised the constitution of the republic by a series of laws intended to establish his party in a secure place of power.

Young Manhood. Political Affiliations. — In his political sympathies Caesar may well have been influenced by the career of Marius. At all events he early identified himself with the democratic party, and while yet a mere stripling refused obedience to the dictator Sulla, who bade him divorce his wife, Cornelia, daughter of one of the most active democratic leaders, Lucius Cinna. Confiscation of his property and enforced flight from Rome did not break the young Caesar's resolution. The intercession of influential friends at length obtained for him an unwilling pardon from Sulla, who is said to have warned the petitioners that there was many a Marius in the young man, and that he would some day prove the ruin of the party of the optimates.

Military Service in Asia. — Withdrawing for the present to Asia Minor, where Mithridates had resumed hostilities, Caesar saw his first military service, distinguishing himself for bravery at the storming of Mitylene in 80, and participating later in an expedition against the pirates of the Asiatic coast.

The Years 78-74. — At the news of Sulla's death in 78 Caesar returned to Rome. In 77 and 76 he made his appearance in a public capacity by prosecuting for extortion and plunder of provincial subjects two prominent Sullan partisans. Though the defendants were acquitted, Caesar attracted much attention by conspicuous oratorical powers. In 76 he went to Rhodes for instruction under Molo, a celebrated rhetorician of the time. Further military service in Asia Minor followed in 74.

POLITICAL CAREER.

Military Tribune. Priestly Honors. — Returning to Rome shortly after, Caesar was elected military tribune, having been elected in absence to a place in the college of pontifices, the high priests of the Roman religion.

Political Activity. — He now entered zealously into a movement, already in progress several years, for the repeal of Sulla's legislation. In 70 this agitation culminated in depriving the optimates of most of the added power which Sulla had secured for them. The main agents in the reform, though not the original movers, were the consuls, Cnaeus Pompeius and Marcus Crassus, both destined to close connection with Caesar in political life.

Pompey and Crassus. — Pompey, six years older than Caesar, and already a distinguished general, was a man of integrity both in public and private life, and for many years to come the foremost figure in the popular imagination, although his lack of political acumen prevented him from being an effective leader in affairs of state. Crassus was the wealthiest citizen of Rome. He was a man of unscrupulous character, his controlling motive mercenary, although not unmixed with an ambition for high place in public life and for military renown.

The Growing Leader. — The next ten years Caesar spent mostly in Rome, ingratiating himself with the people and seeking to advance the interests of the democratic party. His own allegiance to it he endeavored to emphasize upon one occasion by displaying the image of Marius in the funeral procession of Marius's wife, Julia, to the delight of the democratic faction in the city; upon another, by restoring the statue of Marius and the trophies of his victories, which had been removed from the Capitol under Sulla's régime.

Quaestor. — In 68 he held the quaestorship, an office connected with state finances. Assigned to service under the governor of Farther Spain, he is said to have displayed marked ability in the discharge of his duties.

Second Marriage. Pompey goes to Asia. — Upon returning to Rome in 67 Caesar married Pompeia, granddaughter of Sulla the dictator, having lost his first wife, Cornelia, a year or two before. In this and the following year he gave earnest support to two democratic measures intrusting Pompey with extraordinary powers and means in order to suppress piracy in the Mediterranean and to end the third Mithridatic war.

Aedile. — In 65 Caesar held the office of aedile, which involved, along with other duties, the management of public games and exhibitions. Following the custom of the time, he spent his own money lavishly in order to win popularity and so pave the way to higher offices. He was unsuccessful in an attempt to have Egypt assigned to him, as an ex-aedile, for organization into a province.

Pontifex Maximus and Praetor.—In 63, by means of profuse bribery, Caesar was elected over older rivals to the highest religious office, that of Pontifex Maximus. He was also elected to the praetorship for the following year, an office invested with judicial functions.

Catiline's Conspiracy.—In this same year the energetic efforts of Cicero, one of the consuls, frustrated a conspiracy formed by Lucius Catilina for the overthrow of the government. Caesar himself was charged more or less openly with complicity in the plot. As Catiline was attached to the democratic party rather than to any other, Caesar had doubtless countenanced his earlier ambition to obtain the consulship by the usual means. When Catiline's lack of success led him to adopt a method promising a reign of terror, Caesar, in all probability, withdrew his support.

Caesar courts Pompey's Favor.—At the beginning of 62 it was known that Pompey would soon return to Italy. His high place in popular esteem, greater now than ever before from his recent conquests in Asia Minor, made his political support seem of the utmost importance to parties and to individuals. Caesar endeavored to insure his favor by proposing to intrust him with the rebuilding of the Capitol, and by supporting a bill to give him a military command in Italy in order to protect the state against Catiline's forces. Caesar was deprived of his praetorship by the angry senate, but was soon restored. Both measures failed of enactment.

Governor of a Spanish Province.—As proprætor, in 61, Caesar governed the province of Farther Spain. His political career had plunged him deeply in debt. Before going to his province he was enabled to pacify pressing creditors by a heavy loan from Crassus. In Spain, he subdued a number of tribes not before in subjection to the provincial government, and was equally successful in readjusting civil and economic affairs, which had fallen into much confusion.

The First Triumvirate. — Returning to Italy in the spring of 60, Caesar came forward as a candidate for the consulship. To strengthen his candidacy and his political position in general, he formed with Pompey and Crassus a private political alliance, known in history as the first triumvirate. Both Pompey and Crassus needed the aid of Caesar's political adroitness to further their own interests. Pompey, in particular, who had returned from Asia in 62, was driven into the alliance by the senate's refusal to ratify his admirable settlement of Asiatic affairs and to assign lands in Italy to his discharged veterans.

Caesar's Consulship. — As consul, in 59, Caesar held the highest regular office in the gift of the people. His colleague was Marcus Bibulus, a devoted optimiate. Caesar laid before the senate a bill providing for the purchase of lands for the more needy of Pompey's veterans. The senate refused its sanction, whereupon the measure was taken before the popular assembly and carried amid much violence. Pompey's Asiatic arrangements were also ratified. Another measure, presented probably at the instance of Crassus, relieved the tax-gatherers of Asia, who had bid too high for the privilege of collection. Other laws were passed, of much importance, but of less immediate political effect. Bibulus at first resisted Caesar's legislation. Finding opposition useless, he finally retired from the contest, protesting the validity of Caesar's acts. The humorists of the day termed it "The consulship of Julius and Caesar."

Marriage of Pompey and Julia.—A strong personal bond between Caesar and Pompey was now formed by the marriage of the latter to Caesar's daughter, Julia. Despite political considerations involved in this marriage, which the critics of the time were quick to discover, Pompey and Julia lived a life of mutual devotion until the wife's death in 54. Caesar married Calpurnia, daughter of Calpurnius Piso, consul-elect for 58, having divorced Pompeia in 62.

Assignment of Provinces.—In 60, the senate, following the custom of assigning promagisterial duties two years in advance, had decreed that the consuls of 59 should, as proconsuls in 58, have charge of forests and roads in Italy. This seems to have been done in anticipation of Caesar's election and in order to prevent him from obtaining an important proconsular position. As the foremost leader of the democracy he was not to be set aside so easily. The popular assembly nullified the senate's arrangement and voted him the governorship of Cisalpine Gaul and Illyricum for five years, with an army of three legions. On Pompey's motion the senate added the province of Transalpine Gaul, with one legion. Caesar's term of office as a provincial governor dated from March 1st, 59.

CONQUEST OF GAUL.

During the following nine years, 58–50, Caesar was engaged in the conquest and pacification of extra-provincial Gaul. He usually spent his winters in Cisalpine Gaul, attending to administrative duties, at the same time keeping informed of events in Rome. The details of successive campaigns may be studied best in connection with his own narrative. The renewal of his governorship for another five years enabled him to complete the subjugation of the Gallic people. A crisis came in 52, when the Gauls, under the leadership of Vercingetorix, a young Arvernian noble and a general of unusual ability, organized in a last desperate attempt to maintain their independence. The campaign, culminating in the siege and capture of the stronghold of Alesia, tested as never before Caesar's ability as a general and the endurance and capacity of his soldiers. The following winter Caesar spent in winter quarters at Bibracte, the summer of 51 in completing the work of conquest in various districts, the next winter and part of 50 in conciliating the conquered people and in effecting a temporary provincial organization.

CIVIL WAR.

Renewal of the Triumvirate. — The entire period of Caesar's absence in Gaul was marked by political strife in Rome and by mob rule increasing in violence toward the end. The triumvirs renewed their compact in a conference at Lucca in 56. Pompey and Crassus were consuls the next year, and secured the prolongation of Caesar's Gallic command for a second term of five years. For themselves they obtained the government for an equal period of the provinces of Spain and Syria respectively.

Estrangement of Caesar and Pompey. — The death of Julia in 54, and of Crassus in 53, opened the way for the estrangement of Caesar and Pompey, the latter gradually becoming jealous of Caesar's growing prestige, and coming to a better understanding with the optimates. The optimates, afraid of further political humiliation and loss of power at the hands of a successful democratic general, when he should return to Rome, were determined effectually to check his career. For three years, 52–50, their efforts were directed to the winning of Pompey and to the termination of Caesar's command before the time contemplated in the terms of his appointment. Their object in this was to reduce Caesar to a private station, in which he would be subject to attacks in the courts on the ground of provincial maladministration. With the courts in their control, his conviction and political ruin were a foregone conclusion.

Civil War Begins. — Caesar, through friends in Rome, sought by various measures to obtain the privilege of candidacy in absence for a second consulship, upon which he might enter immediately after returning from Gaul, thus leaving no interval of unofficial standing. All efforts at a compromise proved vain, as the Pompeians would not accept Caesar's proposal that both he and Pompey lay down their arms. Early in January, 49, in reply to a virtual declaration of outlawry against him made by the senate, Caesar cast the die by crossing the river Rubicon, the southern boundary of his Cisalpine province.

Pompey's Flight. Campaign in Spain. — Pompey and the senate, having made no adequate preparations for war, assembled their forces at Brundisium and escaped across the Adriatic in March. Unable to follow for the present from lack of transport facilities, Caesar proceeded to Spain by land, and in a campaign of three months forced the surrender of the Pompeian legions stationed there.

Battle of Pharsalus. — Early in 48 he crossed the Adriatic, and near Dyrrachium attempted to blockade the army which Pompey had gathered. In the course of the operations Pompey's superior numbers enabled him to break through the blockade and almost inflict a disastrous defeat. Caesar withdrew into Thessaly, followed by his opponent. Their armies finally joined battle near Pharsalus on August 9th. To Pompey's 47,000 legionaries, 7000 cavalry, and auxiliaries, Caesar could oppose but 22,000 legionaries and 1000 cavalry, with auxiliaries, perhaps 30,000 in all. The Pompeian army was utterly routed, 15,000 falling and more than 23,000 being captured. Caesar lost 200 of his rank and file and 30 centurions. Pompey fled and was murdered by order of Ptolemy, king of Egypt, on attempting to land at Pelusium.

Campaigns in Egypt and Asia Minor. — The months from October, 48, to June, 47, Caesar spent in Alexandria, where the small force with him was besieged by the Egyptians, but finally saved by reënforcements brought by Mithridates of Pergamum. Caesar settled a contest for the throne of Egypt by installing Cleopatra together with a younger brother. Proceeding to Asia Minor, he adjusted disputes in various districts, and routed Pharnaces of Pontus in the victory which he is said to have reported to a friend in the laconic dispatch, veni, vidi, vici. In September he was again in Rome, bringing order out of the confusion following upon his long absence.

Campaign in Africa. — In December, 47, Caesar crossed with his troops to Africa, where Cato and other adherents of Pompey and the republic had gathered a large army, supported by King Juba of Numidia. On April 6th, 46, Caesar annihilated these forces at Thapsus. Cato committed suicide at Utica rather than survive the republic or humiliate himself by surrendering. In July Caesar returned to Rome and celebrated a magnificent triumph for his victories over foreign peoples. He was then chosen dictator for ten years.

Second Campaign in Spain. — Administrative work was interrupted by the necessity of another campaign in Spain, where the adherents of Pompey and the senatorial party made their last stand, led by a son of Pompey and by Labienus, Caesar's most trusted lieutenant in the Gallic War, but one of his bitterest foes in the Civil War. Their forces were defeated in a desperate battle at Munda on March 17th, 45, Labienus being among the slain. In September Caesar returned to Rome to resume the task of reorganization.

REORGANIZATION OF GOVERNMENT.

Caesar's Policy. — Caesar's policy of reorganization contemplated, so far as mechanism was concerned, the concentration of large powers in his own hands. In purpose it looked to the welfare, not only of Rome, but of Italy and the provinces. This purpose had been, more or less definitely, the ideal of the democratic party.

His Titles and his Powers. — The steps by which Caesar attained a power virtually supreme were taken at different times in the years 49 to 44. The tribunician power for life was granted in 48; the censorship, under another name, in 46, and later the titles of imperator and parens patriae. Caesar also held the consulship several times, and probably retained proconsular power when not actually consul. By increasing the senate's numbers to nine hundred he was able to control it through appointment of his own supporters. Directly or indirectly he exercised control over legislation, the selection of candidates for office, and the appointment of provincial governors.

Measures of Reform. — To improve political and economic conditions in Rome itself, Caesar endeavored to found colonies in the provinces, in which to settle the poor of the city. The number, too, participating in the distribution of cheap grain was reduced from 320,000 to 150,000. His own discharged veterans Caesar planned to distribute among the new colonies or in small numbers in different parts of Italy. Public lands were destined to division among small farmers in order to foster waning agriculture. A law was enacted requiring the employment of a certain proportion of free laborers among the pastoral classes in Italy. State finances were better systematized and supervised, while important laws were passed relating to debt and rates of interest.

Public Works. — A new Forum was constructed north of the old Forum; south of the latter the Basilica Julia, begun in 54, was dedicated, though unfinished, in 46. Other public works were projected for Rome or elsewhere, among them a library of Greek and Latin authors. The calendar, now in much confusion, was scientifically corrected in 46 to correspond to the solar year.

Municipal Charters. — A measure of the greatest importance provided a charter for the towns and cities of Italy, in order to give them a uniform local government. Possibly Caesar intended eventually to extend this law, with modifications, to the cities of the empire. In 49 he carried out his long-cherished project of bestowing full Roman citizenship on those Gauls of the Cisalpine province who lived between the Po and the Alps, thus placing them on the same political footing with the Cisalpine Gauls south of the Po.

The Provinces. — The appointment of provincial governors by Caesar was a step of the utmost importance, making, as it did, each governor directly responsible to a central authority vested in one man. Though this system was not followed in its entirety by Caesar's successors, yet from this time the provinces began to enjoy a degree of prosperity and freedom from oppression in marked contrast to the past.

CAESAR'S DEATH.

Upon returning to Rome from Spain Caesar varied the task of administration by preparations for a campaign against the Parthians, intending to set out in March, 44. During the early months of the year lavish honors were heaped upon him, in addition to the bestowal of the perpetual dictatorship. These honors served to increase the long-standing dissatisfaction with the change in government, particularly among the adherents of the old senatorial party. This discontent in fact had affected many of Caesar's own followers, who were dissatisfied with the position they occupied and with what they deemed the small personal gains accruing from the Civil War. In consequence a plot was formed to assassinate the dictator, participated in by some of Caesar's most trusted and favored friends. Though warnings of danger, more or less specific, were given him from time to time, Caesar turned a deaf ear to them and neglected to take precautions for his safety. The plot culminated on the 15th of March, 44, when Caesar was stabbed to death at a meeting of the senate in the portico attached to Pompey's theater.

It was the hope of those implicated in the assassination to restore the old form of the republic; but Caesar's death created a condition in the state which the conspirators had not the ability to control. A period of civil war followed, terminated only by the complete subjugation of the Roman world to Caesar's great-nephew, Augustus, thirteen years later.

CAESAR'S WRITINGS.

Minor Works. — Of Caesar's literary works the most important were incidental to his later public career. Certain compositions of his earlier years are mentioned by Suetonius, a Laudes Herculis, a tragedy entitled Oedipus, and a collection of witticisms, which appears to have been continued in the later years of his life. Augustus forbade the publication of these works after Caesar's death. A treatise entitled De Analogia, dedicated to Cicero, dealt with the theory of correct usage in Latin and the means of determining it. It was written while Caesar was crossing the Alps to rejoin his army, probably in the spring of 54. An Anticato replied, in vindication of Caesar's own career, to the panegyrics published by Cato's friends and admirers after his suicide at Utica. Iter was the title of a poem composed by Caesar when on the way to his last campaign in Spain, in 46. Collections of speeches and letters were also preserved in later times. With the exception of meager fragments and a few letters still to be found in Cicero's collected letters, all of these minor works are lost.

The Commentaries. — Caesar's literary fame rests on his commentaries on the Gallic and Civil Wars. The Gallic War is a work in seven books, each book detailing the events of a single campaign, the whole covering the years 58–52. A friend, Aulus Hirtius, added an eighth book describing the events of 51 and 50, thus bridging over the gap between the Gallic War and the Civil War. Caesar's seven books were published probably in 51. The Civil War in three books, covering the years 49 and 48, were published after Caesar's death; they are evidently in an unfinished condition, as shown by the limited period dealt with and by lapses both of a stylistic and historical character. Supplementary works by unknown authors describe the remaining campaigns of the Civil War under the titles, Bellum Alexandrinum, Bellum Africum, and Bellum Hispaniense.

Purpose of the Commentaries. — Caesar's aim in writing memoirs of his two great wars was primarily political, not literary. In the Gallic War he doubtless wished to inform the educated public of Rome and Italy of what he had done to enhance his country's glory, and how he had added a great territory to her domain; further, to demonstrate that his policy of conquest, in its inception at least, had been forced upon him by the necessity of guarding Roman interests in the north against the barbarians beyond the Rhine. The manifest purpose of the Civil War is to show that Caesar had done everything within reason to avoid war, and that, in contrast to his enemies, a spirit of forbearance and kindness had not failed him amid the hardships and bitterness of military operations.

COIN OF CAESAR.

THE ROMAN ARMY.

COMPOSITION.

1. The Legions. — The chief strength of a Roman army lay in the legions (legiones) of infantry, composed of Roman citizens between the ages of seventeen and forty-six. Since the time of Marius service in the ranks had been restricted practically to the lower and poorer classes, men of the upper classes serving only as officers. The legionary took oath for a service of twenty years. Levies were authorized regularly by the senate, though we find Caesar levying troops on his own responsibility in anticipation of the senate's sanction.

2. The legions were distinguished by numbers. Before the end of the Gallic War Caesar's forces comprised the 1st, and the 6th to the 15th inclusive.

3. The ideal numerical strength of a legion is uncertain. Caesar's legions at their best probably numbered not more than five thousand each. The actual number available for effective service must have varied according to losses and such supplementary drafts as may have been made.

4. Each legion was divided into ten cohorts (cohortes), each cohort into three maniples (manipuli), each manipule into two centuries (centuriae).

5. Infantry Auxiliaries. — Rome's infantry auxiliaries (auxilia) were furnished by Roman provinces and by allied or independent nations and tribes. Those in Caesar's army included slingers (funditores, p. 55¹) from the Balearic islands, archers (sagittarii) from Crete and Numidia, and other light-armed troops (milites levis armaturae, p. 55). Though considerable in number, they were not much relied upon. They were commanded by native and by Roman officers (praefecti). Those from the provinces, at least, were organized into cohorts. Light-armed troops, not archers or slingers, were armed with light javelins of various kinds, and in common with the slingers probably carried a round shield (parma). The slingers used as missiles stones and elongated lead bullets (glandes, p. 47).

6. The Cavalry. — The cavalry (equitatus) at this time formed part of the auxiliaries. Caesar's cavalry came from Gaul, Spain, and Germany. The greater part was levied in Gaul each summer, disbanding in the fall. Possibly a small contingent was permanently attached to each legion and wintered with it. The cavalry in Caesar's army ranged in number between 4000 and 5000. Its divisions were squadrons (alae) of 300 to 400, divided into troops (turmae) of 30 to 40, each troop comprising probably three decuries (decuriae). The chief cavalry officer was a Roman. The officers of the squadrons and troops (praefecti and decuriones) were sometimes Roman, sometimes of the same nationality as the soldiers under them.

a metal helmet (cassis), and perhaps a cuirass (lorica). His offensive weapons were a sword, longer than that of the Roman legionary, and a spear (tragula). See p. 103.

7. Miscellaneous Elements. — Optiones, assistants and substitutes for the centurions.

Evocati, veterans who reënlisted at the expiration of their term of service. They received higher pay than other common soldiers, were exempt from camp duties, and were furnished horses on the march.

Beneficiarii, soldiers assigned to special duties in attendance on higher officers.

Speculatores, individual scouts.

Exploratores, small detachments, usually of cavalry, employed in reconnaissance.

Signiferi, Aquiliferi, standard bearers (§ 28, and p. 66).

Tubicines, Cornicines, Bucinatores (§ 27, and p. 66).

8. Caesar seems to have had with him the usual contubernales, tent companions, young men in particular, who on the ground of personal or political friendship accompanied him in Gaul to acquaint themselves with military service under his immediate supervision.

9. The engineers (fabri) were skilled artisans of various kinds, probably not forming a separate corps, but drawn from the ranks as occasion demanded. The chief engineer was called praefectus fabrum.

10. Non-combatants. — Calones, slaves employed as camp servants, especially in attendance upon the officers.

Mercatores, traders, sutlers, who followed the army, selling the soldiers provisions not included in the regular rations, and purchasing booty of them.

OFFICERS.

11. Commander-in-Chief. — The commander-in-chief of the army was called dux, leader, general, or imperator, the latter a title of honor bestowed by his army after a victory. See p. 18.

12. Lieutenants. — The legati, Caesar's highest officers, were of senatorial rank and were nominated by himself. They held no fixed commands, but were assigned to various duties, such as the command of one or more legions in battle, the conduct of independent expeditions, the command of winter quarters, the levying of troops, and the building of fleets. They participated in councils of war. See p. 18.

13. Tribunes. — The military tribunes (tribuni militum), six in each legion, in earlier days had commanded the legion, two at a time. Caesar's tribunes were nominated by himself, though as a rule part of them were elected by the people. Political considerations had more or less to do with their appointment. In consequence they formed a less capable body of officers than the lieutenants, such commands as were assigned to them consisting of detachments smaller than a legion. They were also employed in other capacities, judicial and administrative, and participated in councils of war. See p. 18.

14. Quaestor. — The quaestors (quaestores) were finance officers elected annually by the Roman people and assigned by lot to their respective places, one accompanying each of the provincial governors. With the army a quaestor had charge of the pay of the troops, of the commissariat, and of the sale of booty and prisoners. Occasionally Caesar's quaestor commanded troops.

15. Centurions.—The plebeian centurions (centuriones), one for each century, were appointed from the ranks by the commander-in-chief on the basis of merit, and could not rise to higher commands. They were of different grades, but the order of promotion is uncertain. Probably one centurion commanded each cohort. Certain centurions in each legion, known as centurions of the first rank (centuriones primorum ordinum), ranked higher than the others and were admitted to councils of war. The first centurion of the first cohort of a legion was styled chief centurion (primipilus), and in battle had under his special protection the legionary eagle (§ 28). A centurion carried a staff (vitis) as an emblem of authority, and wore on his helmet a transverse crest (crista transversa). See p. 18.

16. Prefects.—The prefects (praefecti) have already been noted as the officers of the auxiliary forces and of the engineers (§§ 5, 6, 9).

DRESS AND EQUIPMENT.

17. Dress.—The legionary wore no uniform. His clothing was as follows: tunica, the usual woollen tunic, close-fitting, short-sleeved, reaching to the knees and confined at the waist by a girdle (cingulum); sagum, a thick woollen cloak for inclement weather, provided possibly with a hood,—it was fastened at the right shoulder, leaving the right arm free; caligae, low boots of leather, hobnailed, fastened across the instep and around the lower part of the leg. See pp. 55, 95, and 137.

As a mark of distinction the commander in chief wore a scarlet cloak (paludamentum), while the lieutenants and tribunes wore red tunics.

18. Defensive Armor. — Galea, a helmet of metal or of leather strengthened by metal strips, surmounted by a detachable crest. See pp. 64 and 120.

Lorica, cuirass, a sort of leather tunic reinforced across the breast and back by metal strips.

Scutum, a concave shield worn on the left arm in battle. It was approximately two and a half feet by four, made of boards covered outside with cloth and leather, and metal-rimmed. From the center projected a metal boss (umbo). When not in use the shield was protected by a leather covering (tegimentum), and on the march was carried hanging at the left side or on the back.

It is uncertain whether the soldiers wore greaves (ocreae) — bronze shields protecting the legs from the knee down. The higher officers carried no shield, but wore cuirasses.

19. Offensive Weapons. — Pilum, a heavy javelin with round or square wooden shaft, and an iron head, of which all but the tip was of soft metal. After piercing the enemy's shield the head might bend and so become useless to the enemy for hurling back. The total length of the javelin was about six and one half feet. It could be hurled eighty feet or more. See p. 41.

The pilum murale, wall-javelin, was a heavier weapon hurled from intrenchments, walls, and towers.

Gladius, a sword about two feet long, straight, double-edged, and pointed, used for thrusting rather than for cutting. It was worn at the right side in a leather-covered scabbard (vagina), held by a belt (balteus) hung from the left shoulder. As higher officers carried no shields, their swords hung at the left side. See p. 46.

BAGGAGE.

20. Soldiers' Packs.—In addition to arms and armor soldiers carried individual packs (sarcinae) on the march. These were attached to forked poles carried over the shoulder, a contrivance introduced by Marius. The packs comprised rations for a number of days varying according to circumstances, a cooking utensil, several stakes for the camp rampart, saw, hatchet, spade, basket, the whole weighing probably forty-five pounds. When loaded with his pack the soldier was said to be impeditus, incumbered, without it expeditus, unincumbered. Before a battle the packs were deposited in one place and guarded.

21. Heavy Baggage.—The heavy baggage, impedimenta, consisted of extra supplies of arms and clothing, tents, hand-mills, artillery, provisions for long marches, etc. It was carried chiefly by pack animals (iumenta), though wagons and carts must have been used also, especially for the artillery. Pack animals and draft animals for a legion may well have numbered five or six hundred, requiring many muleteers (muliones).

Each legion had its own baggage train and when immediately followed by it, was incumbered, impedita, without it unincumbered, expedita.

PROVISIONS, PAY, ETC.

22. Provisions. — The soldiers' diet was chiefly vegetable, consisting of bread or of a sort of porridge, both of wheat, though it was sometimes necessary to substitute barley. Unground grain was issued usually every fifteen or sixteen days, to be ground into coarse flour in hand-mills. The amount per day was about two pounds. Meat was used occasionally. Grain was supplied by allied or subject Gallic tribes, probably without pay. Extra provisions might be purchased from the sutlers (§ 10).

23. Pay. — The pay of a legionary was 125 denarii a year, which Caesar increased to 225 toward the beginning of the Civil War. This sum had a greater purchasing power than what is usually given as its equivalent, $45. Deductions were made for such parts of the food, clothing, and equipment as were furnished by the state. A soldier's resources were materially increased by the sale of booty and by special gifts from the commanding general. A centurion received double the pay of a common soldier.

After discharge a soldier received a sum of money (3000 denarii in the time of the Empire, possibly also in Caesar's time) or a tract of land.

24. Rewards. — Special bravery might be rewarded by presents of money, by promotion, or by badges of honor such as armlets, chains, necklaces, brooches, medals, crown-wreaths.

25. Punishments. — These, according to the offense, were corporal, deprivation of pay for a stated period, degradation from a higher to a lower rank, public dismissal from the service, and even the death penalty.

If whole bodies of troops were at fault, they might be given barley instead of wheat for food, be compelled to bivouac outside the camp, or be subjected to decimatio, the choice by lot of every tenth man for the death penalty.

26. Work. — In addition to performing the work entailed by regular warfare, soldiers were also frequently employed in time of peace on public works, canals, bridges, roads, and buildings.

SIGNAL INSTRUMENTS AND STANDARDS.

27. Signal Instruments. — Tuba, trumpet, a straight instrument of metal used for various signals, particularly of attack and retreat. See p. 66.

Cornu, horn, probably one for each manipule, used to repeat the main signals of the tuba in battle.

Bucina, used to mark the night watches.

Lituus, the signal instrument of the cavalry.

28. Standards. — The standard of the legion was a silver eagle (aquila, pp. 113 and 146) carried by the eagle bearer (aquilifer); in battle it was under the special protection of the primipilus (§ 15).

The minor standards belonged to the maniples; probably the standard of the first manipule of each cohort served as the standard of the cohort. These standards in general consisted of a staff with a cross-bar near the top, from which hung streamers. Below were various silver ornaments; the disks (phalerae) were probably presented to the maniples for distinguished services. Possibly a small banner with appropriate lettering was attached to each standard to identify the maniple. See p. 33.

The vexillum, a square flag fastened to a cross-bar on a staff, was the standard of the cavalry troops (§ 6), and probably of the infantry auxiliaries; also of legionary detachments sent out on special service. A red vexillum displayed on the general's tent served as a signal to form for battle, sometimes as the signal for attack.

In camp the standards were planted in the ground, under a shelter which constituted a shrine (sacrarium). On the march they were probably kept to the front of the maniples, in battle probably in or behind the second rank, the soldiers of the first rank, perhaps also of the second, being called antesignani. In battle the standards played an important part, as it was the bearers to whom commands were directed with the signal instruments.

The loss of a standard was considered an extreme disgrace. To spur on the soldiers, the bearer sometimes threw his standard forward into the ranks of the enemy.

ARTILLERY.

29. The machines for hurling missiles were called in general tormenta (torquere, to twist). As the Latin name implies, their power came from twisted materials, such as ropes and the sinews and hair of animals.

The ballista hurled heavy stones or beams (p. 112).

The catapult (catapulta) shot large arrows (p. 112).

The scorpio, the only piece mentioned by name in the Gallic War, was probably a small catapult or ballista.

Artillery was employed most often in the attack on, and defense of, fortified towns, to some extent on ships of war, and occasionally in the field, especially for the defense of a camp or redoubt.

THE CAMP.

30. The Roman army constructed a fortified camp at the end of each day's march. Officers sent in advance laid out the camp in a suitable spot, preferably on the crest and slope of a hill, due regard being paid to proximity of water, fuel, and forage. The work of intrenching was done by the soldiers, who soon became expert at the task. The shape of the camp, rectangular theoretically, was necessarily adapted to the ground chosen.

The intrenchments (see p. 78) consisted regularly of a trench (fossa) of varying dimensions, and a rampart (agger, vallum) formed for the most part of the earth thrown inward from the trench and faced with sod when possible. A palisade (vallum) of wooden stakes crowned the outer edge of the rampart. Between rampart and tents, on all sides, a space of about two hundred feet was left to afford protection from missiles, to maneuver troops, and to store the baggage train. The four gates were so arranged with elbows in the rampart that an enemy upon entering had to expose his unprotected right side.

Tents were usually made of skins, ten men occupying each one. In winter quarters (hiberna) the barracks were huts roofed with straw or skins. Winter camps, also field camps on occasions of special danger and when occupied for some length of time, might be provided with towers, redoubts, and various other defenses.

The time from sunset to sunrise was divided into four watches (vigiliae), the third beginning at midnight. The night guards were relieved at the end of each watch. The watchword for the night was communicated to the troops written on wooden tablets (tesserae).

THE MARCH.

31. When not threatened by attack, a marching army (agmen) was headed by a vanguard (primum agmen), usually of cavalry, sometimes reënforced by infantry auxiliaries; then came the main body, each legion followed by its baggage train (§ 21). When near the enemy, several legions marched in front, with the entire baggage train placed behind them and protected by other legions acting as a rear guard (novissimum agmen). Sometimes, for further protection of the baggage, troops marched at the sides of the train, forming a hollow parallelogram. Or, when marching a short distance in expectation of an immediate engagement, the legions in front laid aside even their light baggage (§ 20), and marched in three columns of cohorts, so arranged as to swing into line of battle at a moment's notice.

A day's march under ordinary circumstances covered something more than fifteen miles, a forced march (magnum iter) as much as twenty miles or even more.

THE BATTLE.

32. The Battle Line. — In battle the legions were stationed side by side, doubtless preserving their identity by narrow intervals. Each legion was most frequently arrayed in three lines of cohorts (triplex acies), sometimes in two (duplex acies). Our knowledge of the formation is far from definite. The following account of the triple line seems plausible:—

Four cohorts stood side by side in the first line, three side by side in each of the other two. In each cohort the maniples were arranged side by side, with one of the two centuries in each maniple behind the other. The depth of the line may have varied in different battles; we may assume a normal depth of eight ranks, i.e. four ranks to each century.

The following figure represents a cohort formed eight ranks deep in close array, the formation employed in parades, reviews, and when marching to battle, but still at a distance from the enemy. Before the actual shock of battle it would be necessary to deploy the cohorts of the first and second lines at least, in order to give each soldier sufficient room in which to wield javelin and sword. The next figure shows a legion in three lines, the first and second deployed for battle.

DEPLOYED FOR BATTLE.

33. The Battle. — Before a battle the general usually made his troops a brief address of encouragement (cohortatio). At the signal for attack the first line of cohorts advanced, quickening its pace as it neared the enemy. The two front ranks, when within striking distance, hurled their javelins, those of the second rank probably hurling theirs through the intervals of the first, if we may assume the men to be arranged in checker-board fashion. The ranks behind as they came within the distance of a javelin's cast hurled their javelins in rapidly succeeding volleys over the heads of those in front. Each rank drew swords immediately after its javelin volley. The first shock of the hand-to-hand fighting with swords fell upon the antesignani, who were the pick of the legion (¶ 28). As the front ranks became thinned or fagged, the men in the ranks behind pressed forward to take their places. The second line of cohorts followed the first at some distance. If the first line failed to rout the enemy and became decimated or exhausted in the fight, the second line gradually worked its way into the fight until it had relieved the entire first line. The third line of cohorts constituted a reserve, to be employed according to occasion. It might face about and meet a division of the enemy coming from another direction than the front. At times a spirited enemy would advance so rapidly as to afford no chance for the javelin volleys.

The terms right wing (dextrum cornu), left wing (sinistrum cornu), and center (media acies) were used without indicating tactical divisions of the line.

Other occasional formations were the wedge (cuneus), a formation in column of attack, to break through superior numbers; the orbis, a circle or a square with rounded corners, hollow or solid, for defense against superior numbers attacking on all sides.

The cavalry, stationed usually on the wings, was employed most often in pursuit of a fleeing enemy. The infantry auxiliaries seem to have had no fixed part or place in battle, but to have been employed in skirmishing, in protecting the baggage, and in other capacities as circumstances dictated.

ASSAULTS AND SIEGES.

34. Three methods of attack on fortified places may be distinguished, though features of the different methods were often combined.

(1) Assault. — In attack by assault (repentina oppugnatio) the trench was first filled with earth and fascines (crates), while part of the troops, especially the light-armed, attempted to drive the defenders from the wall. Soldiers then advanced to scale the wall with ladders (scalae) or to break down the gates, sometimes adopting the "tortoise" formation (testudo, p. 128), composed of a detachment of soldiers in close array, those in the first rank holding their shields closely locked in front, while those behind held their shields overhead.

35. (2) Siege. — Regular siege (oppugnatio) was employed against the stronger towns. If the ground at the point chosen for attack was not unduly broken, it was leveled, the trench filled in, and an attempt made to breach the wall by undermining it, by pulling down stones and timbers with huge mural hooks (falces murales, p. 85) attached to long poles, or by use of the battering-ram (aries); the latter was a long, heavy beam with a metal head, swung by ropes in a movable shed (testudo arietaria, p. 72). In approaching the wall the troops were protected by galleries of open-ended sheds (vineae, p. 90), by screens (plutei, p. 74), and by strongly built sappers' huts (testudines, musculi), all of these devices being movable. One or more movable towers (turres ambulatoriae, p. 150) were sometimes employed to protect attacking parties by driving defenders from walls. A tower extended several stories high, moved on wheels or rollers, and carried soldiers and artillery. A battering-ram might be installed in the first story. Towers and sheds were often protected against fire by fresh hides or wet coverings.

36. If the ground was so broken or steep as to require it, a siege mole (agger) was constructed, usually at right angles to the wall. It was begun out of missile range, galleries, screens, and a movable tower furnishing protection to the builders. The mole probably consisted of two parallel retaining walls of cross-laid timbers, the space in and between the walls being filled with logs, stones, and earth. The whole formed a causeway, possibly sixty feet in width normally, extending up to the foot of the enemy's wall. It afforded a way of approach for attacking parties, together with the appliances employed in breaching a wall; also for the movable tower located on the mole itself and advanced as the work of construction was pushed forward.

The defenders resisted by sorties, by countermines under the mole, by hurling weapons of various sorts, by setting fire to screens, sheds, tower, and even to the mole when much wood was used in its construction, and by catching the battering-ram with grappling contrivances.

37. (3) Blockade. — Blockade, or investment (obsidio), was resorted to in the case of towns too strong to be taken otherwise. Its object was to starve the defenders into submission. The blockade was accomplished by constructing around the town a line of intrenchments (circumvallatio), crowned with palisades and towers, and strengthened at intervals by redoubts (castella). By another line of intrenchments, facing in the opposite direction, the attacking army might protect itself against reinforcements coming to the aid of the besieged.

THE ROMAN FLEET.

38. At the beginning of the Gallic War Caesar had no fleet, but was obliged to build and equip one when occasion demanded. The vessels employed were as follows:—

Naves longae, war galleys, in comparison with ordinary merchantmen were longer in proportion to breadth, more lightly built, of less draught, and speedier. In rough weather, at least, they were drawn up on the beach. They were propelled partly by sail, but mainly by oars, which were arranged in banks or tiers, each rower handling an oar. Caesar's galleys probably contained not more than three banks. The steering of the galleys, as well as of other vessels, was effected by means of two large paddles, one at each side astern.

A galley was provided with a beak (rostrum) of metal, or at least tipped with metal, under the prow near the water line, for ramming opposing vessels. Wooden towers were erected on deck, from which to work artillery, or to render more effective the discharge of other weapons. The most effective and the regular mode of attack, in addition to ramming, was to board an enemy's vessel and engage in a hand-to-hand battle. The galleys were, therefore, provided with grappling contrivances (copulae), with which to seize and hold the enemy's ships. In the sea fight with the Veneti (Bk. III, 14–15) a special invention, consisting of strong hooks attached to long poles, was employed to cripple the sailing vessels of the enemy by breaking or cutting their rigging.

Sailors (nautae) and rowers (remiges) were provincials, the rowers possibly slaves. Upon one occasion the legionaries worked the oars. The fighting crew was composed of legionaries.

39. Speculatoria navigia, scout ships, were smaller than the war galleys, and had no rostra.

40. Naves onerariae, freight ships, were employed as transports along with the war galleys. As already indicated, they had a greater proportionate breadth and a greater draught than the war galleys. Sails were depended upon more than in the case of the galleys, though oars were also used. These vessels were anchored in port.

41. Naves actuariæ, transports, were swifter than those last described, and were propelled by sails and oars. They were also made lower and broader to facilitate loading and beaching.

42. Vectoria navigia, transports, is a general term covering both of the classes last mentioned.

43. The fleet as a whole was commanded by a lieutenant in Caesar's absence, single ships by tribunes and centurions.

SCENE IN A ROMAN CAMP.

THE GALLIC ARMY.

44. Clothing. — The Gallic soldier's clothing consisted of a tunic-like coat with or without sleeves, a mantle (sagulum), and trousers (bracae). Coats and mantles were frequently woven with gayly colored stripes. Ornaments of bronze and gold were worn, rings, armlets, and necklaces.

45. Defensive Armor. — The armor of the common soldier was a wooden shield, of different forms and sizes. The leaders wore iron or bronze coats of mail, and helmets decorated most often with horns. See p. 10.

46. Offensive Weapons. — The Gallic sword, of bronze or iron, was usually longer and broader than that of the Roman legionary, and was used more for cutting than for thrusting (p. 149); the gaesum was a heavy javelin; tragula, a spear either for hurling or thrusting; matara, a broad-tipped spear; verutum, a dart or lance; lancea, a lance, carried by the cavalry in particular. Bows and slings were also in use.

47. Standards. — The figure of a boar carried on a pole seems to have been the most common, if not the only, standard. See p. 10.

48. The Camp. — Gallic camps as a rule were mere encampments, not like the fortified Roman camps. The Aquitani (Bk. III, 23), however, speedily imitated the Roman method of fortifying camps, and later other Gauls did the same.

49. Gallic Strongholds. — The Gallic strongholds or towns (oppida) most often occupied high positions naturally defended; these were strengthened further by trenches, by well-constructed walls (p. 58) of timber and stones, sometimes crowned with towers.

50. The Gauls in Battle. — The Gauls sometimes adopted the phalanx formation, resembling the testudo (§ 34), but applied to a much larger body of troops; the men in the front rank presented a solid barrier of shields, while those behind held their shields overhead.

51. In attacking Roman camps the Gauls learned in the later campaigns to employ Roman devices, movable towers (§ 35), sappers' huts (§ 35), scaling ladders (§ 34), mural hooks (§ 35), and fascines (§ 34). They also employed the testudo formation (§ 34).

COIN: THE SUBJUGATION OF GAUL.

TRANSALPINE GAUL.

THE COUNTRY.

52. Extent. — Transalpine Gaul in Caesar's time comprised the region now known as France, together with the larger portion of Switzerland, Alsace, Lorraine, Belgium, and southern Holland.

53. Character of the Country. — The generally level character of the country and the presence of navigable rivers rendered communication easy among the Gallic tribes. Forests and marshes covered a more extensive area than in modern times.

54. Climate and Products. — The climate, north of the Cevennes, was probably more rigorous than now. The various cereals of southern Europe were cultivated quite extensively, though pastoral husbandry was held in higher repute, especially in the northern districts. The southern district, already a Roman province, had much the same climate as Italy and produced the same fruits. The mining of iron, copper, silver, and gold was carried on in parts of Gaul.

THE PEOPLE.

55. Origin. — The Gauls, or Celts, had for many centuries occupied the country in which Caesar found them.

They came from east of the Rhine, destroyed or conquered the population already in the land, and intermarried to some extent with the survivors. The language of the invaders came to prevail.

56. Divisions. — Without an attempt at scientific accuracy, Caesar describes the Gauls in three divisions or ethnological groups, on the basis of language, customs, and laws. The inhabitants of the central division called themselves Celts. They were, however, of the same origin as the Belgae north of them, and there was probably no great divergence in the language of the two. The Belgae, who came into Gaul probably at a later date than the Celts, claimed to be descended from the Germans, and there may have been an admixture of German blood in them. In the third division, Aquitania, the Celtic element had not established itself in numbers relatively so large as in other parts of Gaul, nor was the Celtic language in general use. The precise origin of the population which the Celtic invaders found in Aquitania is not certain. It was doubtless a mixture of race elements, largely Iberian, and is represented by the modern Basques.

57. Characteristics of the Gauls. — The Gauls in general were of greater stature than the Romans. Their complexion was fair, their hair a reddish blond. In dress they were especially fond of bright colors. The chiefs decorated themselves with golden rings, bracelets, and necklaces, though such ornaments were not unknown among other classes. In temperament the Gauls were boastful, impulsive, and hasty in forming resolves and plans, often disastrous in outcome. These qualities were augmented by a childish curiosity and credulousness of chance rumors and of stories told them by traders. In battle they were courageous and impetuous, but lacked staying qualities, being easily disheartened by defeat. They showed no little cleverness in imitating the military contrivances of their enemies.

58. Houses. — The Gallic houses were made of wood and wickerwork, dome-shaped and with thatched roofs. Those in the country were placed, if possible, in the vicinity of forests and streams for the sake of coolness.

59. Towns. — Walled towns constituted strongholds of refuge in time of war for the inhabitants of villages and of the open country.

60. Stage of Civilization. — The Gauls of Caesar's time had advanced far beyond a state of barbarism. Cattle-breeding, agriculture, mining, and intertribal commerce were conducted in an orderly way. Duties or tolls were levied on merchandise conveyed on the rivers, and a system of coinage had been developed. Traffic was carried on with the Britons, as well as with traders from the Roman province and the Greek city of Massilia. The more southern tribes, at least, had reduced their language to writing, employing Greek letters. Latin, too, was more or less familiar to the southern Celts. Education, rude as it was, must have been confined to a small portion of the inhabitants, particularly the druids. The tribes nearer the Roman province had lost something of their native vigor through contact with civilization, while the more remote Belgae retained in a greater degree their originally rugged character. One strong Belgic tribe refused to allow the importation of wine and other enervating luxuries.

61. Religion. — The religion of the Gauls probably presented many variations of a local character. It was dominated by a priestly caste, the druids, who were not subject to military service or to taxation. One of their number held supreme authority as a sort of druidical pope. The druids exercised great influence, largely through their power of excommunicating those who refused obedience to their mandates. They had jurisdiction in religious matters, often also in civil cases. The secrets of their religious teachings were handed down orally, never committed to writing. Many novices were constantly under instruction, submitting to a long period of study. Those who wished to attain unusual proficiency in the mysteries went to Britain for study, where the Gauls themselves believed the druidical system to have originated.

Among their teachings was the immortality of the soul and its transmigration into other human beings. This belief, they thought, by removing the fear of death, afforded the most powerful inspiration to valorous conduct. Human sacrifices were still practiced, apparently, in Caesar's time. The victims were by preference criminals. Under Roman names, Caesar gives as the chief Gallic divinities Mercury, Apollo, Mars, Jupiter, and Minerva.

62. Political and Social Organization. — The Gallic states, or tribes, were divided into districts. Each tribe had its council of elders, which Caesar calls by the Roman term senatus. Certain tribes had kings, probably all at an earlier date. By revolutions the majority had done away with monarchy, substituting an annually elected magistrate in some cases, while in others the senates alone seem to have exercised the powers of government.

63. In addition to the druids, there existed one other powerful class, that of the nobles or knights. It was perhaps from their numbers that the senates were formed. As the wealthy class, they appear to have held a monopoly of the land, and owned slaves. In the absence of well-organized institutions to secure justice, the lower classes were often oppressed by the more powerful, or were overwhelmed by debt. Large numbers, therefore, attached themselves to members of the nobility as free clients (clientes) or retainers, or even entered into a relation of serfdom or virtual slavery to their masters, expecting protection in return. A noble whose resources and retainers were sufficient might maintain a status virtually independent of the state.

64. Factional Spirit. — As a result of political and social conditions, each tribe was riven by factions. The same factional spirit so prevailed among the various tribes as to prevent the maturing of a national spirit. No regular councils of the Gallic tribes as a whole were held, though upon occasion delegates from a number of tribes would meet and agree to make common cause in war.

65. Hegemony. — Powerful tribes were sometimes able to establish sovereignty of varying degrees over their a number of men noted in Latin literature, among them Vergil and Livy. The people north of the Po were clamoring for full Roman citizenship. In 67, on his journey home from Spain at the end of his quaestorship, Caesar is said to have urged these Transpadani to press their claim. Not until he himself gained control of the Roman government was the coveted citizenship bestowed.

Caesar refers to this province as Gallia cisalpina, Gallia citerior, citerior provincia, or simply as Italy.

THE TRANSALPINÉ PROVINCE.

68. To secure a land route to their Spanish domain, acquired at the close of the third century, it was necessary for the Romans to control the Gallic country along the Mediterranean. The first step toward this end was taken in 154, when Rome aided the allied Greek city of Massilia against the Ligurians, west of the Maritime Alps. Another campaign occurred in 125, likewise to assist Massilia. In 123 the Romans formed treaty relations with the Haedui, giving them the title of friends and allies. In 122 the town of Aquae Sextiae was founded. In 121 the Allobroges were brought under subjection, and at the same time a severe blow was dealt the power of the Arverni, who, with their client tribes, had come to the aid of the Allobroges. In 118 the colony of Narbo was founded, and about the same time the conquered territory was organized into a province, Massilia retaining its independence. From this time forward the process of introducing Roman civilization went steadily on, Roman men of business settling in the country in large numbers.

The boundaries of the province were for the most part natural, the Alps, the Cevennes, and the river Rhone. Caesar refers to this province as Gallia ulterior, Gallia provincia, ulterior provincia, provincia nostra.

ILLYRICUM.

The province of Illyricum comprised the eastern coast of the Adriatic from the peninsula of Histria to Epirus.

The Romans first came into contact with the Illyrians about 233 B.C., when their Italian allies were suffering from the depredations of Illyrian pirates. A Roman army was sent to chastise the offenders. A second war occurred in 219, and further troubles in 168 caused the Romans to annex the country as a province. The ancient Illyrians are thought to be the ancestors of the modern Albanians.

This province played a relatively small part in Caesar's administrative duties as a provincial governor. He records but two visits to it, in the years 57 and 54.

BRITAIN.

69. The term Britain as used by Caesar included England, Scotland, and Wales. Ireland is mentioned under its ancient name of Hibernia. Mona is to be identified with Anglesey. Before Caesar's time there was but the vaguest idea of the island, though its tin mines seem to have been long known. Caesar's contribution to the knowledge of Britain, while not extensive, had at least the merit of first-hand information. He conceived its shape as triangular, estimating its circumference at two thousand Roman miles, somewhat more than the actual measurement.

The Britons of Cantium, or Kent, on the southeast coast, were in a more advanced stage of civilization than those farther inland. According to our author they were descendants of invaders from Belgium, differing but little from the northern Gauls. The tribes of the interior believed themselves to be indigenous. Probably all the inhabitants of Britain and Ireland were mainly of Celtic stock. The details of Caesar's description are found in Bk. V, 12-14.

The Romans did not gain a firm foothold in Britain until a century after Caesar's invasion, under the Emperor Claudius.

GERMANY.

70. The information given by Caesar with reference to Germany is the earliest from an authentic source. It is not extensive (Bk. IV, 1-3, and Bk. VI, 21-28), and must be supplemented from sources of a later date, Tacitus's Germania in particular.

Compared with the Gauls, in physical characteristics the Germans were of larger stature, but much resembled them otherwise. Their manner of life was of a ruder type, though no little diversity existed in the civilization of different tribes. The classes below the nobility enjoyed a much greater degree of independence and individual freedom. Some tribes had kings; in others, popular forms of government existed. According to the information obtained by Caesar, there was no private and individual ownership of land. Allotments of land, made to clans and families, were changed annually. Agriculture was not practiced so extensively as in Gaul. Caesar notes the absence of the druidical system. We know from Tacitus that there was a priestly caste possessing no little influence and power. The gods, according to Caesar, were those of nature, the Sun, Vulcan, Luna. Caesar's narrative will give sufficient information as to the prowess and military tactics of the Germans.

C. IULI CAESARIS
LIBER PRIMUS.

WAR WITH THE HELVETII, 1-29.

The divisions and peoples of Gaul.

1. Gallia est omnis divisa in partēs trēs; quarum unam incolunt Belgae, aliam Aquitāni, tertiam quī ipsōrum linguā Celtae, nostrā Galli appellantur. Hi omnēs linguā, institūtis, lēgibus inter sē differunt. Gallōs ab Aquitānis Garumna flūmen, ā Belgis Mātrona et Sēquana dividit. 5

Hōrum omnium fortissimī sunt Belgae, propterea quod ā cultū atque hūmānitāte prōvinciae longissimē absunt, minimēque ad eōs mercātōrēs saepe commeant atque ea, quae ad effēminandōs animōs pertinent, important, proximique sunt Germānis, quī trāns Rhēnum incolunt, qui-10 buscum continenter bellum gerunt. Quā dē causā Helvētīi quoque reliquōs Gallōs virtūte praecedunt, quod ferē cotidiānis proeliis cum Germānis contendunt, cum aut suis finibus eōs prohibent aut ipsī in eōrum finibus bellum gerunt. 15

Sēquanīs et Helvētiīs flūmen Rhēnum; vergit ad septentrionēs. Belgae ab extrēmīs Galliae finibus oriuntur, pertinent ad inferiōrem partem flūminis Rhēnī, spectant in septentrionem et orientem sōlem. Preparations for departure.

3. His rebus adducti et auctoritate Orgetorigis permoti constituerunt ea, quae ad proficiscendum pertinerent, comparare, iumentorum et carrorum quam maximum numerum coemere, sementes quam maximas facere, ut in itinere copia frumenti suppeteret, cum proximis civitatibus pacem et amicitiam confirmare. Ad eas res conficiendas biennium sibi satis esse duxerunt; in tertium annum perfectionem lege confirmant.

Orgetorix and certain other Gallic chiefs plot to gain supreme power in their states.

Ad eas res conficiendas Orgetorix dux deligitur. Is sibi legationem ad civitates suscipit. In eo itinere persuadet Castico, Catamantaloedis filio, Sequano, cuius pater regnum in Sequanis multis annos obtinuerat et a senatu populi Romani amicus appellatus erat, ut regnum in civitate sua occuparet, quod pater ante habuerit; itemque Dumnorigi Haeduo, fratri Diviciaci, qui eo tempore principatum in civitate obtinebat ac maxime plebi acceptus erat, ut idem conareretur, persuadet eique filiam suam in matrimonium dat.

Perfacile factum esse illis probat conata perficere, propterea quod ipse suae civitatis imperium obtenturus esset; non esse dubium, quin totius Galliae plurimum Helvetii possent; se suis copiis suoque exercitu illis regna conciliaturum confirmat. Hac oratione adducti inter se fidem et ius iurandum dant, et regno occupato per tres potentissimos ac firmissimos populos totius Galliae sese potiri posse sperant.

The plot is discovered. Death of Orgetorix.

The Helvetii ask permission to go through the Roman province.

Ubi dē eius adventū Helvētiī certiorēs factī sunt, lēgātōs ad eum mittunt nōbilissimōs cīvitātis, cūius lēgatiōnis Nammēius et Verucloetius principem locum obtinēbant, quī dīcerent, sibi esse in animō sine ullō maleficiō iter per 5 prōvinciam facere, proptereā quod aliud iter habērent nullum; rogāre, ut eius voluntāte id sibi facere liceat.

To gain time, Caesar delays his reply.

Caesar, quod memoriā tenēbat, L. Cassium cōnsulem occisum exercitumque eius ab Helvētiīs pulsum et sub iugum missum, concēdendum nōn putābat; neque homi-
10 nēs inimicō animō, datā facultāte per prōvinciam itineris faciundī, temperātūrōs ab iniuriā et maleficiō existimābat. Tamen, ut spatium intercēdere posset, dūm milites, quōs imperāverat, convenirent, lēgātis respondit diem sē ad

Dumnorīx gratiā et largitiōne apud Sēquanōs plūrimum poterat, et Helvētiīs erat amīcus, quod ex eā cīvitāte Orgetorigis filiam in mātrimonium dūxerat, et cupiditate rēgnī adductus novis rēbus studēbat, et quam plūrimās cīvitātēs suō beneficiō habere obstrictās volēbat. 10 Itaque rem suscipit et ā Sēquanīs impetrat, ut per finēs suōs Helvētiōs ire patiantur, obsidēsque utī. inter sēsē dent, perficit: Sēquanī, nē itinere Helvētiōs prohibeant; Helvētiī, ut sine maleficiō et iniuriā trānseant.

Caesar resolves to prevent the migration of the Helvetii. He goes to Cisalpine Gaul to bring up additional troops.

10. Caesarī nūntiātur, Helvētiīs esse in animō per 15 agrum Sēquanōrum et Haeduōrum iter in Santonum finēs facere, quī nōn longē ā Tolōsātium finibus absunt, quae cīvitās est in prōvinciā. He summons Diviciacus to an interview.

HIS omnibus rebus unum repugnabat, quod Diviciaci fratris summum in populum Romanum studium, summam in se voluntatem, egregiam fidem, iustitiam, temperantiam cognoverat; nam, ne eius supplicio Diviciaci animum offenderet, verebatur. Itaque priusquam quicquam conaretur, Diviciacum ad se vocari iubet et, cotidianis interpretibus remotis, per C. Valerium Troucillum, principem Galliae provinciae, familiarem suum, cui summam omnium rerum fidem habebat, cum eo conloquitur; simul commonefacit, quae ipso praesente in concilio Gallorum de Dumnorige sint dicta, et ostendit, quae separatim quisque de eo apud se dixerit. Petit atque hortatur, ut sine eius offensione animi vel ipse de eo causam cognitam statuatur, vel civitatem statuere iubeat.

Diviciacus intercedes for his brother.

20. Diviciacus multis cum lacrimis Caesarem complexus obsecrare coepit, ne quid gravius in fratrem statueret: scire se illa esse vera, nec quemquam ex eo plus quam se doloris capere, propterea quod, cum ipse gratiam plurimum domi atque in reliqua Gallia, ille minimum propter adulescentiam posset, per se crevisset; quibus opibus ac nervis non solum ad minuendam gratiam, sed paene ad perniciem suam uteretur. Sese tamen et amore fraterno et existimatione vulgi commoveri. Quod si quid ei a Caesare gravius accidisset, cum ipse eum locum amicitiae apud eum teneret, neminem existimaturum non sua voluntate factum; quam ex re futurum, uti totius Galliae animi a se averterentur.

Caesar pardons Dumnorix, with a warning.

IMPERATOR, LEGATUS, CENTURIO, LICTOR.

Caesar plans to attack the Helvetii.

21. Eōdem diē ab explōrātōribus certior factus, hostēs sub monte cōnsēdisse mīlia passuum ab ipsius castrīs octō, quālis esset nātūra montis et quālis in circuitū ascēsus, quī cōgnōscerent, mīsit. Renūntiātum est, facilem esse. Dē tertiā vigiliā T. Labiēnum, lēgātum prō praetōre, cum duābus legiōnibus et eīs ducibus, quī iter cōgnōverant, summum iugum montis ascendere iubet; 5 quid suī cōsiliī sit, ostendit. Ipse dē quārtā vigiliā eōdem itinere, quō hostēs ierant, ad eōs contendit equitātumque omnem ante sē mittit. P. Cōnsidius, quī rei militāris peritissimus habēbātur et in exercitū L. Sullae et postea in M. Crassi fuerat, cum explōrātōribus praemit-10 titur.

The plan fails through the mistake of an officer.

22. Primā lūce, cum summus mōns ā Labiēnō tenērētur, ipse ab hostium castris nōn longius mille et quīngentis passibus abesset, neque, ut postea ex captivis comperit, aut ipsius adventus aut Labiēni cōgnitus esset, Cōnsidius 15 equō admissō ad eum accurrit, dīcit montem, quem ā Labiēnō occupārī voluerit, ab hostibus tenērī; id sē ā Gallicis armis atque insignibus cōgnōvisse. Caesar suās cōpiās in proximum collem subdūcit, aciem instruit.

Labiēnus, ut erat ei praeceptum ā Caesare, nē proelium 20 committeret, nisi ipsius cōpiāe prope hostium castra vīsae essent, ut undique ūnō tempore in hostēs impetus fieret, monte occupātō nostrōs exspectābat proeliōque abstinēbat. Multō dēnique diē per explōrātōrēs Caesar cōgnōvit, et montem ā suis tenērī et Helvētiōs castra mōvisse et Cōnsidium tīmōre perterritum, quod nōn vīdisset, prō vīsō sibi renūntiāvisse. Eō diē, quō cōnsuērat intervallō, hostēs sequitur et milia passuum tria ab eōrum castris castra pōnit.

The Roman army turns towards Bibracte for supplies. The Helvetii harass the Roman rear-guard.

23. Postridiē eius diēi, quod omnīnō biduum supererat, cum exercituī frumentum mētiri oportēret, et quod ā Bibracte, oppidō Haeduōrum longē māximō et cōpiōsissimō, nōn amplius milibus passuum XVIII aberat, rei
5 frumentariae prōspiciendum existimāvit; itaque iter ab Helvētiis āvertit ac Bibracte ire contendit. Ea rēs per fugitivōs L. Aemili, decuriōnis equitum Gallōrum, hostibus nūtiātur. Helvētiī, seu quod timōre perterritōs Rōmānōs discēdere ā sē existimārent, eō magis, quod pridiē, 10 superiōribus locis occupātis, proelium nōn commisissent, sive eō, quod rē frumentariā interclūdi posse cōfiderent, commūtātō cōnsiliō atque itinere conversō nostrōs ā novissimō agmine insequi ac lacessere coepērunt.

Both sides are arrayed for battle. The Helvetii attack.

24. Postquam id animum advertit, cōpiās suās Caesar
15 in proximum collem subdūxit equitātumque, quī sustinēret hostium impetum, mīsit. Ipse interim in colle mediō triplicem aciem instrūxit legiōnum quattuor veterānārum; in summō iugō duās legiōnēs, quās in Galliā citeriōre proximē cōscripserat, et omnia auxilia conlocārī, ac
20 tōtum montem hominibus complēri, et intereā sarcinās in ūnum locum cōferrī et eum ab eis, quī in superiōre acie cōstitērant, mūniri iussit. Helvētiī cum omnibus suis carris secūtī impedimenta in ūnum locum contulērunt; ipsī, cōnfertissimā acie relectō nostrō equitātū, phalange factā 25 sub prīmam nostram aciem successērunt.

THE BATTLE WITH THE HELVETII.

A hard fight ensues.

25. Caesar, primum suō, deinde omnium ex cōspectū remōtis equīs, ut aequātō omnium periculō spem fugae tolleret, cohortātus suōs proelium commisit. Militēs ē locō superiōre pīlis missīs facile hostium phalangem perfrēgerunt. Eā disiectā, gladiis dēstrictīs in eōs impetum 5 fēcērunt. Gallīs māgnō ad pūgnam erat impedimentō, quod plūribus eōrum scūtis unō ictū pilōrum trānsfixis et conligātīs, cum ferrum sē inflexisset, neque ēvellere neque sinistrā impedītā satis commodē pūgnāre poterant, multī ut diū iactātō brachiō praeoptārent scūtum manū emittere et nūdō corpore pūgnāre.

The Helvetii give way. They are reinforced and rally again.

Tandem vulneribus dēfessī et pedem referre et, quod mōns aberat circiter mille passūs, eō sē recipere coepērunt. Captō monte et succēdentibus nostrīs, Bōiī et Tulingī, quī hominum milibus circiter xv agmen hostium claudēbant et novissimis praesidiō erant, ex itinere nostrōs ab latere apertō adgressī circumvenire, et id cōnspicātī Helvētiī, quī in montem sēsē recēperant, rūsus instāre et proelium redintegrāre coepērunt. Rōmānī conversa signa bipertitō intulērunt; prīma et secunda 20 aciēs, ut victis ac submōtis resisteret, tertia, ut venientēs sustinēret.

Their forces are finally crushed.

26. Ita ancipiti proeliō diū atque ācrit pūgnātum est. Diūtius cum sustinēre nostrōrum impetūs nōn possent, alterī sē, ut coeperant, in montem recēpērunt, alterī ad 25 impedimenta et carrōs suōs sē contulērunt. Nam hōc tōtō proeliō, cum ab hōrā septimā ad vesperum pūgnātum sit, āversum hostem vidēre nēmō potuit. Ad multam noctem etiam ad impedimenta pūgnātum est, propterea 5 quod prō vāllō carrōs obiēcerant et ē locō superiōre in nostrōs venientēs tēla cōiciēbant, et nōn nūllī inter carrōs raedāsque matarās ac trāgulās subiciēbant nostrōsque vul- nerābant. Diū cum esset pūgnātum, impedimentis cas-trisque nostrī potitī sunt. Ibi Orgetorigis filia atque 10 ūnus ē filiis captus est.

Caesar pursues the survivors.

Ex eō proeliō circiter hominum milia cxxx superfu-erunt eāque tōtā nocte continenter iērunt, nūllam partem noctis itinere intermissō; in finēs Lingonum diē quārtō pervēnērunt, cum et propter vulnera militum et propter 15 sepultūram occisōrum nostrī trīduum morātī eōs sequī nōn potuissent. Caesar ad Lingonas litterās nūntiōsque mīsit, nē eōs frūmentō nēve aliā rē iuvārent; quī sī iūvissent, sē eōdem locō, quō Helvētiōs, habitūrum. Ipse trīduō intermissō cum omnibus cōpiis eōs sequī coepit.

They sue for peace.

20 27. Helvētīi omnium rērum inopiā adductī lēgātōs dē dēditōne ad eum mīserunt. Quī cum eum in itinere convēnissent sēque ad pedēs prōiēcissent suppliciterque locūtī flentēs pācem petīssent, atque eōs in eō locō, quō tum essent, suum adventum exspectāre iussisset, pāruērunt.
 25 Eō postquam Caesar pervēnit, obsidēs, arma, servōs, quī ad eōs perfūgissent, poposcit.

Six thousand flee, but are recaptured. Of the survivors, all but the Boii are sent back to their homes.

Dum ea conquīruntur et cōferuntur, nocte intermissā, circiter hominum mīlia vi eius pāgī, quī Verbigenus appellātur, sive timōre perterritī, nē armīs trāditis supplicio adficerentur, sive spē salūtis inductī, quod in tantā multitudīne dēditiciōrum suam fugam aut occultāri aut omnīnō ignōrārī posse existimārent, primā nocte ē castris Helvētiōrum ēgressi ad Rhēnum finēsque Germānōrum contēderunt.

28. Quod ubi Caesar rescit, quōrum per finēs ierant, hīs, utī conquīrerent et redūcerent, sī sibi pūrgātī esse 10 vellent, imperāvit; reductōs in hostium numerō habuit; reliquōs omnēs obsidibus, armīs, perfugis trāditīs in dēditionem accēpit.

Helvētiōs, Tulingōs, Latobrigōs in finēs suōs, unde erant profectī, revertī iussit; et, quod omnibus frūgibus 15 āmissis domī nihil erat, quō famem tolerārent, Allobrogibus imperāvit, ut eis frūmentī cōpiam facerent; ipsōs oppida vicōsque, quōs incenderant, restituere iussit.

Id eā māximē ratiōne fēcit, quod nōluit eum locum, unde Helvētiī discesserant, vacāre, nē propter bonitātem 20 agrōrum Germānī, quī trāns Rhēnum incolunt, ex suis finibus in Helvētiōrum finēs trānsīrent et finitimī Galliae prōvinciae Allobrogibusque essent. Boiōs, petentibus Haeduīs, quod ēgregiā virtūte erant cōgnitī, ut in finibus suis conlocārent, concessit; quibus illī agrōs dedērunt, 25 quōsque postea in parem iūris libertātisque condiciōnem, atque ipsī erant, recēpērunt.

Enumeration of the Helvetii and their allies.

29. In castris Helveticorum tabulae repertae sunt literis Graecis confectae et ad Caesarem relatae, quibus in tabulis nominatim ratio confecta erat, qui numerus domo exisset eorum, qui arma ferre possent, et item separatim, quot pueri, senes mulleresque. Quorum omnium rerum summa erat capitum Helveticorum milium cclxiii, Tulingorum milium xxxvi, Latobrigorum xiiii, Rauracorum xxiii, Boiorum xxxii; ex his, qui arma ferre possent, ad milia nonaginta duo. Summa omnium fuerunt ad milia 10 cccclxviii. Eorum, qui domum redierunt, censu habito, ut Caesar imperaverat, repertus est numerus milium c et x.

30. Bello Helveticorum confecto, totius fere Galliae legati, principes civitatum, ad Caesarem gratulatum 15 convenerunt: intellegere sese, tametsi pro veteribus Helveticorum iniuriis populi Romani ab his poenas bello repetisset, tamen eam rem non minus ex usu terrae Galliae quam populi Romani accidisse, propterea quod eo consilio fortissimis rebus domos suas Helvetii reliquissent, uti toti 20 Galliae bellum inferrent imperioque potirentur locumque domicilio ex magna copia deligerent, quem ex omni Gallia opportunissimum ac fructuosissimum iudicassent, reliquasque civitates stipendiarias haberent.

31. Eō conciliō dīmissō, Idem prīncipēs cīvitātum, qui ante fuerant, ad Caesarem revertērunt petiēruntque, utī sibi sēcrētō dē suā omniumque salūte cum eō agere liceret. Eā rē impetrātā sēsē omnēs flentēs Caesarī ad pedēs 10 prōiēcērunt: nōn minus sē id contendere et labōrāre, nē ea, quae dixissent, ēnūntiārentur, quam utī ea, quae velent, impetrārent, proptereā quod, sī ēnūntiātum esset, summum in cruciātum sē ventūrōs vidērent.

Speech of Diviciacus. Two factions divide the Celtic states.

Settlement of Germans in Gaul.

Locūtus est prō hīs Diviciācus Haeduus: Galliae tōtius 15 factiōnēs esse duās; hārum alterius prīncipātum tenēre Haeduōs, alterius Arvernōs. Hī cum tantopere dē potentātū inter sē multōs annōs contenderent, factum esse, utī ab Arvernīs Sēquanīsque Germānī mercēde arcesserentur. Hōrum primō circiter mīlia xv Rhēnum trānsisse; post- 20 eāquam agrōs et cultum et cōpiās Gallōrum hominēs ferī ac barbarī adamāssent, trāductōs plūrēs; nunc esse in Galliā ad c et xx mīlium numerum.

The downfall of the Haeduan faction.

Cum hīs Haeduōs eōrumque clientēs semel atque iterum armīs contendisse; māgnam calamitātem pulsōs accēpisse, omnem nōbilitātem, omnem senātum, omnem equitātum amīsisse. Quibus proeliis calamitātibusque frāctōs, quī
 5 et suā virtūte et populī Rōmānī hospitiō atque amīcitiā plūrimum ante in Galliā potuissent, coāctōs esse Sēquanīs obsidēs dare nōbilissimōs civitātis et iūre iūrاندō civitātem obstringere, sēsē neque obsidēs repetitūrōs neque auxilium ā populō Rōmānō implōrātūrōs neque recūsā-
 10 tūrōs, quōminūs perpetuō sub illōrum dictiōne atque imperiō essent. Unum sē esse ex omni civitāte Haeduōrum, quī adducī nōn potuerit, ut iūrāret aut liberōs suōs obsidēs daret. Ob eam rem sē ex civitāte profūgis et Rōmam ad senātum vēnisse auxilium postulātum, quod 15 sōlus neque iūre iūrاندō neque obsidibus tenērētur.

The Sequani are even more unfortunate.

Sed pēius victōribus Sēquanīs quam Haeduīs victīs accidisse, proptereā quod Ariovistus, rēx Germānōrum, in eōrum finibus cōnsēdisset tertiamque partem agrī Sēquanī, quī esset optimus tōtius Galliae, occupāvisset, 20 et nunc dē alterā parte tertiā Sēquanōs dēcēdere iubēret, proptereā quod paucīs mēnsibus ante Harūdum mīlia hominum xxiiii ad eum vēnissent, quibus locus ac sēdēs parārentur. Futūrum esse paucīs annīs, utī omnēs ex Galliae finibus pellerentur atque omnēs Germānī
 25 Rhēnum trānsīrent; neque enim cōferendum esse Gallicum cum Germānōrum agrō, neque hanc cōnsuētūdinem victūs cum illā comparandam.

Tyranny of Ariovistus. Only Caesar and the Roman people can save the Gauls.

Ariovistum autem, ut semel Gallōrum cōpiās proeliō vicerit, quod proelium factum sit ad Magetobrigam, superbē et crudēliter imperāre, obsidēs nōbilissimī cūiusque liberōs poscere et in eōs omnia exempla cruciātusque ēdere, sī qua rēs nōn ad nūtum aut ad voluntātem eius facta sit. Hominem esse barbarum, Iracundum, temerarium; nōn posse eius imperia diūtius sustinēri. Nisi quid in Caesare populōque Rōmānō sit auxiliī, omnibus Gallis idem esse faciendum, quod Helvētiī fēcerint, ut domō ēmigrant, aliud domicilium, aliās sēdēs, remōtās ā Germānis, petant fortunamque, quaecumque accadat, experiantur.

Haec sī ēnūntiāta Ariovistō sint, nōn dubitāre, quā dē omnibus obsidibus, quī apud eum sint, gravissimum supplicium sūmat. Caesarem vel auctoritāte suā atque 15 exercitū vel recentī victoriā vel nōmine populi Rōmāni dēterrere posse, nē māior multitūdō Germānōrum Rhēnum trādūcātur, Galliamque omnem ab Ariovistī iniuriā posse dēfendere.

Oppression of the Sequani by Ariovistus.

32. Hāc orātiōne ab Diviciācō habitā, omnēs, quī ad-20 erant, magnō fletū auxilium ā Caesare petere coepērunt. Animadvertit Caesar ūnōs ex omnibus Sēquanōs nihil eārum rērum facere, quās cēteri facerent, sed tristēs capite dēmissō terram intuēri. Eius rei quae causa esset, mirātus ex ipsīs quaeiit. Nihil Sēquanī respondēre, sed 25 in eādē tristitiā tacitī permanēre. Cum ab hīs saepius quaereret neque ullam omnino vocem exprimere posset, idem Diviciacus Haeduus respondit: hoc esse miseriores et graviores fortunam Sequanorum quam reliquorum, quod soli ne in occulto quidem queri neque auxilium implorare auderent absentisque Ariovisti crudelitatem, velut si coram adesset, horrerent, propterea quod reliquis tamen fugae facultas daretur, Sequanis vero, qui intra fines suos Ariovistum recepissent, quorum oppida omnia in potestate eius essent, omnes cruciatus essent perferendi.

Caesar sets forth his reasons for determining to check the settlement of the Germans in Gaul.

10 33. His rebus cognitis Caesar Gallorum animos verbis confirmavit pollicitusque est, sibi eam rem curae futuram; magnam se habere spem, et beneficio suo et auctoritate adductum Ariovistum finem iniuriis facturum. Hanc oratione habitam concilium dimisit.

15 Et secundum ea multae res eum hortabantur, quare sibi eam rem cogitandam et suscipiendam putaret, in primis, quod Haeduos, fratres consanguineosque saepenumero a senatu appellatos, in servitute atque in ditione videbat Germanorum teneri, eorumque obsides esse apud Ariovistum ac Sequanos intellegebat; quod in tanto imperio
20 populi Romani turpissimum sibi et rei publicae esse arbitrabatur.

Paulatim autem Germanos consuescere Rhenum transire et in Galliam magnam eorum multitudinem venire, 25 populo Romano periculosum videbat; neque sibi homines feros ac barbaros temperaturos existimabat, quin, cum omnem Galliam occupavissent, ut ante Cimbrum Teutonum que fēcissent, in prōvinciam exīrent atque inde in Italiā contenderent, praesertim cum Sēquanōs ā prōvinciā nostrā Rhodanus divideret; quibus rēbus quam mātūrrimē occurrēdum putābat. Ipse autem Ariovistus tantōs sibi spīritūs, tantam arrogantiā sūmpserat, ut ferendus nōn vidērētur.

He summons Ariovistus to an interview. Ariovistus refuses to come.

34. Quam ob rem placuit ei, ut ad Ariovistum lēgātōs mitteret, quī ab eō postulārent, utī aliquem locum medium utriusque conloquīō dēligeret; velle sēsē dē rē publicā et summīs utriusque rēbus cum eō agere. Eī¹⁰ lēgātīōnī Ariovistus respondit: sī quid ipsī ā Caesare opus esset, sēsē ad eum ventūrum fuisse; sī quid ille sē velit, illum ad sē venīre oportere. Praetereā sē neque sine exercitū in eās partēs Galliae venīre audēre, quās Caesar possidēret, neque exercitum sine māgnō commeātū¹⁵ atque mōlimentō in ūnum locum contrahere posse. Sibi autem mīrum vidērī, quid in suā Galliā, quam bellō vicisset, aut Caesarī aut omnīnō populō Rōmānō negōtī esset.

Caesar makes certain demands of Ariovistus.

35. Hīs respōnsīs ad Caesarem relātīs, iterum ad eum Caesar lēgātōs cum hīs mandātīs mittit: quoniam tantō suō populūque Rōmānī beneficiō adfectus, cum in cōsulātū suō rēx atque amīcus ā senātū appellātus esset, hanc sibi populōque Rōmānō grātiā referret, ut in conloquium venīre invītātus gravārētur neque dē commūnī rē discendum sibi et cōgnōscendum putāret, haec esse, quae²⁵

ab eō postulāret: primum, nē quam multitudinem hominum amplius trāns Rhēnum in Galliam trādūceret; deinde, obsidēs, quōs habēret ab Haeduīs, redderet, Sēquanisque permetteret, ut, quōs illi habērent, voluntāte eius reddere illis liceret; nēve Haeduōs iniūriā lacesseret, nēve his sociisque eōrum bellum inferret.

Si id ita fēcisset, sibi populōque Rōmānō perpetuam grātiā atque amicitiam cum eō futūrā; si nōn impetrāret, sēsē, quoniam M. Messālā, M. Pisōne cōsulibus senātus cēnсуisset, utī, quicumque Galliam prōvinciā obtinēret, quod commodō rei publicae facere posset, Haeduōs ceterosque amicos populi Rōmāni dēfenderet, sē Haeduōrum iniūriās nōn neglētūrum.

Ariovistus replies defiantly.

36. Ad haec Ariovistus respondit: iūs esse bellī, ut, 15 quī vicissent, eis, quōs vicissent, quem ad modum vellent, imperārent. Item populum Rōmānum victis nōn ad alterius praescriptum, sed ad suum arbitrium imperāre cōsuēsse. Si ipse populō Rōmānō nōn praescriberet, quem ad modum suō iūre ūteretur, nōn oportere sē ā populō 20 Rōmānō in suō iūre impediri.

Haeduōs sibi, quoniam bellī fortunā temptāssent et armīs congressi ac superātī essent, stipendiarios esse factōs. Māgnam Caesarem iniūriā facere, quī suō adventū vectigālia sibi dēteriōra faceret. Haeduīs sē obsidēs red- 25 ditūrum nōn esse, neque his neque eōrum sociis iniūriā bellum inlātūrum, si in eō manērent, quod convēnisset, stipendiumque quotannis penderent; si id nōn fēcissent, longē eīs frāternum nōmen populī Rōmānī āfutūrum. Quod sibi Caesar dēnūntiāret, sē Haeduōrum iniūriās nōn neglēcturum, nēminem sēcum sine suā perniciē contēdisse. Cum vellet, congredērētur; intellēctūrum, quid invictī Germānī, exercitātissimī in armīs, quī inter ānnōs 5 XIII tēctum nōn subīssent, vīrtūte possent.

The Haedui and Treveri complain of German oppression. Caesar hastens against Ariovistus:

37. Haec eōdem tempore Caesarī mandāta referēbantur, et lēgātī ab Haeduīs et ā Trēverīs veniēbant: Haeduī questum, quod Harūdēs, quī nūper in Galliam trānsportātī essent, finēs eōrum populārentur; sēsē nē obsidibus qui-10 dem datīs pācem Ariovistī redimere potuisse; Trēverī autem, pāgōs centum Suēbōrum ad ripās Rhēnī cōnsēdisse, quī Rhēnum trānsīre cōnārentur; hīs praeesse Nasuam et Cimberium frātrēs. Quibus rēbus Caesar vehementer commōtus mātūrandum sibi existimāvit, nē, 15 sī nova manus Suēbōrum cum veteribus cōpiīs Ariovistī sēsē coniūnxisset, minus facile resistī posset. Itaque rē frūmentāriā, quam celerrimē potuit, comparātā māgnīs itineribus ad Ariovistum contēndit.

He forestalls Ariovistus in the occupation of Vesontio.

38. Cum trīduī viam prōcessisset, nūntiātum est eī, 20 Ariovistum cum suis omnibus cōpiīs ad occupandum Vesontionem, quod est oppidum māximum Sēquanōrum, contendere trīduīque viam ā suis finibus prōcessisse. Id nē accideret, māgnopere sibi praecavendum Caesar

Reports of German prowess cause a panic in the Roman army.

39. Dum paucōs diēs ad Vesontiōnem rei frūmentāriae commeātūsque causā morātur, ex percontātiōne nostrōrum vōcibusque Gallōrum ac mercātōrum, quī ingenti māgnitūdine corporum Germānōs, incēdibilī virtūte atque exercitātiōne in armīs esse praedicābant, — saepenumērō sēsē cum hīs congressōs nē vultum quidem atque aciem oculōrum dīcēbant ferre potuisse, — tantus subitō timor omnem exercitum occupāvit, ut nōn mediocriter omnium mentēs animōsque perturbāret.

Hīc prīmum ortus est ā tribūnis militum, 10 praefectis reliquīsque, quī ex urbe amicitiae causā Caesarem secūtī nōn māgnū in rē militārī ūsum habēbant; quōrum alius aliā causā inlātā, quam sibi ad proficiscendum necessāriam esse diceret, petēbat, ut eiūs voluntāte 15 discēdere liceret; nōn nullī puḍōre adductī, ut timōris suspiciōnem vitārent, remanēbant. 40. Haec cum animadvertisset, convocātō cōnsiliō omniumque ōrdinum ad id cōnsilium adhibitīs centuriōnibus vehementer eōs incūsāvit: prīmum, quod, aut quam in partem aut quō cōnsiliō dūcerentur, sibi quaerendum aut cōgitandum putārent. Dēnique hōs esse eōsdem Germānōs, quibuscum sae-penero Helveti congressi non solum in suis, sed etiam in illorum finibus plerumque superarint, qui tamen pareri esse nostro exercitui non potuerint. Si quos adversum proelium et fuga Gallorum commoveret, hos, si quaerent, reperire posse, diuturnitate belli defatigatis Gallis, 5 Ariovistum, cum multos menses castris se ac paludibus tenuisset neque sui potestatem fecisset, desperantes iam de pugna et dispersos subito adortum magis ratione et consilio quam virtute vicisse. Cui rationi contra homines barbaros atque imperitos locus fuisset, hac ne ipsum 10 quidem sperare nostros exercitus capi posse.

Fears are groundless. It is the business of subordinates to obey without question. The army will march on at once.

Qui suum timorem in rei frumentariae simulationem angustiasque itineris conferrent, facere arroganter, cum aut de officio imperatoris desperare aut praescribere viderentur. Haec sibi esse curae; frumentum Sequanos, 15 Leucos, Lingones subministrare, iamque esse in agris frumenta matura; de itinere ipsos brevi tempore iudicatos.

The soldiers apologize for their conduct. Caesar advances against Ariovistus.

41. Hāc orātiōne habitā, mīrum in modum conversae sunt omnium mentēs summaque alacritās et cupiditās belli gerendī inlāta est, prīncepsque decima legiō per sē fieri licēre, quoniam propius accessisset sēque id sine periculō facere posse existimāret. Nōn respuit condiciōnem Caesar iamque eum ad sānitātem reverti arbitrābātur, cum id, quod antea petenti dēnegāssset, ultrō pollicērētur, māgnamque in spem veniēbat, prō suis tantis populique 5 Rōmāni in eum beneficiis, cōgnitis suis postulātis, fore, uti pertināciā dēsisteret. Diēs conloquiō dictus est ex eō diē quintus. Interim saepe cum lēgati ultrō citrōque inter eōs mitterentur, Ariovistus postulāvit, nē quem peditem ad conloquium Caesar addūceret; verēri sē, nē per Insi-10 diās ab eō circumvenīrētur; uterque cum equitātū veniret; aliā ratiōne sēsē nōn esse ventūrum.

Caesar, quod neque conloquium interpositā causā tolli volēbat neque salutem suam Gallōrum equitātui committere audēbat, commodissimum esse statuit, omnibus equis 15 Gallis equitibus dētractis, eō legiōnāriōs milites legiōnis decimae, cui quam māximē cōfīdēbat, impōnere, ut praesidium quam amīcissimum, si quid opus factō esset, haberet. The interview. Caesar reminds Ariovistus of the favors conferred upon him.

43. Plānitēs erat māgna et in eā tumulus terrēnus satis grandis. Hic locus aequum ferē spatium ā castris Ariovisti et Caesaris aberat. Eō, ut erat dictum, ad con-25 loquium vērērunt. Legiōnem Caesar, quam equis dēve-

- 5 Ubi eō ventum est, Caesar initiō ōrātiōnis sua senātūs-que in eum beneficia commemorāvit, quod rēx appellātus esset ā senātū, quod amīcus, quod mūnera amplissima missa; quam rem et paucīs contigisse et prō magnīs hominum officiīs cōsuēsse tribuī docēbat; illum, cum 10 neque aditum neque causam postulandī iūstam habēret, beneficiō ac liberālitate suā ac senātūs ea praemia cōnsecūtum.

Friendship of the Romans and Haedui. Caesar renews his demands.

- Docēbat etiam, quam veterēs quamque iūstae causae necessitudinis ipsis cum Haeduīs intercēderent, quae
15 senātūs cōsulta, quotiēns quamque honorifica in eōs facta essent, ut omnī tempore tōtius Galliae principātum Haeduī tenuissent, prius etiam quam nostram amicitiam adpetissent. Populī Rōmānī hanc esse cōsuētūdinem, ut sociōs atque amīcōs nōn modo suī nihil dēperdere, sed 20 grātiā, dignitāte, honōre auctiōrēs vellet esse; quod vērō ad amicitiam populī Rōmānī attulissent, id eis ēripī quis patī posset?

- Postulāvit deinde eadem, quae lēgātīs in mandātis dederat: nē aut Haeduīs aut eōrum sociīs bellum Infer-25 ret, obsidēs redderet, sī nūllam partem Germānōrum domum remittere posset, at nē quōs amplius Rhēnum trānsīre paterētur.

Ariovistus defends his occupation of Gallic territory.

44. Ariovistus ad postulāta Caesaris pauca respondit, dē suis virtūtibus multa praedicāvit: trānsisse Rhēnum sēsē nōn suā sponte, sed rogātum et arcessitum ā Gallis; nōn sine māgnā spē māgnisque praemiis domum propinquosque reliquisse; sēdēs habēre in Galliā ab ipsis concessās, obsidēs ipsōrum voluntāte datōs; stipendium capere iūre bellī, quod victōrēs victis impōnere cōsue- rint. Nōn sēsē Gallis, sed Gallōs sibi bellum intulisse; omnēs Galliae civitatēs ad sē oppūgnandum vēnisse ac contrā sē castra habuisse; eas omnēs cōpiās ā sē unō 10 proeliō pulsās ac superātās esse. Si iterum experiri velint, sē iterum parātum esse dēcertāre; si pāce ūti velint, iniquum esse dē stipendiō recūsāre, quod suā voluntāte ad id tempus pependerit.

Amicitiam populī Rōmānī sibi ornāmētō et praesidiō, 15 nōn dētrimentō esse oportēre, atque sē hāc spē petisse. Si per populum Rōmānum stipendium remittātur et dediticiū subtrahantur, nōn minus libenter sēsē recūsātūrum populī Rōmānī amicitiam, quam adpetierit.

He denies Roman authority in this part of Gaul.

Quod multitudinem Germānōrum in Galliam trādūcat, 20 id sē sui mūniendī, nōn Galliae oppūgnandae causā facere; eius rei testimoniū esse, quod nisi rogātus nōn vēnerit et quod bellum nōn intulerit, sed dēfenderit. Sē prius in Galliam vēnisse quam populum Rōmānum. Numquam ante hōc tempus exercitum populī Rōmānī Galliae 25 prōvinciae finibus ēgressum. Quid sibi vellet? Cūr in suās possessionēs venīret? Prōvinciam suam hanc esse Galliam, sicut illam nostram. Ut ipsī concēdī nōn oportēret, sī in nostrōs finēs impetum faceret, sic item nōs esse inīquōs, quod in suō iūre sē interpellārēmus.

He makes light of the friendship of the Romans and Haedui, and warns Caesar from the region.

5 Quod frātrēs ā senātū Haeduōs appellātōs diceret, nōn sē tam barbarum neque tam imperītum esse rērum, ut nōn scīret, neque bellō Allobrogum proximō Haeduōs Rōmānīs auxilium tulisse neque ipsōs in hīs contentiōnibus, quās Haeduī sēcum et cum Sēquanīs habuissent, 10 auxiliō populī Rōmānī ūsōs esse.

Dēbere sē suspiciārī, simulātā Caesarem amicitīā, quem exercitum in Galliā habeat, suī opprimendī causā habēre. Quī nisi dēcēdat atque exercitum dēdūcat ex hīs regiōnibus, sēsē illum nōn prō amīcō, sed prō hoste habitūrum.
15 Quod sī eum interfēcerit, multīs sēsē nōbilibus prīncipibusque populī Rōmānī grātum esse factūrum, — id sē ab ipsīs per eōrum nūtiōs compertum habēre, — quōrum omnium grātiam atque amicitiam ēius morte redimere posset. Quod sī dēcēssisset et liberam possessionem Gal-liae sibi trādidisset, māgnō sē illum praemiō remūnerātūrum et, quaecumque bella gerī vellet, sine ūllō ēius labōre et periculō cōfectūrum.

Caesar asserts the priority of Roman authority in Gaul.

45. Multa ā Caesare in eam sententiam dicta sunt, quārē negōtiō dēsistere nōn posset: neque suam neque populī Rōmānī cōnsuetūdinem patī, utī optimē meritōs sociōs dēsereret, neque sē iudicāre, Galliam potius esse Ariovistī quam populī Rōmānī. Bellō superātōs esse Arvernōs et Rutēnōs a Q. Fabiō Māximō, quibus populus Rōmānus ignōvisset neque in prōvinciam redēgisset neque 5 stīpendium imposuisset. Quod sī antiquissimum quodque tempus spectārī oportēret, populī Rōmānī iūstissimum esse in Galliā imperium; sī iudiciū senātūs observārī oportēret, liberam dēbere esse Galliam, quam bellō victam suis lēgibus utī voluisset. 10

PILA.

The German cavalry attacks the Roman cavalry. The conference breaks up.

46. Dum haec in conloquiō geruntur, Caesarī nūntiātum est, equitēs Ariovistī propius tumulum accēdere et ad nostrōs adequitāre, lapidēs tēlaque in nostrōs cōicere. Caesar loquendī finem fēcit sēque ad suōs recēpit suisque imperāvit, nē quod omnīnō tēlum in hostēs rēicerent. 15 Nam etsi sine ullō periculō legiōnis dēlectae cum equitātū proelium fore vidēbat, tamen committendum nōn putābat, ut pulsīs hostibus dicī posset, eōs ab sē per fidem in conloquiō circumventōs. 47. Bīduō post Ariovistus ad Caesarem lēgātōs mīsit: velle sē dē eīs rēbus, quae inter eōs agī coeptae neque
 5 perfectae essent, agere cum eō; utī aut iterum conloquiō diem cōstitueret, aut, sī id minus vellet, ex suis lēgātīs aliquem ad sē mitteret. Conloquendī Caesarī causa vīsa nōn est, et eō magis, quod prīdiē ēius diēi Germānī retinēri nōn potuerant, quīn tēla in nostrōs cōicerent.

Caesar sends representatives. Ariovistus puts them in chains:

GALLIC WALL.

Caesar receives them under his protection, out of deference to the Haedui. The Ambiani also submit.

14. Prō hīs Dīviciācus—nam post discessum Belgārum dīmissīs Haeduōrum cōpiīs ad eum reverterat—facit verba: Bellovacōs omnī tempore in fidē atque amicitīā cīvitātis Haeduae fuisse; impulsōs ab suis prīncipibus, quī dicerent, Haeduōs ā Caesare in servitūtem redāctōs omnēs indignitātēs contumēliāsque perferre, et ab Haeduīs defēcisse et populō Rōmānō bellum intulisse. Quī eius cōsili prīncipēs fuissent, quod intellegerent, quantam calamitātem cīvitātī intulissent, in Britanniam profūgisse. Petere nōn solum Bellovacōs, sed etiam prō hīs Haeduōs, ut suā clēmēntiā ac mānsuētūdine in eōs utātur. Quod si fēcerit, Haeduōrum auctōritātem apud omnēs Belgās amplificātūrum, quōrum auxiliis atque opibus, si qua bella inciderint, sustentāre cōnsuērint.

15. Caesar honōris Dīviciāci atque Haeduōrum causā sēsē eōs in fidem receptūrum et cōservātūrum dixit, et quod erat cīvitās māgnā inter Belgās auctōritāte atque hominum multitūdine praestābat, de obsidēs 10 poposcit. Hīs trāditis omnibusque armīs ex oppidō conlātis, ab eō locō in finēs Ambiānōrum pervēnit; quī sē suaque omnia sine morā dēdidērunt.

Character of the Nervii. Caesar invades their country.

They encamp south of the river Sambre.

Eōrum finēs Nervii attingēbant. Quōrum dē nātūrā mōribusque Caesar cum quaereret, sic reperiēbat: nūl- 15 lum esse aditum ad eōs mercātōribus; nihil patī vinī reliquārumque rērum ad lūxuriam pertinentium inferri, quod hīs rēbus relanguēscere animōs et remitti virtūtem existimārent; esse hominēs ferōs māgnaeque virtūtis; inceptāre atque incūsāre reliquōs Belgās, quī sē populō 20 Rōmānō dēdidissent patriamque virtūtem prōiēcissent; cōfirmāre, sēsē neque lēgātōs missūrōs neque ūllam condiціōnem pācis acceptūrōs.

16. Cum per eōrum finēs trīduum iter fēcisset, inveniēbat ex captivīs, Sabim flūmen ā castris suis nōn amplius 25 mīlia passuum x abesse; trāns id flūmen omnēs Nervios cōnsēdisse adventumque ibi Rōmānōrum expectāre unā cum Atrebātibus et Viromanduis, finitimis suis — nam his utrisque persuāserant, utī eandem bellī fortūnam experirentur; — expectārī etiam ab eis Atuaticōrum cōpiās atque esse in itinere; mulierēs, quīque per aetātem ad 5 pūgnam inūtilēs vidērentur, in eum locum coniecisse, quō propter palūdēs exercituī aditus nōn esset.

Caesar selects a site for a camp. The Nervii plan to surprise his troops.

17. His rēbus cōgnitis explorātōrēs centuriōnēsque praemittit, quī locum castris idōneum dēligant. Cum ex dediticiis Belgis reliquisque Gallis complūrēs Caesarem 10 secūtī unā iter facerent, quīdam ex his, ut postea ex captivis cōgnitum est, eōrum diērum cōsuetūdine itineris nostrī exercitūs perspectā, nocte ad Nervios pervēnerunt atque his dēmōstrārunt, inter singulās legiōnēs impedimentōrum māgnū numerum intercēdere, neque esse 15 quicquam negōtī, cum prīma legiō in castra vēnisset reliquaeque legiōnēs māgnū spatium abessent, hanc subsarcinis adorīrī; quā pulsā impedimentisque direptis futurum, ut reliquae contrā cōsistere nōn audērent.

Adiuvābat etiam eōrum cōnsilium, quī rem dēferēbant, 20 quod Nervii antiquitus, cum equitātū nihil possent, — neque enim ad hōc tempus eī rei student, sed quicquid possunt, pedestribus valent cōpiis, — quō facilius finitimōrum equitātum, si praedandī causā ad eos vēnissent, impedirent, teneris arboribus incisis atque inflexis, crebrisque in lātitudinem rāmīs enātis, et rubis sentibusque 25 interiectis effēcerant, ut instar mūrī hae saepēs mūnimentum praebērent, quō nōn modo nōn intrārī, sed nē perspicī quidem posset. His rēbus cum iter agminis nostrī impedīrētur, nōn omittendum sibi cōsiliū Nervī existimāvērunt.

Description of the battle-ground.

contrārius, passūs circiter cc infimus apertus, ab superiore parte silvestris, ut nō facile intrōsus perspicī posset. Intrā eās silvās hostēs in occultō sēsē continēbant; in apertō locō secundum flūmen paucae stationēs equitum vidēbantur. Flūminis erat altitūdō pedum circiter trium.

Arrangement of the Roman line of march. The enemy beat back the Roman cavalry and attack the men at work on the camp.

19. Caesar equitātū praemissō subsequēbātur omnibus cōpiīs; sed ratiō ōrdōque agminis aliter sē habēbat, ac Belgae ad Nervios dētulerant. Nam quod hostibus adpropinquābat, cōsuetūdine suā Caesar vi legiōnēs expeditās 10 dūcēbat; post eās tōtius exercitūs impedimenta conlocārat; inde duae legiōnēs, quae proximē cōscriptae erant, tōtum agmen claudēbant praesidiōque impedimentis erant.

Equitēs nostrī cum funditōribus sagittariisque flūmen 15 trāsgressī cum hostium equitātū proelium commiserunt. Cum sē illī identidem in silvās ad suos reciperent ac rursus ex silvā in nostrōs impetum facerent neque nostrī longius, quam quem ad finem porrēcta loca aperta pertinebant, cēdentēs insequī audērent, interim legiōnēs vi, quae 20 primae vēnerant, opere dimēnsō castra mūnīre coeperunt.

Ubi prima impedimenta nostrī exercitūs ab eis, qui in silvis abditī latēbant, vīsa sunt, quod tempus inter eos committendī proelī convēnerat, ut intrā silvās aciem ōrdinēque cōstituerant atque ipsī sēsē cōfirmāverant, sub 25 itō omnibus cōpiīs prōvolāvērunt impetumque in nostrōs equitēs fecērunt. His facile pulsīs ac prōturbātis, incredibilī celeritāte ad flūmen dēcucurrērunt, ut paene unō tempore et ad silvās et in flūmine et iam in manibus nostrīs hostēs vidērentur. Eādem autem celeritāte adversō colle ad nostra castra atque eōs, quī in opere occupātī erant, contendērunt.

Hasty arrangements. Value of discipline and intelligence in an emergency.

20. Caesarī omnia ūnō tempore erant agenda: vexillum 5 prōpōnendum, quod erat insigne, cum ad arma concurrī oportēret, signum tubā dandum, ab opere revocandī militēs, quī paulō longius aggeris petendī causā prōcesserant, arcessendī, aciēs instruenda, militēs cohortandī, signum dandum. Quārum rērum māgnam partem tem-10 lisque legiōnibus singulōs lēgātōs Caesar discēdere nisi mūnitīs castrīs vetuerat. Hī propter propinquitātem et celeritātem hostium nihil iam Caesaris imperium expectābant, sed per sē, quae vidēbantur, administrābant.

Caesar encourages his troops at various points. The men fall into line as best they can.

21. Caesar necessariīs rēbus imperātīs ad cohortandōs 20 militēs, quam in partem fors obtulit, dēcucurrit et ad legiōnem decimam dēvēnit. Militēs nōn longiōre ōrātiōne cohortātus, quam utī suae pristināe virtūtis memoriam retinērent neu perturbārentur animō hostiumque impetum fortiter sustinērent, quod nōn longius hostēs aberant, quam quō tēlum adigi posset, proeli committendī signum dedit. Atque in alteram partem item cohortandī causā profectus pūgnantibus occurrit. Temporis tanta fuit

 5 exiguitās hostiumque tam parātus ad dimicandum animus, ut nōn modo ad insignia accommodanda, sed etiam ad galeās induendās scūtisque tegimenta dētrahenda tempus dēfuerit. Quam quisque ab opere in partem cāsū dēvēnit quaeque prīma sīgna cōspexit, ad haec cōstitit, nē in

GALEA.

22. Instrūctō exercitū, magis ut locī nātūra dēiectus-

Legiōnis nōnae et decimae mīlitēs, ut in sinistrā parte aciē cōstitēbant, pilīs ēmissīs cursū ac lassitudīne exanimātōs vulneribusque cōfectōs Atrebātēs — nam hīs 5 ea pars obvenerat — celeriter ex locō superiōre in flūmen compulērunt et trānsire cōnantēs insecūtī gladiīs māgnam partem eōrum impeditam interfēcērunt. Ipsī trānsire flūmen nōn dubitāvērunt, et in locum inīquum prōgressī rūsus resistentēs hostēs, redintegrātō proeliō, in fugam 10 coniecērunt.

Item aliā in parte diversae duae legiōnēs, undecima et octāva, prōfligātīs Viromandūis, quibuscum erant congressae, ex locō superiōre, in ipsīs flūminis rīpīs proeliābantur. Caesar rallies the 12th legion, stationed on the right wing. The enemy are checked.

25. Caesar ab decimae legiōnis cohortātiōne ad dextrum cornū profectus, ubi suōs urgēri sīgnisque in ūnum locum conlātīs duodecimae legiōnis cōnfertōs mīlitēs sibi ipsōs 10 ad pūgnam esse impedimentō vīdit, quārtae cohortis omnibus centuriōnibus occīsīs, sīgniferō interfectō, sīgnō āmissō, reliquārum cohortium omnibus ferē centuriōnibus aut vulnerātīs aut occīsīs, in hīs prīmipilō P. Cūius adventū 25 spē inlātā mīlitibus ac redintegrātō animō, cum prō sē quisque in cōspectū imperātōris etiam in extrēmīs suis rēbus operam nāvāre cuperet, paulum hostium impetus tardātus est.

The 12th and 7th legions are rearranged for mutual protection.

26. Caesar, cum septimam legiōnem, quae iūxtā cōnstitat, item urgērī ab hoste vīdisset, tribūnōs militum monuit, ut paulātim sēsē legiōnēs coniungerent et con-versa signa in hostēs inferrent. Quō factō cum aliīs aliī subsidium ferrent neque timērent, nē āversī ab hoste circumvenīrentur, audācius resistere ac fortius

The rear-guard and the 10th legion come to the rescue.

Interim militēs legiōnum duārum, quae in novissimō agmine praesidiō impedimentīs fuerant, proeliō nūntiātō, cursū incitātō in summō colle ab hostibus cōspiciē-

The tide of battle turns decisively.

27. Hōrum adventū tanta rērum commūtatiō est facta, ut nostrī, etiam quī vulneribus cōfectī prōcubuisse, scūtīs innixī proelium redintegrārent, cālōnēs perterritōs

LIBER TERTIUS.

EVENTS AT OCTODURUS, 1-6.

Servius Galba is sent to open an important road across the Alps.

He decides to winter at Octodurus. Hostility of the natives.

1. Cum in Italiam proficisceretur Caesar, Ser. Galbam cum legione duodecimā et parte equitātūs in Nantuātēs, Veragrōs Sedūnōsque mīsit, quī ā finibus Allobrogum et lacū Lemannō et flūmine Rhodanō ad summās Alpēs pertinent. Causa mittendī fuit, quod iter per Alpēs, 5 quō māgnō cum periculō māgnisque cum portōriis mercatōrēs ire cōsuērant, patefieri volēbat. Huic permīsit, si opus esse arbitrāretur, utī in hīs locīs legiōnem hiemandi causā conlocāret.

Galba, secundīs aliquot proeliis factis castellisque com-10 plūribus eōrum expūgnātis, missis ad eum undique lēgātis obsidibusque datis et pāce factā, cōstituit cohortēs duās in Nantuātibus conlocāre et ipse cum reliquis eius legiōnis cohortibus in vicō Veragrōrum, quī appellātur Octodūrus, hiemāre; quī vicus positus in valle nōn māgnā adiectā 15 plānitie altissimis montibus undique continetur. Cum hīc in duās partēs flūmine divideretur, alteram partem eius vicī Gallis concessit, alteram vacuum ab hīs relictam cohortibus ad hiemandum attribuit. Eum locum vāllō fossaque mūnivit. 20

2. Cum diēs hibernōrum complūrēs trānsissent, frumentumque eō comportārī iussisset, subitō per explorātōrēs certior factus est, ex eā parte vicī, quam Gallis concesserat, omnēs noctū discessisse montēsque, quī impendērent, ā māximā multitudīne Sedūnōrum et Veragrōrum tenērī.

- 5 Id aliquot dē causīs acciderat, ut subitō Galli belli renovandī legiōnisque opprimendae cōsiliū caperent: primum, quod legiōnem, neque eam plēnissimam, detractīs cohortibus duābus et complūribus singillatim, quī commeātūs petendī causā missī erant, absentibus, propter

RISEING OF THE VENETI, 7-16.

Publius Crassus levies upon the coast tribes for supplies.

7. Hīs rēbus gestīs, cum omnibus dē causīs Caesar pācātam Galliam exīstimāret, superātīs Belgīs, expulsīs Germānīs, victīs in Alpibus Sedūnīs, atque ita initā hieme 15 in Illyricum profectus esset, quod eās quoque nātiōnēs adire et regiōnēs cōgnōscere volēbat, subitum bellum in Galliā coortum est.

Description of the Veneti. They form a league with neighboring states, detain Roman officers, and demand back their hostages.

8. Hūius est cīvitātis longē amplissima auctōritās omnis ōrae maritimae regiōnum eārum, quod et nāvēs habent Venetī plūrimās, quibus in Britanniam nāvigāre cōnsuērunt, et scientiā atque ūsū rērum nauticārum cēterōs antecēdunt, et in māgnō impetū maris vāstī atque apertī, paucīs portibus interiectīs, quōs tenent ipsī, omnēs ferē, quī eō marī ūtī cōnsuērunt, habent vectigālēs.

Ab hīs fit initium retinendī Silī atque Velānī, quod
10 per eōs suōs sē obsidēs, quōs Crassō dedissent, recuperātūrōs existimābant. Hōrum auctōritāte finitimī adductī — ut sunt Gallōrum subita et repentinā cōnsilia — eādē dē causā Trebium Terrasidiumque retinent, et celeriter missīs lēgātīs per suōs principēs inter sē con-

Caesar orders a fleet built on the river Loire. The Veneti and allies make diligent preparations. They rely much upon their naval strength.

9. Quibus dē rēbus Caesar ā Crassō certior factus, quod ipse aberat longius, nāvēs interim longās aedifi- cārī in flūmine Ligerī, quod influit in Ōceanum, rēmigēs ex prōvinciā institui, nautās gubernātōrēsque comparārī iubet. Hīs rēbus celeriter administrātis, ipse, cum prīmum per annī tempus potuit, ad exercitum contendit.

Venetī reliquaeque item cīvitātēs cōgnitō Caesaris adventū, simul quod, quantum in sē facinus admīsissent, intellegēbant, lēgātōs, quod nōmen ad omnēs nātiōnēs sānctum inviolātumque semper fuisset, retentōs ab sē et in vincula coniectōs, prō māgnitūdine perīculi bellum 10 parāre et māximē ea, quae ad ūsum nāvium pertinent, prōvidēre instituunt, hōc māiōre spē, quod multum nātūrā locī cōnfidēbant. Pedestria esse itinera concīsa aestuāriis, nāvigātiōnem impeditam propter inscientiam locōrum paucitātemque portuum sciēbant, neque nostrōs 15 exercitūs propter frūmentī inopiam diūtius apud sē morārī posse cōnfidēbant; ac iam ut omnia contrā opīniōnem acciderent, tamen sē plūrimum nāvibus posse, Rōmānōs neque ūllam facultātem habēre nāvium, neque eōrum locōrum, ubi bellum gestūrī essent, vada, portūs, 20 īnsulās nōvisse; ac longē aliam esse nāvigātiōnem in conclusō marī atque in vāstissimō atque apertissimō Ōceanō perspiciebant.

Hīs initis cōnsiliis oppida mūniunt, frūmenta ex agrīs in oppida comportant, nāvēs in Venetiam, ubi Caesarem 25 prīmum bellum gestūrum cōnstābat, quam plūrimās possunt, cōgunt. Sociōs sibi ad id bellum Osismōs, Lexoviōs, Namnetēs, Ambiliatōs, Morinōs, Diablintēs, Menapiōs adsciscunt; auxilia ex Britannā, quae contrā eās regiōnēs posita est, arcessunt.

In spite of all difficulties Caesar determines to subdue them.

10. Erant hae difficultatēs bellī gerendī, quās suprà ostendimus, sed tamen multa Caesarem ad id bellum incitābant: iniūria retentōrum equitum Rōmānōrum, rebelliō facta post dēditionem, dēfectiō datīs obsidibus, 5 tot cīvitātum coniūrātiō, in primīs, nē, hāc parte neglēctā, reliquae nātiōēs sibi idem licēre arbitrārentur. Itaque cum intellexeret, omnēs ferē Gallōs novīs rēbus studēre et ad bellum mōbilit̄er celeriterque excitārī, omnēs autem hominēs nātūrā libertātī studēre et condiōnem 10 servitūtis ōdisse, priusquam plūrēs cīvitātēs cōspīrārent, partiendum sibi ac lātius distribuendū exercitum putāvit.

Location of the towns of the Veneti. Difficulty of attacking them.

12. Erant eius modi ferē sītūs oppidōrum, ut posita in extrēmīs lingulis prōmunturiisque neque pedibus aditum 5 habērent, cum ex altō sē aestus incitāvisset, quod accidit semper hōrārū XII spatiō, neque nāvibus, quod rūsus minuenta aestū nāvēs in vadīs adfectārentur. The enemy escape by sea when their towns are taken. The Roman fleet arrives. The naval battle.

14. Complūribus expūgnātīs oppidīs Caesar, ubi intellexit, frūstrā tantum labōrem sūmī neque hostium fugam captīs oppidīs reprimī neque eis nocērī posse, statuit expectandam classem. Quae ubi convēnit ac prīmum ab hostibus vīsa est, circiter ccxx nāvēs eōrum, parātissimae atque omni genere armōrum ōrnatissimae, profectae ex portū nostris adversae cōstitērunt; neque satis Brūtō, quī classī praeerat, vel tribūnīs mīlitum centuriōnibusque, quibus singulae nāvēs erant attribūtae, cōnstābat, quid agerent aut quam ratiōnem pūgnae insisterent. Rōstrō enim nocērī nōn posse cōgnōverant; turribus autem excitātis, tamen hās altitūdō puppiū ex barbarīs nāvibus 5 superābat, ut neque ex Inferiōre locō satis commodē tēla adigī possent et missa ā Gallīs gravius acciderent.

SABINUS AMONG THE VENELLI, 17-19.

The Venelli declare War. Sabinus proceeds cautiously.

17. Dum haec in Venetīs geruntur, Q. Titūrius Sabinus cum eīs cōpiīs, quās ā Caesare accēperat, in finēs Venellōrum pervēnit. Hīs praeerat Viridovix ac summam imperi tenēbat eārum omnium cīvitātum, quae defēcerant, ex quibus exercitum māgnāsque cōpiās coēgerat; atque hīs paucīs diēbus Aulerci Eburovicēs Lexoviique senātū suō interfectō, quod auctōrēs bellī esse nōlēbant, portās clausērunt sēque cum Viridovīce coniūxērunt; māгнаque praetereā multitudō undique ex Galliā perditōrum hominum latrōnumque convēnerat, et quōs spēs praedandī studiumque bellandī ab agrī cultūrā et cotidiānō labōre sēvocābat.

Sabinus idōneō omnibus rēbus locō castris sēsē tenēbat, 10 cum Viridovix contrā eum duōrum milium spatiō cōsēdisset cotidiēque prōductis cōpiis pūgnandī potestātem faceret, ut iam nōn solum hostibus in contemptiōnem Sabinus venīret, sed etiam nostrōrum militum vōcibus nōn nihil carperētur; tantamque opīniōnem timōris prae- 15 buit, ut iam ad vāllum castrōrum hostēs accēdere audērent. Id eā dē causā faciēbat, quod cum tantā multitudīne hostium, praesertim eō absente, quī summam imperi tenēret, nisi aequō locō aut opportūnitāte aliquā datā lēgātō dīmicandum nōn exīstimābat. 20

The enemy are induced to attack the Roman camp.

18. Hāc cōfirmatā opīniōne timōris idōneum quendam hominem et callidum dēlēgit, Gallum, ex eis, quōs auxili causā sēcum habēbat. Huic māgnīs praemiis pollicitātiōnibusque persuādet, utī ad hostēs trānseat, et, quid fieri velit, edocet. Quī ubi prō perfugā ad eōs vēnit, timōrem 25 Rōmānōrum prōpōnit, quibus angustīis ipse Caesar ā Venetīs premātur, docet, neque longius abesse, quā proximā nocte Sabīnus clam ex castris exercitum ēdūcat et ad Caesarem auxili ferendī causā proficiscātur. Quod ubi auditum est, conclāmant omnēs, occāsiōnem negōti bene gerendī āmittendam nōn esse; ad castra iri 5 oportēre.

Multae rēs ad hōc cōnsilium Gallōs hortābantur; superiorū diērum Sabīni cūctātiō, perfugae cōfirmātiō, inopia cibāriōrum, cui rei parum diligenter ab eīs erat prōvisum, spēs Veneticī bellī, et quod ferē libenter homi-10 nēs id, quod volunt, crēdunt. Hīs rēbus adductī nōn prius Viridovicem reliquōsque ducēs ex conciliō dimit-tunt quam ab eīs sit concessum, arma utī capiant et ad castra contendant. Quā rē concessā laetī, ut explorātā victōriā, sarmentis virgultisque collēctis, quibus fossās 15 Rōmānōrum compleant, ad castra pergunt.

The Romans make a sortie and defeat them. They submit to Sabīnus.

19. Locus erat castrōrum ēditus et paulātīm ab imō acclivis circiter passūs mille. Hūc māgnō cursū contendērunt, ut quam minimum spatī ad sē colligendōs armandōsque Rōmānis darētur, exanimātique pervēnē-20 runt. Sabīnus suōs hortātus cupientibus sīgnum dat. Impeditis hostibus propter ea, quae ferēbant, onera, subitō duābus portis ēruptiōnem fierī iubet. Factum est opportūnitāte locī, hostium īnsientiā ac dēfatigātiōne, virtūte militum et superiorū pūgnārū exercitātiōne, ut nē 25 prīmum quidem nostrōrum impetum ferrent ac statim terga verterent. Quōs integris vīribus milites nostrī cōnsecūtī māgnū numerum eōrum occidērunt; reliquōs equitēs cōsectātī paucōs, quī ex fugā ēvāserant, reliquērunt. Sic ūnō tempore et dē nāvālī pūgnā Sabīnus et dē Sabīnī victoriā Caesar est certior factus, civitatēque omnēs sē statim Titūriō dēdidērunt. Nam ut ad bella suscipienda Gallōrum alacer ac prōmptus est animus, sic mollis ac minimē resistēns ad calamitatēs ferendās mēns eōrum est.

CRASSUS IN AQUITANIA, 20-27.

Crassus undertakes the conquest of Aquitania.

20. Eōdem ferē tempore P. Crassus, cum in Aquitāniam pervēnisset, quae pars, ut ante dictum est, et regiōnum lātitudine et multitudine hominum ex tertiā 10 parte Galliae est aestimanda, cum intellexeret, in eīs locīs sibi bellum gerendum, ubi paucīs ante annīs L. Valerius Praecōnīnus lēgātus exercitū pulsō interfectus esset atque unde L. Mānlius prōcōsul impedimentīs āmissīs profūgisset, nōn mediocrem sibi diligentiam adhibendam intel- 15 legēbat. Itaque rē frūmentāriā prōvisā, auxiliīs equitātūque comparātō, multis praetereā virīs fortibus Tolōsā et Carcasōne et Narbōne, quae sunt civitatēs Galliae prōvinciae finitimae hīs regiōnibus, nōminātīm ēvocātis, in Sotiātium finēs exercitum intrōdūxit. Cuius adventū 20 cōgnitō Sotiātēs magnīs cōpiīs coactīs equitātūque, quō plurimum valēbant, in itinere agmen nostrum adortī prīmum equestre proelium commiserunt, deinde, equitātū suō pulsō atque insequentibus nostrīs, subitō pedestrēs cōpiās, quas in convalle in insidiīs conlocāverant, osten- 25 dērunt. Hī nostrōs disiectōs adortī proelium renovārunt.

Sortie of Adiatunnus.

22. Atque in eam rem omnium nostrōrum intentis animis, aliā ex parte oppidī Adiatunnus, quī summam imperi tenēbat, cum de dēvōtis, quōs illi solduriōs appellabant, quōrum haec est condiciō, ut omnibus in vitā commodis unā cum eīs fruantur, quōrum sē amicitiae dēdiderint, si quid hīs per vim accidat, aut eundem casum unā ferant aut sibi mortem cōsciscant; neque adhūc hominum memoriā repertus est quisquam, quī eō interfectō, cūius sē amīcitiae dēvōvisset, mortem recūsāret — cum hīs Adiatunnus ēruptiōnem facere cōnātus, clāmōre ab eā parte mūnitiōnis sublātō, cum ad arma milītēs concurrissent vehementerque ibi pūgnātum esset, repulsus in oppidum tamen, utī eādē dēditiōnis condiciōne ūterētur, ā Crassō impetrāvit.

The Aquitani summon aid from Spain. They adopt Roman military methods. Crassus determines to force a battle.

23. Armīs obsidibusque acceptīs Crassus in finēs Vocātium et Tarusātium profectus est. Tum vērō barbarī commōtī, quod oppidum et nātūrā locī et manū mūnītum paucīs diēbus, quibus eō ventum erat, expūgnātum cōgnoverant, lēgātōs quōque versus dīmittere, coniūrāre, obsidēs inter sē dare, cōpiās parāre coepērunt. Mittuntur etiam ad eas cīvitātēs lēgātī, quae sunt citeriōris Hispāniae finitimae Aquītāniae; inde auxilia ducēsque arcessuntur. Quōrum adventū māgnā cum auctōritāte et māgnā cum hominum multitudīne bellum gerere cōnantur. Ducēs vērō ei dēliguntur, quī unā cum Q. Sertōriō omnēs annōs fuerant summamque scientiam rei militāris habere existimābantur. Hī cōnsuētūdine populī Rōmānī loca capere, castra mūnīre, commeātibus nostrōs interclūdere instituunt.

Quod ubi Crassus animadvertit, suās cōpiās propter exiguitātem nōn facile dīdūcī, hostem et vagārī et viās obsidēre et castrīs satis praesidī relinquere, ob eam causam minus commodē frūmentum commeātumque sibi supportārī, in diēs hostium numerum augērī, nōn cūctandū existināvit, quīn pūgnā dēcertāret. Hāc rē ad cōnsilium dēlātā, ubi omnēs idem sentīre intellēxit, posterum diem pūgnae cōstituit.

The Aquitani try to avoid a decisive battle for the present.

5 24. Primā lūce prōductis omnibus cōpiis, duplici acie institūtā, auxiliis in mediam aciem coniectis, quid hostēs cōnsiliī caperent, expectābat. Illī, etsi propter multitudinem et veterem bellī glōriam paucitatemque nostrōrum sē tūtō dīmicātūrōs existimābant, tamen tūtius esse arbi-
 10 trābantur obsessis viis, commeātū interclūsō, sine vulnere victōriā potiri, et si propter inopiam rei frūmentariae Rōmānī sēsē recipere coepissent, impeditōs in agmine et sub sarcinis infirmiorēs animō adoriri cōgitābant. Hōc cōnsiliō probātō ab ducibus, prōductis Rōmānōrum cōpiis,
 20 castra contendit.

Crassus attacks their camp.

25. Ibi cum aliī fossās complērent, aliī multis tēlis coniectis dēfēnsōrēs vāllō mūnitiōnibusque dēpellerent auxiliārēsque, quibus ad pūgnam nōn multum Crassus cōfidēbat, lapidibus tēlisque subministrandis et ad ag-
 25 gerem caespitibus comportandis speciem atque opīniōnem pūgnantium praebērent, cum item ab hostibus cōstanter ac nōn timidē pūgnārētur tēlaque ex locō superiōre missa nōn frūstrā acciderent, equitēs circumtīs hostium castrīs Crassō renūntiāvērunt, nōn eādē esse diligentīā ab decumānā portā castra mūnīta facilemque aditum habēre.

26. Crassus equitum praefectōs cohortātus, ut māgnīs 5 praemiīs pollicitātiōibusque suōs excitārent, quid fieri vellet, ostendit. Illī, ut erat imperātum, dēvectis eis cohortibus, quae praesidiō castrīs relictāe intrītāe ab labōre erant, et longiōre itinere circumductīs, nē ex hostium castrīs cōspici possent, omnium oculīs mentibusque 10 ad pūgnam intentīs, celeriter ad eās, quās dīximus, mūnītīōnēs pervēnērunt atque hīs prōrutīs prius in hostium castrīs cōstitērunt quam plānē ab hīs vidērī aut, quid rei gererētur, cōgnōscī posset. Tum vērō, clāmōre ab eā parte auditō, nostrī redintegrātīs vīribus, quod plērumque 15 in spē victōriāe accidere cōsuēvit, ācrius impūgnāre coepērunt. Hostēs undique circumventī, dēspērātīs omni-

THE MORINI AND MENAPII, 28-29.

Caesar leads an expedition against the Morini and Menapii.

5 28. Eōdem ferē tempore Caesar, etsi prope exācta iam aestās erat, tamen, quod omni Galliā pācātā Morini Menapiique supererant, qui in armis essent neque ad eum umquam lēgātōs dē pāce mīsissent, arbitrātus id bellum celeriter cōnfici posse, eō exercitum dūxit; qui longē
10 aliā ratiōne ac reliqui Galli bellum gerere coepērunt. Nam quod intellegēbant māximās nātiōnēs, quae proeliō contendissent, pulsās superātāsque esse, continentēsque silvās ac palūdēs habēbant, eō sē suaque omnia contulērunt. Ad quārum initium silvārum cum Caesar pervēnis-
15 set castraque mūnīre instituisset, neque hostis interim vīsus esset, dispersis in opere nostris, subitō ex omnibus partibus silvae evolāvērunt et in nostrōs impetum fecērunt. Nostrī celeriter arma cēpērunt eōsque in silvās repulērunt et, complūribus interfectis, longius impedi-20 tiōribus locis secūti paucōs ex suis dēperdidērunt.

The enemy avoid a decisive battle. Caesar is compelled to abandon the expedition. The Roman army goes into winter quarters.

29. Reliquis deinceps diēbus Caesar silvās caedere instituit, et nē quis inermibus imprudentibusque militibus ab latere impetus fieri posset, omnem eam māteriam, quae erat caesa, conversam ad hostem conlocābat et prō vāllō ad utrumque latus exstruēbat. Incrēdibilī celeritatē māgnō spatiō paucīs diēbus cōfectō, cum iam pecus atque extrēma impedīmenta ā nostrīs tenērentur, ipsī dēnsiōrēs silvās peterent, eius modī sunt tempestātēs cōsecūtae, s utī opus necessariō intermitterētur, et continuātiōne imbrium diūtius sub pellibus milītēs continērī nōn possent. Itaque vāstātis omnibus eōrum agrīs, vicīs aedificiisque incēnsīs, Caesar exercitum redūxit et in Aulercīs Lexovīsque, reliquīs item cīvitātibus, quae proximē bellum fecerant, in hibernīs conlocāvit.

LIBER QUARTUS.

THE USIPETES AND TENCTERI, 1-15.

Germans in Gaul. Description of the Suebi.

1. Eā, quae secūta est, hieme, quī fuit annus Cn. Pompeiō, M. Crassō cōsulibus, Usipetēs Germānī et item Tencteri māgnā cum multitudine hominum flūmen Rhēnum trānsiērunt, nōn longē ā mari, quō Rhēnus influit.
5 Causa trānseundi fuit, quod ab Suēbīs complūrēs annōs exagitātī bellō premēbantur et agrī culturā prohibēbantur.

Suēbōrum gēns est longē māxima et bellicōsissima Germānōrum omnium. Hī centum pāgōs habēre dīcuntur, ex quibus quotannis singula mīlia armātōrum bellandī causā
10 ex finibus ēdūcunt. Reliquī, quī domī mānsērunt, sē atque illōs alunt; hī rūsus in vicem annō post in armīs sunt, illī domī remanent. Sic neque agrī culturā nec ratio atque ūsus bellī intermittitur. Sed privātī ac sēparātī agrī apud eōs nihil est, neque longius annō remanēre ūnō
15 in locō colendī causā licet. Neque multum frūmentō, sed māximam partem lacte atque pecore vivunt, multumque sunt in vēnātiōnibus; quae rēs et cibī genere et cotidiānā exercitātiōne et libertāte vītae, quod ā puerīs nullō officiō aut disciplinā adsuēfactī nihil omnīnō contrā voluntātem

habērent quicquam, quārum propter exiguitātem māgna est corporis pars aperta, et lavārentur in flūminibus.

Their skill as horsemen. Their oppression of the Ubii.

2. Mercātōribus est aditus magis eō, ut, quae bellō cēperint, quibus vēndant, habeant, quam quō ūllam rem ad sē importārī dēsīderent. Quī etiam iūmentīs, quibus 5 māximē Galli delectantur quaeque impēnsō parant pretiō, Germānī importātis nōn ūtuntur, sed quae sunt apud eōs nāta, parva atque dēfōrmia, haec cotidiānā exercitātiōne, summī ut sint labōris, efficiunt. Equestribus proeliīs saepe ex equīs dēsiliunt ac pedibus proeliantur, equōsque eōdem 10 remanēre vestigio adsuēfēcērunt, ad quōs sē celeriter, cum ūsus est, recipiunt; neque eōrum mōribus turpius quicquam aut inertius habētur quam ephippiīs ūtī. Itaque ad quemvis numerum ephippiātōrum equitum quamvis paucī adire audent. Vinum omnīnō ad sē im- 15 portārī nōn patiuntur, quod eā rē ad labōrem ferendum remollēscere hominēs atque effēmīnārī arbitrantur.

3. Publicē māximam putant esse laudem, quam lātissimē ā suis finibus vacāre agrōs; hāc rē significārī, māgnū numerum civitātum suam vim sustinēre nōn 20 posse. Itaque ūnā ex parte ā Suēbīs circiter milia passuum c agrī vacāre dīcuntur. Ad alteram partem succēdunt Ubīī, quōrum fuit civitās ampla atque flōrēns, ut est captus Germānōrum; ei paulō, quamquam sunt eiusdem generis, sunt cēterīs hūmāniōrēs, proptereā quod 25 Rhēnum attingunt multumque ad eōs mercātōrēs ventitant, et ipsī propter propinquitātem Gallicis sunt mōribus adsuēfactī. Hōs cum Suēbī multis saepe bellis expertī propter amplitūdinem gravitātemque cīvitātis finibus expellere nōn potuissent, tamen vectīgālēs sibi fēcērunt ac multō humiliōrēs infirmiorēsque redēgērunt.

The Usipetes and Tencteri invade the country of the Menapii.

4. In eādē causā fuērunt Usipetēs et Tencteri, quōs
5 suprā dīximus; quī complūrēs annōs Suēbōrum vim sustinuerunt, ad extrēmum tamen agrīs expulsī et multīs locīs Germāniae triennium vagātī ad Rhēnum pervēnērunt, quās regiōnēs Menapii incolēbant. Hī ad utramque rīpam flūminis agrōs, aedificia vīcōsque habēbant; sed
10 tantae multitudinis adventū perterritī ex eīs aedificiīs, quae trāns flūmen habuerant, dēmigrāverant et cis Rhēnum dispositīs praesidiīs Germānōs trānsire prohibēbant.

Illī omnia expertī, cum neque vī contendere propter inopiam nāvium neque clam trānsire propter custodiās
15 Menapiōrum possent, revertī sē in suās sēdēs regiōnēsque simulāvērunt, et trīduī viam prōgressī rūsus revertērunt, atque omni hōc itinere ūnā nocte equitātū cōfectō insciōs inopinantēsque Menapiōs oppressērunt, quī dē Germānōrum discessū per explorātōrēs certiōrēs factī

Curiosity and temerity of the Gauls.

5. Hīs dē rēbus Caesar certior factus et infirmiātem Gallōrum veritus, quod sunt in cōsiliīs capiendīs mōbilēs et novis plerumque rebus student, nihil his committendum existimavit. Est enim hoc Gallicae consuetudinis, uti et viatores etiam invitos consistere cogant et, quid quisque eorum de quaque re audierit aut cognoverit, quaerant, et mercatores in oppidis vulgus circumstiat, quibusque ex regionibus veniant quasque ibi res cognoverint, pronuntiare cogat. His rebus atque auditionibus permoti de summis saepe rebus consilia ineunt, quorum eos in vestigio paenitere necesse est, cum incertis rumoribus serviant et plerique ad voluntatem eorum ficta re-10 spondeant.

*Certain Gallic states invite the Germans to advance farther in Gaul.
Caesar resolves to resist the encroachments of the Germans.*

6. Quā consuetudine cognitā Caesar, ne graviori bello occurreret, maturius, quam consuērat, ad exercitum proficiscitur. Eo cum venisset, ea, quae fore suspicatus erat, facta cognovit: missas legationes ab non nullis civitatibus 15 ad Germanos invitatosque eos, uti ab Rheno discederent; omnia, quae postulassent, ab se fore parata. Quā spe adducti Germani latius iam vagabantur et in fines Eburonum et Condrusorum, qui sunt Treverorum clientes, pervenerant. Principibus Galliae evocatis Caesar ea, 20 quae cognoverat, dissimulanda sibi existimavit, eorumque animis permulsis et confirmatis equitatuque imperato bellum cum Germanis gerere constituit.

He advances against them and is met by envoys.

7. Re frumentaria comparata equitibusque delectis iter in ea loca facere coepit, quibus in locis esse Germanos 25 audiēbat. Ā quibus cum paucōrum diērum iter abesset, lēgātī ab eīs vērunt, quōrum haec fuit ōrātiō: Germānōs neque priōrēs populō Rōmānō bellum inferre neque tamen recūsāre, sī lacessantur, quā armīs contendant, 5 quod Germānōrum cōsuetūdō sit ā māiōribus trādita, quicumque bellum inferant, resistere neque dēprecārī. Haec tamen dicere; vēnisse invītōs, ēlectōs domō; sī suam grātiā Rōmānī velint, posse eīs utilēs esse amicōs; vel sibi agrōs attribuant vel patiantur eōs tenēre, quōs 10 armīs possederint; sēsē ūnīs Suēbīs concēdere, quibus nē diī quidem immortālēs parēs esse possint; reliquum quidem in terrīs esse nēminem, quem nōn superāre possint.

Caesar orders the Germans from Gaul, offering them lands in the country of the Ubii. They seek to gain time, in the hope of reinforcements.

8. Ad haec Caesar, quae vīsum est, respondit; sed 15 exitus fuit ōrātiōnis: sibi nullam cum eīs amicitiam esse posse, sī in Galliā remanērent; neque vērū esse, quī suōs finēs tuērī nōn potuerint, aliēnōs occupāre; neque ūllōs in Galliā vacāre agrōs, quī darī tantae praesertim multitudinī sine iniuriā possint; sed licēre, sī velint, in 20 Ubiōrum finibus cōsīdere, quōrum sint lēgātī apud sē et dē Suēbōrum iniuriīs querantur et ā sē auxilium petant; hōc sē Ubiīs imperātūrum.

9. Lēgātī haec sē ad suōs relātūrōs dīxērunt et rē dēliberātā post diem tertium ad Caesarem reversūrōs; 25 intereā nē propius sē castra movēret, petiērunt. Nē id quidem Caesar ab sē impetrārī posse dixit. Cōgnōverat enim, māgnam partem ēquitātūs ab eīs aliquot diēbus ante praedandī frūmentandīque causā ad Ambivaritōs trāns Mosam missam; hōs expectārī equitēs atque eius rei causā moram interpōnī arbitrābātur.

appellātur Vacalus, insulam efficit Batāvōrum neque longius inde milibus passuum LXXX in Ōceanum influit.

Caesar again receives the German envoys, and arranges for another conference.

11. Caesar cum ab hoste nōn amplius passuum XII milibus abesset, ut erat cōstitutum, ad eum lēgātī rever-tuntur; quī in itinere congressī māgnopere, nē longius prōgrederētur, ōrābant. Cum id nōn impetrāssent, petē- 20 bant, utī ad eōs equitēs, quī agmen antecessissent, praequae à Caesare ferrētur, sē ūsūrōs ostendēbant; ad hās rēs cōficiendās sibi trīduī spatium daret.

Haec omnia Caesar eōdem illō pertinēre arbitrābātur, ut trīduī morā interpositā equitēs eōrum, quī abessent, 5 reverterentur; tamen sēsē nōn longius milibus passuum IIII aquātiōnis causā prōcessūrum eō diē dīxit; hūc posterō diē quam frequentissimī convenirent, ut dē eōrum postulātīs cōgnōsceret. 12. At hostēs, ubi primum nostrōs equitēs cōspexērunt, quōrum erat v milium numerus, cum ipsī nōn amplius DCCC equitēs habērent, quod ei, quī frūmentandī 15 causā ierant trāns Mosam, nōndum redierant, nihil timen-tibus nostrīs, quod lēgātī eōrum paulō ante à Caesare discesserant atque is diēs indūtīs erat ab hīs petītus, impetū factō celeriter nostrōs perturbāvērunt; rūsus hīs resistentibus, cōsuētūdine suā ad pedēs dēsiluērunt sub-

13. Hōc factō proeliō Caesar neque iam sibi lēgātōs audiendōs neque condiciōnēs accipiendās arbitrābātur ab

eīs, quī per dolum atque insidiās petitā pāce ultrō bellum intulissent; exspectāre vērō, dum hostium cōpiae augērentur equitātusque reverterētur, summae dēmentiae esse iudicābat, et cōgnitā Gallōrum infirmitate, quantum iam
 5 apud eōs hostēs unō proeliō auctoritātis essent cōsecūtī, sentiebāt; quibus ad cōsilia capiēda nihil spatī dandum exīstimābat.

 25 capiendī spatiō datō, perturbantur, cōpiāsne adversus hostem dūcere an castra dēfendere an fugā salūtem petere praestāret. Quōrum timor cum fremitū et con-

His Caesar libertātem concessit.

CAMPAIGN IN GERMANY, 16-19.

Caesar recounts his reasons for a campaign in Germany.

16. Germānicō bellō cōfectō, multis dē causis Caesar statuit sibi Rhēnum esse trānseundum; quārum illa fuit iustissima, quod, cum vidēret Germānōs tam facile impelli, ut in Galliam venīrent, suis quoque rēbus eōs timēre voluit, cum intellegerent et posse et audēre populi Rōmānī exercitum Rhēnum trānsīre.

5 Accessit etiam, quod illa pars equitātūs Usipetum et Tencterōrum, quam suprā commemorāvī praedandī frumentandīque causā Mosam trānsisse neque proeliō interfuisse, post fugam suōrum sē trāns Rhēnum in finēs Sugambrōrum recēperat sēque cum hīs coniūxerat. Ad
10 quōs cum Caesar nūntiōs mīsisset, quī postulārent, eōs, quī sibi Galliaeque bellum intulissent, sibi dēderent, responderunt: populi Rōmānī imperium Rhēnum finire; sī sē invītō Germānōs in Galliam trānsīre nōn aequum existimāret, cūr suī quicquam esse imperī aut potestātis
15 trāns Rhēnum postulāret?

Ubiī autem, quī ūnī ex Trānsrhēnānīs ad Caesarem lēgātōs mīserant, amīcitiā fēcērant, obsidēs dederant, māgnopere ōrābant, ut sibi auxilium ferret, quod graviter ab Suēbīs premerentur; vel, sī id facere occupātiōnibus

After a short campaign Caesar returns to Gaul.

18. Diēbus x, quibus māteria coepta erat comportārī, omni opere effectō, exercitus trādūcitur. Caesar ad utramque partem pontis firmō praesidiō relictō in finēs Sugambrōrum contendit. Interim ā complūribus cīvitātibus ad eum lēgātī veniunt; quibus pācem atque amīcitiā petentibus libērāliter respondet obsidēsque ad sē addūcī iubet. At Sugambrī ex eō tempore, quō pōns institui coeptus est, fugā comparātā hortantibus eīs, quōs ex Tencteris atque Usipetibus apud sē habēbant, finibus suis exacerant suaque omnia exportāverant sēque in sōlitūdinem ac silvās abdiderant.

19. Caesar paucōs diēs in eōrum finibus morātus, omnibus vicīs aedificiisque incēnsīs frūmentisque succīs, sē in finēs Ubiōrum recēpit atque hīs auxilium suum pollicitus, si ā Suēbīs premerentur, haec ab eīs cōgnōvit: Suēbōs, posteaquam per explorātōrēs pontem fieri comperissent, mōre suō conciliō habitō nūtiōs in omnēs partēs dīmīsisse, utī dē oppidīs dēmigrārent, libērōs, uxōrēs suaque omnia in silvīs dēpōnerent atque omnēs, quī arma 20ferre possent, ūnum in locum convenīrent. Hunc esse dēlectum medium ferē regiōnum eārum, quās Suēbī obtinērent; hīc Rōmānōrum adventum expectāre atque ibidem dēcertāre cōstituisse.

Quod ubi Caesar comperit, omnibus eīs rēbus cōfectis, 25quārum rērum causā trādūcere exercitum cōstituerat, ut Germānis metum iniceret, ut Sugambrōs ulciscerētur, ut Ubiōs obsidīōne libērāret, diēbus omnīnō xviii trāns Rhēnum cōsumptis, satis et ad laudem et ad utilitātem profectum arbitrātus, sē in Galliam recēpit pontemque rescidit.

FIRST CAMPAIGN IN BRITAIN, 20-36.

Objects of the campaign.

20. Exiguā parte aestātis reliquā Caesar, etsi in his locis, quod omnis Gallia ad septentrionēs vergit, mātūrae sunt hiemēs, tamen in Britanniam proficisci contendit, quod omnibus ferē Gallicis bellis hostibus nostris inde subministrāta auxilia intellegēbat et, si tempus anni ad bellum gerendum dēficeret, tamen māgnō sibi ūsu fore arbitrābātur, si modo Insulam adisset, genus hominum perspexisset, loca, portūs, aditūs cōgnōvisset; quae omnia ferē Gallis erant incōgnita. Neque enim temerē praeter mercātōrēs illō adit quisquam, neque his ipsis quicquam 10 praeter ōram maritimam atque eās regiōnēs, quae sunt contrā Galliās, nōtum est. Itaque vocātis ad sē undique mercātōribus, neque quanta esset Insulae māgnitūdō, neque quae aut quantae nātiōnēs incolerent, neque quem ūsum bellī habērent aut quibus Institūtis ūterentur, neque qui 15 essent ad māiōrem nāvium multitūdinem idōneī portūs, reperire poterat.

Mission of Volusenus. Arrival of envoys from Britain.

21. Ad haec cōgnōscenda, priusquam periculum faceret, idōneum esse arbitrātus C. Volusēnum cum nāvī longā praemittit. Huic mandat, ut explorātis omnibus rēbus 20 ad sē quam primum revertātur. Ipse cum omnibus cōpiis in Morinōs proficiscitur, quod inde erat brevissimus in Britanniam trāiectus. Hūc nāvēs undique ex finitimis regiōnibus et, quam superiōre aestāte ad Veneticum bellum fēcerat, classem iubet convenire. 25

Interim cōsiliō eius cōgnitō et per mercātōrēs perlātō ad Britannōs, ā complūribus insulae cīvitātibus ad eum lēgātī veniunt, quī polliceantur obsidēs dare atque imperiō populi Rōmānī obtemperāre. Quibus audītis, liberā
 5 liter pollicitus hortātusque, ut in eā sententiā permanērent, eōs domum remittit et cum eis unā Commium, quem ipse Atrebātibus superātis rēgem ibi cōstituerat, cūius et virtutem et cōsiliū probābat et quem sibi fidēlem esse arbitrābatur, cūiusque auctōritās in hīs regiōnibus māgnī
 10 habēbatur, mittit. Huic imperat, quās possit, adeat cīvitātēs hortēturque, ut populi Rōmānī fidem sequantur, sēque celeriter eō ventūrum nūntiet. Volusēnus perspectis regiōnibus, quantum ei facultātis darī potuit, quī nāvi egredi ac sē barbaris committere nōn auderet, quīntō 15 diē ad Caesarem revertitur, quaeque ibi perspexisset, renūntiat.

Submission of the Morini. The Roman fleet assembles.

22. Dum in hīs locis Caesar nāvium parandārum causā morātur, ex māgnā parte Morinōrum ad eum lēgātī vērunt, quī sē dē superiōris temporis cōsiliō excūsarent, 20 quod hominēs barbari et nostrae cōsuētūdinis imperitū bellum populō Rōmānō fēcissent, sēque ea, quae imperāssent, factūrōs pollicērentur. Hōc sibi Caesar satis opportunē accidissee arbitrātus, quod neque post tergum hostem relinquere volēbat neque bellī gerendī propter annī
 25 tempus facultātem habēbat neque hās tantulārum rērum occupatiōnēs Britanniae antepōnendās iūdicābat, māgnū eis numerum obsidum imperat. Quibus adductis eōs in fidem recipit.

Nāvibus circiter LXXX onerariis coactis, quot satis esse ad duās transportandās legiōnēs existimābat, quod praetereā nāvium longārum habēbat, quaestorī, lēgātis praefectisque distribuit. Hūc accēdēbant XVIII onerariae nāvēs, quae ex eō locō ā milibus passuum VIII ventō tenē- 5 bantur, quōminus in eundem portum venīre possent; hās equitibus distribuit. Reliquum exercitum Tituriō Sabīnō et Aurunculēiō Cottae lēgātis in Menapiōs atque in eōs pāgōs Morinōrum, ā quibus ad eum lēgātī nōn vēnerant, dūcendum dedit. Sulpicium Rūfum lēgātum cum eō 10 praesidiō, quod satis esse arbitrābatur, portum tenēre iussit.

The fleet sets sail and reaches the British coast.

23. His cōstitutis rēbus, nactus idōneam ad nāvigan- dum tempestātem tertiā ferē vigiliā solvit equitēsque in ulteriōrem portum prōgredi et nāvēs cōnscendere et sē 15 sequi iussit. Ā quibus cum paulō tardius esset administrātum, ipse hōrā diēi circiter quārtā cum primis nāvibus Britanniam attigit atque ibi in omnibus collibus expositās hostium cōpiās armātās cōspexit. Cūius locī haec erat nātūra atque ita montibus angustē mare continēbatur, utī 20 ex locis superiōribus in litus tēlum adigī posset. Hunc ad ēgrediendum nēquāquam idōneum locum arbitrātus, dum reliquae nāvēs eō convenīrent, ad hōram nōnam in ancoris expectāvit.

Interim lēgātis tribūnisque militum convocātis et, quae ex Volusēnō cōgnōvisset, et, quae fieri vellet, ostendit monuitque, ut rei militāris ratiō, māximē ut maritimae rēs postulārent, ut quae celerem atque instabilem mōtum habērent, ad nūtum et ad tempus omnēs rēs ab eīs administrārentur. Hīs dīmissīs et ventum et aestum ūnō tempore nactus secundum, datō sīgnō et sublātīs ancorīs circiter mīlia passuum VII ab eō locō prōgressus, apertō ac plānō litore nāvēs cōstituit.

insuēfactōs incitārent. Quibus rēbus nostrī perterriti atque hūius omnīnō generis pūgnae imperitī nōn eādem alacritāte ac studiō, quō in pedestribus ūti proeliis cōnsuērant, ūtēbantur.

The war galleys are sent to their aid.

25. Quod ubi Caesar animadvertit, nāvēs longās, quārum et speciēs erat barbaris inūsitiōrior et mōtus ad ūsum expeditior, paulum removērī ab onerāriis nāvibus et rēmīs incitārī et ad latus apertum hostium cōstitutū atque inde fundīs, sagittīs, tormentīs hostēs prōPELLI ac submovērī iussit; 10 quae rēs māgnō ūsuī nostrīs fuit. Nam et nāvium figurā et rēmōrum mōtū et inūsitiōtō genere tormentōrum permōti barbari cōstitērunt ac paulum etiam pedem rettulērunt.

Atque nostrīs militibus cūctantibus, māximē propter altitudinem maris, quī decimae legiōnis aquilam ferēbat, obtestātus deōs, ut ea rēs legiōnī fēliciter ēvenīret, “dēsillite,” 20 inquit, “commilitōnēs, nisi vultis aquilam hostibus prōdere; ego certē neum rei publicae atque imperātōrī officium praestiterō.” Hōc cum vōce māgnā dīxisset, sē ex nāvī prōiēcit atque in hostēs aquilam ferre coepit. versī ex nāvī dēsiluērunt. Hōs item ex proximīs nāvibus cum cōspexissent, subsecūtī hostibus adpropinquāvērunt.

After a stubborn contest a landing is effected.

26. Pūgnātum est ab utrīsq̄ue ācrit̄er. Nostri tamen, 15 quod neque ōrdinēs servāre neque firmiter insistere neque signa subsequī poterant atque alius aliā ex nāvī, quibuscumque signīs occurrerat, sē adgregābat, māgnopere perturbābantur; hostēs vērō, nōtīs omnibus vadīs, ubi ex lītore aliquōs singulārēs ex nāvī ēgredientēs cō- 10 spexerant, incitātīs equīs impeditōs adoriēbantur, plūrēs paucōs circumsistēbant, alii ab latere apertō in ūniversōs tēla cōiciēbant.

Quod cum animadvertisset Caesar, scaphās longārum nāvium, item speculātōria nāvigia militibus complēri 15 iussit et, quōs labōrantēs cōspexerat, hīs subsidia submittebat. Nostri, simul in āridō cōstitērunt, suis omnibus cōsecūtīs, in hostēs impetum fecērunt atque eōs in fugam dedērunt; neque longius prōsequī potuērunt, quod equitēs cursum tenēre atque insulam capere nōn 20 potuerant. Hōc ūnum ad pristinam fortūnam Caesarī defuit.

The Britons sue for peace. Caesar demands hostages.

27. Hostēs proeliō superātī, simul atque sē ex fugā recēpērunt, statim ad Caesarem lēgātōs dē pāce miserunt; obsidēs datūrōs, quaeque imperāss̄et, factūrōs 25 sēsē polliciti sunt. Ūnā cum hīs lēgātīs Commius Atrebās vēnit, quem sup̄rā dēmōnstrāveram ā Caesare in Britanniam praemissum. Hunc illi ē nāvi ēgressum, cum ad eōs orātōris modō Caesaris mandāta dēferret, comprehenderant atque in vincula coniēcērant; tum proeliō factō remisērunt, et in petendā pāce eius rei culpam in multitudinem contulērunt et, propter imprudentiam ut 5 ignōscerētur, petivērunt.

Caesar questus, quod, cum ultrō in continentem lēgātis missis pācem ab sē petissent, bellum sine causā intulissent, Ignōscere imprudentiae dīxit obsidēsque imperāvit; quōrum illi partem statim dedērunt, partem 10 ex longinquiōribus locis arcessitam paucis diēbus sēsē datūrōs dīxērunt. Intereā suōs remigrāre in agrōs iussērunt, prīncipēsque undique convenīre et sē civitātēque suās Caesarī commendāre coepērunt.

The cavalry transports are scattered by a severe storm. The rest of the fleet is much damaged by storm and tide.

28. His rēbus pāce cōfirmātā, post diem quārtum 15 quam est in Britanniam ventum, nāvēs xviii, dē quibus suprā dēmōstrātum est, quae equitēs sustulerant, ex superiōre portū lēni ventō solvērunt. Quae cum adpropinquārent Britanniae et ex castris vidērentur, tanta tempestās subitō coorta est, ut nūlla eārum cur-20 sum tenēre posset, sed aliae eōdem, unde erant propectae, referrentur, aliae ad inferiōrem partem insulae, quae est propius sōlis occāsum, māgnō suō cum periculō dēicerentur; quae tamen ancoris iactis cum flūctibus complērentur, necessariō adversā nocte in altum 25 prōvectae continentem petiērunt.

29. Eādem nocte accidit, ut esset lūna plēna, quī diēs maritimōs aestūs māximōs in Ōceanō efficere cōnsuevit, nostrisque id erat incōgnitum. Ita tūnō tempore et longās nāvēs, quibus Caesar exercitum trāsportandum cūrā-5 verat, quāsque in āridum subdūxerat, aestus complēbat, et onerāriās, quae ad ancorās erant dēligātae, tempestās adflictābat, neque ūlla nostris facultās aut administrandī aut auxiliandī dabātur. Complūribus nāvibus frāctis, reliquae cum essent, fūnibus, ancoris reliquisque armā-10 mentis āmissis, ad nāvigandum inūtilēs, māgna, id quod necesse erat accidere, tōtius exercitūs perturbātiō facta
est. Neque enim nāvēs erant aliae, quibus reportāri possent, et omnia deerant, quae ad reficiendās nāvēs erant ūsuī, et, quod omnibus cōnstābat hiemārī in Galliā 15 oportēre, frūmentum in hīs locis in hiemem prōvisum nōn erat.

The Britons plan to renew hostilities. Caesar repairs his fleet.

30. Quibus rēbus cōgnitis, prīncipēs Britanniae, quī post proelium ad Caesarem convēnerant, inter sē conlocūtī, cum et equitēs et nāvēs et frūmentum Rōmānis 20 deesse intellegerent et paucitātem mīlitum ex castrōrum exiguitāte cōgnōscerent, quae hōc erant etiam angustiōra, quod sine impedimentis Caesar legiōnēs trāsportāverat, optimum factū esse dūxērunt, rebellione factā frūmentō commeātūque nostrōs prohibēre et rem in hiemem prō-25 dūcere, quod, hīs superātis aut reditū interclūsīs, nēminem postea bellī inferendī causā in Britanniam trānsitūrum cōfidēbant. Itaque rūrsus coniūrātiōne factā paulatim ex castris discēdere et suos clam ex agris dēducere coepērunt.

31. At Caesar, etsi nondum eorum cōsilia cōgnōverat, tamen et ex ēventū nāvium suarum et ex eo, quod obsidēs dare intermiserant, fore id, quod accidit, suspiciābatur. 5 Itaque ad omnēs cāsūs subsidia comparābat. Nam et frūmentum ex agris cotīdiē in castra cōferēbat et, quae gravissimē adfectae erant nāvēs, earum māteriā atque aere ad reliquās reficiendās ūtēbatur et, quae ad eas res erant ūsul, ex continentī comparārī iubēbat. Itaque, cum 10 summō studiō ā militibus administrārētur, XII nāvibus āmissis, reliquīs ut nāvigārī satis commodē posset, effēcit.

The seventh legion is attacked.

32. Dum ea geruntur, legiōne ex cōsuētūdine ūnā frūmentātum missā, quae appellābatur septima, neque ūllā ad id tempus bellī suspiciōne interpositā, cum pars homi- 15 num in agris remanēret, pars etiam in castra ventitāret, ei, quī prō portis castrōrum in statiōne erant, Caesarī nūntiāvērunt, pulverem māiōrem, quam cōsuētūdō ferret, in eā parte vidērī, quam in partem legiō iter fēcisset. Caesar — id quod erat — suspicātus, aliquid novī ā bar- 20 baris initum cōsili, cohortēs, quae in statiōnibus erant, sēcum in eam partem proficisci, ex reliquīs duās in statiōnem succēdere, reliquās armārī et cōnfestim sēsē subsequi iussit.

Cum paulō longius ā castris prōcessisset, suos ab hos- 25 tibus premī atque aegrē sustinēre et cōnfertā legiōne ex omnibus partibus tēla cōici animadvertit. Nam quod, omni ex reliquis partibus dēmessō frūmentō, pars ūna erat reliqua, suspicātī hostēs, hūc nostrōs esse ventūrōs, noctū in silvis dēlituerant; tum dispersōs dēpositis armīs in metendō occupātōs subitō adortī, paucīs interfectīs reli-5 quōs incertīs ōrdinibus perturbāverant, simul equitātū atque essedīs circumdederant.

33. Genus hōc est ex essedīs pūgnae. Prīmō per omnēs partēs perequitant et tēla cōiciunt atque ipsō terrōre equōrum et strepitū rotārum ōrdinēs plērumque pertur-
 10 bant, et cum sē inter equitum turmās insinuāvērunt, ex essedīs dēsiliunt et pedibus proeliantur. Aurīgae interim paulātīm ex proeliō excēdunt atque ita currūs conlocant, ut, si illi ā multitūdine hostium premantur, expeditum ad suōs receptum habeant. Ita mōbilitātem equitum, stabili-15 tātem peditum in proeliīs praestant, ac tantum ūsū cotīdi-ānō et exercitātiōne efficiunt, utī in dēclivī ac praecipiti locō incitātōs equōs sustinēre et brevī moderārī ac flectere et per tēmōnem percurrere et in iugō insistere et sē inde in currūs citissimē recipere cōsuērint.

34. Quibus rēbus perturbātīs nostrīs novitāte pūgnae tempore opportūnissimō Caesar auxilium tulit; namque eius adventū hostēs cōstitērunt, nostrī sē ex timōrē recēpērunt. Quō factō ad lacesendum hostem et com-mittendum proelium aliēnum esse tempus arbitrātus, suō 25 sē locō continuit et brevī tempore intermissō in castra legiōnēs redūxit. Dum haec geruntur, nostrīs omnibus occupātīs, quī erant in agrīs reliquī, discessērunt.

The Britons collect larger forces and march to attack the Roman camp. They are defeated.

Secūtae sunt continuōs complūrēs diēs tempestātēs, quae et nostrōs in castris continērent et hostem ā pūgnā prohibērent. Interim barbarī nūntiōs in omnēs partēs dīmiserunt paucitātemque nostrōrum militum suis praedicāvērunt et, quanta praedae faciendae atque in perpetuum sui liberandi facultās darētur, si Rōmānōs castris expulissent, dēmōstrāvērunt. His rēbus celeriter magnā multitudīne peditātis equitātisque coactā, ad castra vērunt.

35. Caesar, etsi idem, quod superiōribus diēbus acciderat, fore vidēbat, ut, si essent hostēs pulsī, celeritāte periculum effugerent, tamen nactus equitēs circiter xxx, quōs Commius Atrebās, de quō ante dictum est, secum transportāverat, legiōnēs in aciē prō castris cōstituit. Commissō proeliō diūtius nostrōrum militum impetum hostēs ferre nōn potuerunt ac terga vertērunt. Quōs tantō spatiō secūtī, quantum cursū et vīribus efficere potuerunt, complūrēs ex eis occidērunt, deinde, omnibus longē lātēque aedificiis incēnsīs, se in castra recēperunt.

The number of hostages required of them is doubled. Caesar returns to Gaul.

36. Eōdem diē lēgātī ab hostibus missī ad Caesarem de pāce vērunt. His Caesar numerum obsidum, quem ante imperāverat, duplicāvit eōsque in continentem addūci iussit, quod propinquā diē aequinociti infirmis nāvibus hiemī nāvigationem subiciendam nōn. exstimābat. Ipse idōneam tempestātem nactus paulō post mediam noctem nāvēs solvit; quae omnēs incolumēs ad continentem pervēnerunt; sed ex eis onerariae duae eōdem portūs, quōs reliquae, capere nōn potuerunt et paulō infrā delātae sunt.

Caesar orders the construction of a larger fleet. He visits Illyricum.

1. L. Domitiō, Ap. Claudiō cōsulibus, discēdēns ab hībernīs Caesar in Italiā, ut quotanni facere cōsuērat, lēgātīs imperat, quōs legiōnibus praefēcerat, utī, quam plūrimās possint, hieme nāvēs aedificandās veterēsque re-5 ficiendās cūrent. Eārum modum fōrmamque dēmōstrat.
Ad celeritātem onerandī subductiōnisque paulō facit hu-miliōrēs, quam quibus in nostrō mari utī cōsuēvimus, atque id eō magis, quod propter crēbrās commūtātiōnēs aestuum minus māgnōs ibi flūctūs fierī cōgnōverat, ad 10 onera ac multitudinem iūmentōrum trānsportandam paulō lātiōrēs, quam quibus in reliquīs ūtimur maribus. Hās omnēs actuāriās imperat fierī, quam ad rem multum humilitās adiuvat. Ea, quae sunt ūsuī ad armandās nāvēs, ex Hispaniā adportārī iubet.
- 15 Ipse, conventibus Galliae citeriōris perāctis, in Illyricum proficiscitur, quod ā Pirūstis finitimam partem prōvinciae incursiōnibus vāstārī audiēbat. Eō cum vēnisset, civitātibus milites imperat certumque in locum convenīre iubet.
Quā rē nūntiātā Pirūstae lēgātōs ad eum mittunt, qui riis satisfacere. Perceptā orātiōne eōrum Caesar obsidēs imperat eōsque ad certam diem addūcī iubet; nisi ita fecerint, sēsē bellō civitātem persecūtūrum dēmōnstrat. Eīs ad diem adductīs, ut imperāverat, arbitrōs inter civitātēs dat, quī litem aestiment poenamque cōstituunt. 5

Caesar rejoins his army and finds the new fleet ready.

2. His cōfectīs rēbus conventibusque perāctīs, in citiōrem Galliam revertitur atque inde ad exercitum proficiscitur. Eō cum vēnisset, circumitīs omnibus hibernīs, singulārī militum studiō in summā omnium rērum inopiā circiter DC eius generis, cuius suprà dēmōnstrāvimus, 10 nāvēs et longās XXVIII invenit instrūctās neque multum abesse ab eō, quā paucīs diēbus dēdūcī possint. Conlaudātīs militibus atque eīs, quī negōtiō praefuerant, quid fieri velit, ostendit atque omnēs ad portum Itium convenire iubet, quō ex portū commodissimum in Britanniam 15 trāiectum esse cōgnōverat, circiter milium passuum XXX ā continentī; huic rei, quod satis esse vīsum est militum, relinquit. Ipse cum legiōnibus expeditīs IIII et equitibus DCCC in finēs Trēverōrum proficiscitur, quod hī neque ad concilia veniēbant neque imperiō pārēbant, Germā- 20 nōsque Trānsrhēnānōs sollicitāre dicēbantur.

Dissensions among the Treveri. Rivalry of Cingetorix and Indutiomarus.

3. Haec civitās longē plūrimum tōtius Galliae equitatū valet māgnāsque habet cōpiās peditum, Rhēnumque, ut suprà dēmōnstrāvimus, tangit. In eā civitāte duo dē principātū inter sē contendēbant, Indutiomārus et Cingetorix; ex quibus alter, simul atque de Caesaris legionumque adventu cognitum est, ad eum venit, se suosque omnes in officio futuros neque ab amicitia populi Romani defectos confirmavit, quaeque in Treveris gererentur, ostendit.

At Indutiomarus equitatum peditatumque cogere eisque, qui per aetatem in armis esse non poterant, in silvam Arduennam abditis, quae ingenti magnitudine per medios fines Treverorum a flumine Rheno ad initium Remorum 10 pertinet, bellum parare instituit; sed posteaquam non nulli principes ex ea civitate et auctoritate Cingetorigis adducti et adventu nostri exercitus perterriti ad Caesarem venērunt et de suis privatis rebus ab eo petere coeperunt, quoniam civitati consulere non possent, veritus, ne ab 15 omnibus desereretur, legatos ad Caesarem mittit: sese idcirco ab suis discedere atque ad eum venire noluisse, quo facilius civitatem in officio contineret, ne omnis nobilitatis discessu plebs propter imprudentiam liberetur; itaque civitatem in sua potestate esse, seque, si 20 Caesar permitteret, ad eum in castra venturum et suas civitatisque fortunās eius fidei permissurum.

Caesar favores Cingetorigis.

4. Caesar, etsi intellegebat, quā de causā ea dicerentur, quaeque eum res ab instituto consilio deterreret, tamen, ne aetatem in Treveris consumere cogeretur omnibus 25 rebus ad Britannicum bellum comparatis, Indutiomarum ad se cum c. obsidibus venire iussit. His adductis, in eis filio propinquisque eius omnibus, quos nominatim evocaverat, consolatus Indutiomarum hortatusque est, utī in officiō manēret; nihilō tamen sētius, prīncipibus Trēverōrum ad sē convocātis, hōs singillatim Cingetorigī conciliāvit, quod cum meritō eius ab sē fieri intellegēbat, tum māgnī interesse arbitrābatur eius auctōritātem inter suōs quam plūrimum valēre, cūius tam ēgregiam in sē 5 voluntātem perspexisset. Id factum graviter tulit Indutiomārus, suam grātiam inter suōs minuī, et, quī iam ante inimicō in nōs animō fuisset, multō gravius hōc dolōre exārsit.

The army assembles for a second expedition to Britain.

5. His rēbus cōstitutis Caesar ad portum Itium cum 10 legiōnibus pervenit. Ibi cōgnōscit, LX nāvēs, quae in Meldis factae erant, tempestāte rēiectās cursum tenēre nōn potuisse atque eōdem, unde erant profectae, revertisse; reliquās parātās ad nāvigandum atque omnibus rēbus instructās invenit. Eōdem equitātus tōtius Galliae 15 convenit, numerō milia IIII, prīncipēsque ex omnibus civitātibus; ex quibus perpaucōs, quōrum in sē fidem perspexerat, relinquere in Galliā, reliquōs obsidum locō sēcum dūcere dēcrēverat, quod, cum ipse abesset, mōtum Galliae verēbatur. 20

Dumnorix, the Haeduan, refuses to accompany the expedition.

6. Erat ūnā cum cēteris Dumnorix Haeduus, dē quō ante ā nōbis dictum est. Hunc sēcum habēre in prīmīs cōstituerat, quod eum cupidum rērum novārum, cupidum imperī, māgnī animī, māgnae inter Gallōs auctōritātis cōgnōverat. Accēdēbat hūc, quod in conciliō 25 Haeduōrum Dumnorix dixerat, sibi ā Caesare rēgnum cīvitātis dēferri; quod dictum Haedui graviter ferēbant, neque recūsandi aut dēprecandi causā lēgātōs ad Caesarem mittere audēbant. Id factum ex suis hospitibus Caesar cōgnōverat.

5 Ille omnibus primō precibus petere contendit, ut in Galliā relinqueretur, partim, quod insuetus nāvigandi mare timēret, partim, quod religiōnibus impediri sēsē diceret. Posteaquam id obstinatē sibi negari vidit, omni spē impetrandi adēptā, principēs Galliae sollicitāre, 10 sēvocāre singulōs hortārique coepit, uti in continentī remanērent; metū territāre: nōn sine causā fieri, ut Gallia omni nōbilitāte spoliārētur; id esse cōnsilium Caesaris, ut, quōs in cōspectū Galliae interficere verērētur, hōs omnēs in Britanniam trāductōs necāret; fidem 15 reliquīs interpōnere, iūs iūrandum poscere, ut, quod esse ex ūsū Galliae intellēxissent, cōmūnī cōnsiliō administrārent. Haec ā complūribus ad Caesarem dēferēbantur.

He escapes, but is pursued and killed.

7. Quā rē cōgnitā Caesar, quod tantum cīvitātī Haeduae dignitātis tribuēbat, coērcendum atque dēterrendum, qui- 20 buscumque rēbus posset, Dumnorīgem statuēbat; quod longius eius āmentiam prōgredi vidēbat, prōspiciendum, nē quid sibi ac rei pūblīcae nocēre posset. Itaque diēs circiter xxv in eō locō commorātus, quod chōrus ventus nāvigātiōnem impediēbat, qui māgnam partem omnis 25 temporis in hīs locīs flāre cōnsuēvit, dabat operam, ut in officio Dumnorīgem contineret, nihilō tamen sētius omnia eius cōnsilia cōgnōsceret; tandem idōneam nactus tempestātem militēs equitēsque cōnscendere nāvēs iubet.

At omnium impeditis animis, Dumnorix cum equitibus Haeduorum a castris insciente Caesare domum discedere coepit. Quam rem nuntiata Caesar, intermissa profectioatque omnibus rebus postpositis, magnam partem equitatus ad eum insequendum mittit retrahique imperat; si vim faciat neque pareat, interfici iubet, nihil hunc se absente pro sano facturum arbitratus, qui praesentis imperium neglexisset. Ille autem revocatus resistere ac se manu defendere suorumque fidem implorare coepit, saepe clamitans, liberum se liberaeque esse civitatis. Illi, ut erat imperatum, circumstant hominem atque interfi-ciunt; at equites Haedu ad Caesarem omnes revertuntur.

Labienus is left in command in Gaul. The passage to Britain.

8. His rebus gestis, Labienus in continenti cum III legionibus et equitum milibus duobus relictis, ut portus teneretur et rei frumentariae provideret, quaeque in Gallia gererentur, cognosceret consiliumque pro tempore et pro re caperet, ipse cum V legionibus et pari numero equi-tum, quem in continenti relinquebat, ad solis occasum naveis solvit. Et leni Africo proventus, media circiter nocte vento intermisso, cursum non tenuit et longius delatus aestu orta luce sub sinistra Britanniam relictam conspexit. Tum rursus aestus commutationem secutus remis contendit, ut eam partem insulae caperet, quam optimum esse egressum superiore aestate cognoverat.
 Quam in re admodum fuit militum virtus laudanda, qui vectoriis gravibusque navigiis non intermisso remigandi labore longarum navium cursum adaequarunt.

Accessum est ad Britanniam omnibus navibus meridianō ferē tempore, neque in eō locō hostis est vīsus; sed, ut postea Caesar ex captivīs cōgnōvit, cum māgnae manūs eō convēnissent, multitudīne nāvium perterritae, quae cum annōtinīs privātisque, quās suī quisque commodi causā fēcerat, amplius dccc unō erant visae tempore, ā litore discesserant ac sē in superiōra loca abdidérant.

The landing. Caesar attacks and defeats the enemy.

9. Caesar, expositō exercitū et locō castris idōneō captō, ubi ex captivīs cōgnōvit, quō in locō hostium cōpiae cōnsēdissent, cohortibus x ad mare relictis et 10 equitibus ccc, quī praesidiō nāvibus essent, dē tertiā vigiliā ad hostēs contendit, eō minus veritus nāvibus, quod in litore molli atque apertō deligātās ad ancorās relinquebat. Eī praesidiō nāvibusque Q. Atrium prae-fecit. Ipse noctū prōgressus milia passuum circiter xii 15 hostium cōpiās cōspicātus est.

TESTUDO.

Illi equitatū atque essedis ad flūmen prōgressi ex locō superiōre nostrōs prohibēre et proelium committere coe-pērunt. Repulsi ab equitatū sē in silvās abdidērunt, locum nacti ēgregiē et nātūrā et opere mūnitum, quem domesticī belli, ut vidēbatur, causā iam ante praeparā- 5 verant; nam crēbris arboribus succisīs omnēs introitus erant praeclūsi. Ipsī ex silvis rārī prōpugnābant nos-trōsque intrā mūnitiōnēs ingredi prohibēbant. At militēs legiōnis septimae testūdine factā et aggere ad mūnitiōnēs adiectō locum cēpērunt eōsque ex silvis expulērunt, paucis 10 vulneribus acceptis. Sed eōs fugientēs longius Caesar prōsequi vetuit, et quod loci nātūrā ignorābat, et quod, māgnā parte diēi cōsumptā, mūnitiōni castrōrum tempus relinqui volēbat.

The fleet is damaged by a storm.

10. Postridiē eius diēi māne tripertitō militēs equi- 15 tēsque in expeditiōnem misit, ut eōs, qui fūgerant, persequerentur. His aliquantum itineris prōgressis, cum iam extrēmī essent in prōspectū, equitēs a Q. Atrio ad Caesarem vērunt, qui nūntiārent, superiōre nocte mā-ximā coortā tempestāte prope omnēs nāvēs adflētās atque 20 in litus ēiectās esse, quod neque ancorae fūnēsque sus-tinērent neque nautae gubernātōrēsque vim tempestātis pati possent; itaque ex eō concursū nāvium māgnū esse incommodum acceptum.

11. His rēbus cōgnitis Caesar legiōnēs equitatūque 25 revocārī atque in itinere resistere iubet, ipse ad nāvēs revertitur; eadem ferē, quae ex nūntiis cōgnōverat, cōram perspicit, sic ut āmissis circiter XL nāvibus reliquae tamen reficī posse māgnō negōtiō vidērentur. Itaque ex legiōnibus fabrōs dēligit et ex continentī aliōs arcessī iubet; Labiēnō scribit, ut, quam plūrimās possit, eīs legiōnibus, quae sint apud eum, nāvēs instituat. Ipse, etsi rēs erat multae operae ac labōris, tamen commodissimum esse statuit, omnēs nāvēs subducī et cum castrīs unā mūnitiōne coniungi. In hīs rēbus circiter diēs x cōsumit, nē nocturnis quidem temporibus ad labōrem militum intermissis.

The Britons unite forces under one leader.

10 Subductis nāvibus castrisque ēgregiē mūnītis, eādem cōpiās, quās ante, praesidiō nāvibus relinquit, ipse eōdem, unde redierat, proficiscitur. Eō cum vēnisset, maiōrēs iam undique in eum locum cōpiae Britannōrum convēnerant, summā imperī bellique administrandī commūni
20 tōtī bellō imperiōque praefecerant.

Origin of the Britons. Resources of the country.

12. Britanniae pars interior ab eīs incolitur, quōs nātōs in Insulā ipsā memoriā prōditum dīcunt, maritima pars ab eīs, quī praedae ac bellī inferendī causā ex Belgio trānsiērunt—quī omnēs ferē Isdem nōminibus cīvitātum et bellō inlātō ibi remānsērunt atque agrōs colere coepērunt. Hominum est infīnīta multītūdō, crēberrimaque aedificia ferē Gallicīs cōnsimilia, pecoris māgnus numerus. Utuntur aut aere aut nummō aureō aut tāleīs ferreis ad certum pondus exāminātīs prō nummō. Nāscitur ibi 5 plumbum album in mediterrāneīs regiōnibus, in maritimīs ferrum, sed ēius exigua est cōpia; aere utuntur importātō. Māteria cūiusque generis ut in Galliā est praeter fāgum atque abietem. Leporem et gallīnam et ānserem gustāre fās nōn putant; haec tamen alunt animī volup-10 tātisque causā. Loca sunt temperātiōra quam in Galliā, remissiōribus frīgoribus.
25 appellantur, quibus ortī ex cīvitātibus eō pervēnerunt—

Shape and extent of the island.

13. Insula nātūrā triquetra, cūius ūnum latus est contrā Galliam. Hūius lateris alter angulus, quī est ad Cantium, quō ferē omnēs ex Galliā nāvēs adpelluntur, 15 ad orientem sōlem, inferior ad merīdiem spectat. Hōc latus tenet circiter milia passuum D.

Alterum vergit ad Hispāniam atque occidentem sōlem; quā ex parte est Hibernia insula, dīmidīō minor, ut exīstimātur, quam Britannia, sed parī spatiō trāsmīssus 20 atque ex Galliā est in Britanniam. In hōc mediō cursū est insula, quae appellātur Mona; complūrēs praeterea minōrēs obiectae insulae exīstimantur, dē quibus insulis nōn nullī scripsērunt diēs continuōs xxx sub brūmam esse noctem. Nōs nihil dē eō percontātiōnibus reperiē-25 bāmus, nisi certīs ex aquā mēnsūris breviōrēs esse quam in continentī noctēs vidēbāmus. Hūius est longitūdō lateris, ut fert illōrum opīniō, dcc milium.

Tertium est contrā septentrionēs, cui partī nūlla est obiecta terra; sed eius angulus alter māximē ad Germāniam spectat. Hōc mīlium passuum dccc in longitudinem esse existimātur. Ita omnis insula est in circuitū 5 vīciēs centum mīlium passuum.

Character and customs of the inhabitants.

14. Ex his omnibus longē sunt hūmānissimī, quī Cantium incolunt, quae regiō est maritima omnis, neque multum ā Gallicā differunt cōsuetūdine. Interiōrēs plērique frūmenta nōn serunt, sed lacte et carne vīvunt
10 pellibusque sunt vestītī. Omnēs vērō sē Britannī vitrō inficiunt, quod caeruleum efficit colōrem, atque hōc horribiliōrēs sunt in pūgnā aspectū; capillōque sunt prōmissō atque omnī parte corporis rāsā praeter caput et lābrum superius. Uxōrēs habent dēnī duodēnique inter sē 15 commūnēs et māximē frātrēs cum frātribus parentēscue cum liberīs; sed, quī sunt ex eis nātī, eōrum habentur liberī, quō primum virgō quaeque dēducta est.

Baffling character of British tactics.

15. Equitēs hostium essedāriique ācrit̄er proeliō cum equitatū nostrō in itinere cōnflīxērunt, ita tamen, ut nostrī
20 omnibus partibus superiōrēs fuerint atque eōs in silvās collēsque compulerint; sed complūribus interfectīs, cupidius insecūtī nōn nūllōs ex suis āmīsērunt. At illī intermissō spatiō, imprudentibus nostrīs atque occupātīs in mūnitiōne castrōrum, subitō sē ex silvīs eiēcērunt
25 impetūque in eōs factō, quī erant in statiōne prō castrīs conlocātī, ācrit̄er pūgnāvērunt, duābusque missīs subsidio cohortibus à Caesare, atque hīs primīs legiōnum duārum, cum eae perexiguō intermissō locī spatiō inter sē cōstitissent, novō genere pūgnae perterritis nostris per mediōs audācissimē perrūpērunt sēque inde incolumēs recēpērunt. Eō diē Q. Laberius Dūrus, tribūnus mīlitum, interficitur. 5 Illi plūribus submissis cohortibus repelluntur.

16. Tōtō hōc in genere pūgnae, cum sub oculis omnium ac prō castris dīmicārētur, intellēctum est, nostrōs propter gravitātem armōrum, quod neque īnsequī cēdentēs possent neque ab signīs discēdere audērent, minus aptōs esse ad 10 hūius generis hostem, equitēs autem māgnō cum periculō proeliō dīmicāre, proptereā quod illi etiam cōnsultō plērumque cēderent et, cum paulum ab legiōnibus nostrōs remōvissent, ex essedis dēsilīrent et pedibus disparī proeliō contenderent. Equestris autem proeli ratiō et cēden- 15 tibus et īnsequentibus pār atque idem periculum īnferēbat. Accēdēbat hūc, ut numquam cōfertī, sed rārī māgnisque intervāllis proeliārentur statīōnēsque dispositās habērent, atque aliōs aliī deinceps exciperent integrīque et recentēs dēfatīgātis succēderent. 20

The Britons are defeated. Their forces break up.

17. Posterō diē procul à castris hostēs in collibus cōstitērunt rārīque sē ostendere et lēnius quam prīdiē nostrōs equitēs proeliō lacessere coepērunt. Sed merīdiē, cum Caesar pābulandī causā III legiōnēs atque omnem equitātum cum C. Trebōniō lēgātō mīsisset, repente ex 25 omnibus partibus ad pābulātōrēs advolāvērunt, sic utī ab signīs legiōnibusque nōn absisterent. Nostrī ācritē in eōs impetū factō reppulērunt neque finem sequendī fēcē-runt, quoad subsidiō cōfisi equitēs, cum post sē legiōnēs vidērent, praecipitēs hostēs ēgērunt, māgnōque eōrum numerō interfectō neque suī colligendī neque cōsistendī aut ex essedīs dēsiliendī facultātem dedērunt. Ex hāc fugā prōtinus, quae undique convēnerant, auxilia discessērunt, neque post id tempus umquam summīs nobīs cum cōpiīs hostēs contendērunt.

Caesar crosses the Thames. Tactics of Cassivellaunus.

18. Caesar cōgnitō cōsiliō eōrum ad flūmen Tamesim in finēs Cassivellaunī exercitum dūxit; quod flūmen unō omnīnō locō pedibus, atque hōc aegrē, trānsīrī potest. Eō cum vēnisset, animadvertit, ad alteram flūminis ripam māgnās esse cōpiās hostium instrūctās. Rīpa autem erat acūtīs sudibus praefixisque mūnita, eiusdemque generis sub aquā dēfixae sudēs flūmine tegēbantur. Hīs rēbus cōgnitis ā captivīs perfugisque, Caesar praemissō equitātū cōnfestim legiōnēs subsequi iussit. Sed eā celeritāte atque eō impetū militēs iērunt, cum capite sōlō ex aquā exstārent, ut hostēs impetum legiōnum atque equitum sustinēre nōn possent ripāsque dīmitterent ac sē fugae mandārent.

19. Cassivellaunus, ut suprà dēmōstrāvimus, omni dēpositā spē contentiōnis, dīmissis ampliōribus cōpiīs, milibus circiter IIII essedāriōrum relictis, itinera nostrā servābat paulumque ex viā excēdēbat locisque impeditis ac silvestribus sēsē occultābat atque eis regiōnibus, quibus nōs iter factūrōs cōgnōverat, pecora atque hominēs ex agrīs in silvās compellēbat et, cum equitātus noster liberius praedandī vāstandīque causā sē in agrōs effunderet, omnibus viis sēmitisque essedāriōs ex silvis ēmittēbat et māgnō cum periculō nostrōrum equitum cum hīs cōnfligēbat atque hōc metū lātius vagārī prohibēbat. Relinquēbātur, ut neque longius ab agmine legiōnum discēdi Caesar paterētur, et tantum agrīs vāstandis incendii⁵que faciendis hostibus nocērētur, quantum in labōre atque itinere legiōnāriī militēs efficere poterant.

Certain tribes submit to Caesar.

20. Interim Trinovantēs, prope firmissima eārum regiōnum cīvitās, ex quā Mandubracius adulēscēns Caesaris fidem secūtus ad eum in continentem Galliam vēnerat, — cūius pater in eā cīvitāte rēgnū obtinuerat interfectusque erat ā Cassivellaunō, ipse fugā mortem vitāverat, — lēgātōs ad Caesarem mittunt pollicenturque, sēsē ei deditūrōs atque imperāta factūrōs; petunt, ut Mandubracium ab iniuriā Cassivellaunī dēfendat atque in cīvitātē mittat, 15 quī praesit imperiumque obtineat. Hīs Caesar imperat obsidēs XL frūmentumque exercituī Mandubraciumque ad eōs mittit. Illī imperāta celeriter fēcērunt, obsidēs ad numerum frūmentumque mīsērunt.

21. Trinovantibus dēfēnsīs atque ab omni militum²⁰ iniuriā prohibitīs, Cēnimāgnī, Segontiāci, Ancalitēs, Bi-broci, Cassī lēgātiōnibus missīs sēsē Caesarī dēdunt. Ab hīs cōgnōscit, nōn longē ex eō locō oppidum Cassivellaunī abesse silvis palūdibusque mūnītum, quō satis māgnus hominum pecorisque numerus convēnerit. Oppidum au-²⁵tem Britannī vocant, cum silvās impeditās vāllō atque fossā mūniērunt, quō incursiōnis hostium vitandae causā convenire cōnsuērunt. Eō proficiscitur cum legiōnibus; locum reperit egregiē nātūrā atque opere mūnītum ;

 tamen hunc duābus ex partibus oppugnāre contendit.
 Hostēs paulisper morātī militum nostrōrum impetum nōn tulērunt sēsēque aliā ex parte oppidi eiēcērunt.
 5 Māgnus ibi numerus pecoris repertus multīque in fugā

ASSIGNMENT OF WINTER QUARTERS, 24-25.

The legions are distributed in winter quarters. Murder of Tasgetius, king of the Carnutes.

24. Subductīs nāvibus conciliōque Gallōrum Samarobrī- vae perāctō, quod eō annō frūmentum in Galliā propter siccitātēs angustius prōvenerat, coāctus est aliter ac supe- 15 riōribus annīs exercitum in hibernīs conlocāre legiōnēsque in plūrēs civitatēs distribuere. Ex quibus ūnam in Morinōs dūcendam C. Fabiō lēgātō dedit, alteram in Nervios Q. Cicerōnī, tertiam in Esviōs L. Rōsciō, quārtam in Rēmīs cum T. Labiēnō in cōfiniō Trēverōrum hiemāre 20 iussit, trēs in Bellovacīs conlocāvit; hīs M. Crassum et L. Munātium Plancum et C. Trebōnium lēgātōs praefecit. Ūnam legiōnem, quam proximē trāns Padum cōscripse- rat, et cohortēs v in Eburōnēs, quōrum pars māxima est inter Mosam ac Rhēnum, quī sub imperiō Ambiorīgis 25 et Catuvolci erant, misit. His militibus Q. Titurium Sabinum et L. Aurunculeium Cottam legatos praeesse iussit. Ad hunc modum distributis legionibus facillime inopiae rei frumentariae sese mederi posse existimavit. Atque

 5 harum tamen omnium legionum hiberna praeter eam, quam L. Roscio in pacatissimam et quietissimam partem ducendam dederat, milibus passuum c continebantur. Ipse interea, quoad legiones conlocatas munitaque hiberna cognovisset, in Galliam morari constituit.

10 25. Erat in Carnutibus summo loco natus Tasgetius, cuius maiores in sua civitate regnum obtinuerant. Huic Caesar pro eius virtute atque in se benevolentia, quod in omnibus bellis singulari eius opera fuerat usus, maiorum locum restituerat. Tertium iam hunc annum
 20 opera cognoverit Tasgetium interfectum, hos comprehensos ad se mittere. Interim ab omnibus, legatis quaestoreque, quibus legiones tradiderat, certior factus est, in hiberna perventum locumque hibernis esse munitum.

DEFEAT OF SABINUS AND COTTA, 26-27.

Attack of the Eburones on the winter camp of Sabinus and Cotta.

Conference with the Gauls.

26. Diebus circiter xv, quibus in hiberna ventum est,
 25 initium repentinum tumultus ac defectionis ortum est ab

Ambiorige et Catuvolcō; quī cum ad finēs rēgnī suī Sabīnō Cottaēque praestō fuissent frūmentumque in hiberna comportāvissent, Indūtiomārī Trēverī nūntiis impulsī suōs concitāvērunt subitōque oppressis lignātōribus magnā manū ad castra oppugnanda vēērunt. Cum celeriter 5 nostrī arma cēpissent vāllumque ascendissent atque tūā ex parte Hispānīs equitibus ēmissis equestri proeliō superiōrēs fuissent, dēspērātā rē hostēs suōs ab oppugnātiōne redūxērunt. Tum suō mōre conclāmāvērunt, utī aliquī ex nostrīs ad colloquium prōdīret: habēre sēsē, 10 quae dē rē commūnī dicere vellent, quibus rēbus contrōversīas minui posse spērārent.

27. Mittitur ad eōs colloquendī causā C. Arpinēius, eques Rōmānus, familiāris Q. Titūrī, et Q. Iūnius ex Hispāniā quidam, quī iam ante missū Caesaris ad Am-15 biorīgem ventitāre cōsuērat. Apud quōs Ambiorix ad hunc modum locūtus est:

Speech of Ambiorix. The Romans are urged to abandon their camp, and are treacherously promised protection.

Sēsē prō Caesaris in sē beneficiis plūrimum eī cōnfītērī dēbēre, quod eius operā stipendiō liberātus esset, quod Atuatucīs, finitimīs suis, pendere cōsuēsset, quodque eī 20 et filius et frātris filius ā Caesare remissī essent, quōs Atuatueī obsidum numerō missōs apud sē in servitūte et catēnīs tenuissent; neque id, quod fēcērit dē oppugnātiōne castrōrum, aut iūdiciō aut voluntāte suā fēcisse, sed coāctū cīvitātis, suaque esse eius modī imperia, ut nōn minus 25 habēret iūris in sē multitūdō quam ipse in multitūdinem.

Gallōrum coniūrātiōnī resistere nōn potuerit. Id sē facile ex humilitāte suā probāre posse, quod nōn adeō sit im- peritus rērum, ut suis cōpiis populum Rōmānum superārī posse cōnfidat. Sed esse Galliae commūne cōnsilium; 5 omnibus hībernīs Caesaris oppūgnandīs hunc esse dictum diem, nē qua legiō alterī legiōnī subsidiō venīre posset. Nōn facile Gallōs Gallīs negāre potuisse, praesertim cum dē recuperandā commūnī libertāte cōnsilium initum vidērētur.

10 Quibus quoniam prō pietāte satisfēcerit, habēre nunc sē ratiōnem officiī prō beneficiīs Caesaris; monēre, orāre *Titūrium prō hospitio, ut suae ac mīlitum salūtī cōnsulat. Māgnam manum Germānōrum conductam Rhēnum trāns- isse; hanc adfore bīduō. Ipsōrum esse cōnsilium, ve- 15 lintne, prius quam finitimī sentiant, ēductōs ex hībernīs mīlitēs aut ad Cicerōnem aut ad Labiēnum dēducere, quōrum alter mīlia passuum circiter L, alter paulō am- plius ab eīs absit. Illud sē pollicērī et iūre iūrando cōn- firmāre, tūtum sē iter per suōs finēs datūrum. Quod 20 cum faciat, et cīvitātī sēsē cōnsulere, quod hībernīs levētur, et Caesarī prō eius meritīs grātiā referre. Hāc orātiōne habitā discēdit Ambiorix.

Sabinus and Cotta disagree. Cotta is opposed to the abandon- ment of the camp.

28. Arpinēius et Iūnius, quae audierant, ad lēgātōs dēferunt. Illī repentinā rē perturbātī, etsī ab hoste ea 25 dicēbantur, tamen nōn negligenda existimābant, māxi- mēque hāc rē permovēbantur, quod cīvitātem ignōbilem atque humilem Eburōnum suā sponte populō Rōmānō bellum facere ausam vix erat crēdendum. Itaque ad cōsiliū rem dēferunt, māgnaque inter eōs exsistit contrōversia.

L. Aurunculēius complūrēsque tribūnī mīlitum et primōrum ōrdinum centuriōnēs nihil temerē agendum neque 5 ex hibernīs iniussū Caesaris discēdendum existimābant; quantāsvīs cōpiās etiam Germānōrum sustinēri posse mūnītis hibernīs docēbant; rem esse testimoniō, quod primum hostium impetum multis ultrō vulneribus inlātis fortissimē sustinuerint; rē frūmentāriā nōn premī; in-10 tereā et ex proximīs hibernīs et ā Caesare conventūra subsidia; postrēmō, quid esse levius aut turpius quam auctōre hoste dē summīs rēbus capere cōsiliū?

Sabinus favors acceptance of the offer of the Gauls.

29. Contrā ea Titūrius sērō factūrōs clāmitābat, cum māiōrēs manūs hostium adiūctis Germānis convēnissent, 15 aut cum aliquid calamitātis in proximīs hibernīs esset acceptum. Brevem cōsulendī esse occāsiōnem. Caesarem sē arbitrārī profectum in Italiā; neque aliter Carnutēs interficiundī Tasgetī cōsiliū fuisse captūrōs, neque Eburōnēs, sī ille adesset, tantā contemptiōne nostrī 20 ad castra ventūrōs. Sēsē nōn hostem auctōrem, sed rem spectāre; subesse Rhēnum; māgnō esse Germānis dolōri Ariovistī mortem et superiōrēs nostrās victōriās; ardēre Galliā tot contumēliis acceptis sub populi Rōmāni imperium redāctā, superiōre glōriā rei militāris exstinctā. 25

Postrēmō, quis hōc sibi persuādēret, sine certā spē Ambiorigem ad eius modī cōsiliū dēscendisse? Suam sententiam in utramque partem esse tūtā: sī nihil esset dūrius, nullō cum periculō ad proximam legiōnem perventūrōs; sī Gallia omnis cum Germānis cōsentīret, ūnam esse in celeritāte positam salutē. Cottae quidem atque eōrum, quī dissentīrent, cōsiliū quem habere exitum? In quō sī nōn praesēns periculum, at certē longinquā obsidiōne famēs esset timenda.

After a long dispute Sabinus's view prevails.

30. Hāc in utramque partem disputātiōne habitā, cum ā Cottā primisque ordinibus ācritur resisteretur, “vincite,” inquit, “sī ita vultis,” Sabinus, et id clāriore vōce, ut 10 magna pars militum exaudiret; “neque is sum,” inquit, “quī gravissimē ex vōbis mortis periculō terrear. Hī sapient; sī gravius quid acciderit, abs tē ratiōnem reposcent; quī, sī per tē liceat, perendinō diē cum proximis hibernis coniūcti commūnem cum reliquis belli 15 cāsum sustineant, nōn reiecti et relēgati longē ā ceteris aut ferrō aut fame intereant.” guōre militum et vigiliis periculum augeatur. Primā luce sic ex castris proficiscuntur, ut quibus esset persuasum, nōn ab hoste, sed ab homine amicissimō cōnsilium datum, longissimō agmine māximisque impedimentis.

31. Cōsurgitur ex cōsiliō; comprehendunt utrumque et ōrant, nē suā dissēnsiōne et pertināciā rem in summum periculum dēducant; facilem esse rem, seu maneant, seu 20 proficiscantur, sī modo ūnum omnēs sentiant ac probent; contrā in dissēnsiōne nullam sē salutē perspicere. Rēs disputātiōne ad mediam noctem perdūcitur. Tandem dat Cotta permōtus manūs; superat sententia Sabinī. Prōnūtiātur, primā luce itūrōs.

25 Cōnsūmitur vigiliis reliqua pars noctis, cum sua quisque mīles circumspiceret, quid sēcum portāre posset, quid ex instrūmentō hibernōrum relinquere cōgeretur. Omnia excōgitantur, quārē nec sine periculō maneātur et lan-

The Romans are led into an ambushade.

32. At hostēs, posteaquam ex nocturnō fremitū vigiliis- 5 que dē profectiōne eōrum sēnsērunt, conlocātis insidiis bipertitō in silvis opportunō atque occultō locō ā milibus passuum circiter duōbus, Rōmānōrum adventum exspectabant, et cum sē māior pars agminis in māgnam convallem dēmīisset, ex utrāque parte eius vallis subitō sē ostendē- 10 runt, novissimōsque premere et primōs prohibēre ascēnsū atque inīquissimō nostris locō proelium committere coepērunt.

33. Tum dēmum Titūrius, quī nihil ante prōvidisset, trepidāre et concursāre cohortēsque dispōnere, haec tamen 15 ipsa timidē atque ut eum omnia dēficere vidērentur; quod plērumque eis accidere cōsuēvit, quī in ipsō negotiō cōnsilium capere cōguntur. At Cotta, quī cōgitāisset, haec posse in itinere accidere, atque ob eam causam profectiōnis auctor nōn fuisset, nullā in rē commūni salutē 20 deerat et in appellandis cohortandisque militibus imperātoris et in pūgnā militis officia praestābat.

Cum propter longitūdinem agminis nōn facile per sē omnia obīre et, quid quōque locō faciendum esset, prōvidēre possent, iussērunt prōnūtiārī, ut impedimenta 25 relinquerent atque in orbem cōsisterent. Quod cōnsilium, etsī in eius modī cāsū reprehendendum nōn est, tamen incommodē cecidit; nam et nostris militibus spem minuit et hostēs ad pūgnam alacriōrēs effēcit, quod nōn sine summō timōre et dēspēratiōne id factum vidēbātur. Praetereā accidit, quod fieri necesse erat, ut vulgō milites ab signis discēderent, quaeque quisque eōrum cārissima habēret, ab impedimentis petere atque arripere properāret, clamōre et flētū omnia complērentur.

The Gauls tire them out by dilatory tactics.

34. At barbaris cōsiliū nōn defuit. Nam ducēs eōrum tōtā aciē prōnūtiārī iussērunt, nē quis ab locō discēderet; illōrum esse praedam atque illis reservārī, quaecumque Rōmānī reliquissent; proinde omnia in victoriā posita existimārent. Erant et virtūte et studiō pūgnandī parēs nostrī; tametsī ab duce et ā fortūnā dēserēbantur, tamen omnem spem salutis in virtūte pōnēbant, et quotiēns quaeque cohors prōcurrerat, ab eā parte magnus numerus hostium cadēbat. Quā rē animadversā Ambiorix prōnūtiārī iubet, ut procul tēla cōiciant ne propius accēdant et, quam in partem Rōmānī impetum fēcerint, cēdant—levitāte armōrum et cotīdiānā exercitātiōne nihil eis nocēri posse,—rūsus sē ad signa recipi-entēs insequantur.

35. Quō praeceptō ab eis diligentissimē observātō, cum quaequam cohors ex orbe excesserat atque impetum fēcerat, hostēs vēlōcissimē refugiēbant. Interim eam partem nudārī necesse erat et ab latere apertō tēla recipere. Rūsus, cum in eum locum, unde erant prōgressī, revertī coeperant, et ab eis, quī cesserant, et ab eis, quī proximī steterant, circumveniēbantur; sīn autem locum tenēre vellent, nec virtūtī locus relinquebātur neque ab tantā multitūdine cōiecta tēla cōfertī vitāre poterant. Ta-men tot incommodis cōflictātī, multis vulneribus acceptis resistēbant et magnā parte diēi cōsūptā, cum ā primā lūce ad hōram octāvam pūgnārētur, nihil, quod ipsis esset indīgnum, committēbant. Tum

 T. Balventiō, quī superiōre annō primum pilum dūxerat, virō fortī et māgnae auctō-ritātis, utrumque femur trāgulā trāicitur;
 Q. Lūcānius, eiusdem ordinis, fortissimē pūgnāns, dum circumventō filiō subvenit,¹⁹ interficitur; L. Cotta lēgātus omnēs cohortēs ordinēsque adhortāns in adversum ōs fundā vulnerātur.

FUNDA.

Sabinus is treacherously slain. Fate of the remainder.

36. His rēbus permōtus Q. Titūrius, cum procul Am-biorigem suōs cohortantem cōspexisset, interpretem suum Cn. Pompēium ad eum mittit rogātum, ut sibi militibusque parcat. Ille appellātus respondet: sī velit sēcum conloquī, licēre; spērāre ā multitūdine impetrārī posse, quod ad militum salutem pertineat; ipsī vērō nihil nocitum irī, inque eam rem sē suam fidem interpōnere.²⁰
 Ille cum Cottā sauciō commūnicat, sī videātur, pūgnā ut excēdant et cum Ambiorige unā conloquantur; spē-rāre sē, ab eō dē suā ac militum salutē impetrārī posse.
 Cotta sē ad armātum hostem itūrum negat atque in eō

37. Sabinus, quōs in praesentiā tribūnōs militum cir-cum sē habēbat, et primōrum ordinum centuriōnēs sē sequī iubet, et cum propius Ambiorigem accessisset, iussus arma abicere imperātum facit suisque, ut idem faciant, imperat. Interim, dum de condicionibus inter se agunt longiorque consulto ab Ambiorige instituitur 5 sermō, paulatim circumventus interficitur.

AQUILA.

Tum vero suo more victoriam clamant atque ululatum tollunt impetūque in nostros facto ordines
 10 perturbant. Ibi L. Cotta pugnans interficitur cum maxima parte militum. Reliqui se in castra recipiunt, unde erant egressi. Ex quibus L. Petrosidius aquilifer, cum magna multitudine 15 hostium premeretur, aquilam intra vallum proicit; ipse pro castris fortissimē pugnans occiditur. Illi aegre ad noctem oppugnationem sustinent; nocte ad unum omnes desperata sa-20 lute se ipsi interficiunt. Pauci ex proelio elapsi incertis itineribus per silvas ad T. Labienum legatum in hiberna perveniunt atque eum de rebus gestis certiores faciunt.

SIEGE OF CICERO'S CAMP, 38-53.

The Gauls attack the winter camp of Quintus Cicero.

25 38. Hanc victoriā sublatus Ambiorix statim cum equitatu in Atuaticos, qui erant eius regno finitimi, proficiscitur, neque noctem neque diem intermittit, pedi-tātumque sē subsequi iubet. Rē dēmōstratā Atuatucisque concitātis posterō diē in Nervios pervenit hortaturque, nē sui in perpetuum liberandī atque ulciscendī Rōmānōs pro eis, quās accēperint, iniuriis occāsiōnem dīmittant. Interfectōs esse lēgātōs duos 5 māgnamque partem exercitūs interisse dēmōstrat; nihil esse negōti, subitō oppressam legiōnem, quae cum Cicerōne hiemet, interfici; sē ad eam rem profitetur adiūtorem. Facile hāc orātiōne Nervius persuādet.

39. Itaque cōfestim dīmissis nūntiis ad Ceutronēs, 10 Grudiōs, Levācōs, Pleumoxiōs, Geidumnōs, quī omnēs sub eōrum imperiō sunt, quam māximās possunt mānūs cōgunt, et dē imprōvisō ad Cicerōnis hiberna advolant, nōndum ad eum fāmā dē Titūrī morte perlātā. Huic quoque accidit, quod fuit necesse, ut nōn nulli milites, 15 quī lignātiōnis mūnitiōnisque causā in silvās discessissent, repentinō equitum adventū interciperentur. His circumventis māgnā manū Eburōnēs, Nervii, Atuatuci atque hōrum omnium socii et clientēs legiōnem oppugnāre incipiunt. Nostrī celeriter ad arma concurrunt, 20 vāllum cōscendunt. Aegrē is diēs sustentātur, quod omnem spem hostēs in celeritāte pōnebant atque hanc adepti victōriam in perpetuum sē fore victōrēs cōfidēbant.

40. Mittuntur ad Caesarem cōfestim ā Cicerōne lit- 25 terae, māgnis propositis praemiis, si pertulissent; obsessis omnibus viis, missi intercipiuntur. Noctū ex materiā, quam mūnitiōnis causā comportāverant, turrēs admodum cxx excitantur incredibili celeritāte; quae deesse operi vidēbantur, perficiuntur. Hostēs posterō diē multō maiō- 30

ribus coactis cōpiis castra oppugnānt, fossam complent. A nostris eādē ratiōe, quā prīdiē, resistitur.

Hōc idē reliquīs deinceps fit diēbus. Nulla pars nocturni temporis ad labōrem intermittitur; nōn aegrīs, nōn vulnerātis facultās ~~quiētis~~ datur. Quaecumque ad proximī diēi oppugnātiōnem opus sunt, noctū comparantur; multae praeustae sudēs, māgnus mūrālium pilōrum numerus instituitur; turrēs contabulantur, pinnae lōricaeque ex crātibus attexuntur. Ipse Cicerō, cum tenuis-10 simā valētūdine esset, nē nocturnum quidem sibi tempus ad quiētem relinqueret, ut ultrō militum concursū ac vōcibus sibi parcere cōgeretur.

The Gauls try in vain to lure Cicero from his camp.

41. Tum ducēs principēsque Nerviorum, quī aliquem sermōnis aditum causamque amicitiae cum Cicerōne habē-
15 bant, conloquī sēsē velle dicunt. Factā potestāte, eadem, quae Ambiorix cum Tituriō ēgerat, commemorant: omnem esse in armis Galliam, Germānōs Rhēnum trānsisse, Caesaris reliquōrumque hiberna oppugnārī. Addunt etiam de Sabīni morte; Ambiorigem ostentant fidei
20 faciundae causā. Errāre eōs dicunt, sī quicquam ab eis praesidī spērent, quī suis rēbus diffidant; sēsē tamen hōc esse in Cicerōnem populumque Rōmānum animō, ut nihil nisi hiberna recūsant atque hanc inveterāscere cōnsuetūdinem nōlint; licēre illis per sē incolumibus 25 ex hibernis discēdere et, quāscumque in partēs velint, sine metū proficisci.

Cicerō ad haec ūnum modo respondet: nōn esse cōnsuetūdinem populī Rōmāni, accipere ab hoste armātō condiciōnem; sī ab armīs discēdēre velint, sē adiūtōre ūtantur lēgātōsque ad Caesarem mittant; spērāre sē prō eius iūstitiā, quae petierint, impetrātūrōs.

42. Ab hāc spē repulsī Nerviī vāllō pedum x et fossā pedum xv hiberna cingunt. Haec et superiōrum annō- 5 rum cōsuētūdine ā nōbīs cōgnōverant et, quōsdam dē exercitū nactī captīvōs, ab hīs docēbantur; sed nullā ferramentōrum cōpiā, quae essent ad hunc ūsum idōnea, gladiis caespitēs circumcidere, manibus sagulisque terram exhaurīre cōgēbantur. Quā quidem ex rē hominum mul- 10 titūdō cōgnōscī potuit; nam minus hōrīs tribus mīlium passuum III in circuitū mūnitiōnem perfēcērunt. Reliquīs diēbus turrēs ad altitudinem vāllī, falcēs testudinēsque, quās idem captīvī docuerant, parāre ac facere coepērunt. 15

43. Septimō oppugnātiōnis diē māximō coortō ventō, ferventēs fūsiles ex argillā glandēs fundīs et fervefacta iacula in casās, quae mōre Gallicō strāmentīs erant tēctae, iacere coepērunt. Hae celeriter ignem comprehendērunt et ventī māgnitūdine in omnem locum castrōrum dis- 20

explōrātā victōriā, turrēs testūdīnesque agere et scālis vāllum ascendere coepērunt.

5 At tanta mīlitum virtūs atque ea praesentia animī fuit, ut, cum undique flammā torrērentur m̄ximāque telōrum multitūdine premerentur sua-
10 que omnia impedīmenta atque omnēs fortūnās cōnflagrāre intellegerent, nōn modo dēmigrandī causā dē vāllō dēcēderet nēmō, sed paene nē respiceret quidem quisquam, ac tum omnēs ācerrimē fortissimēque pūg-15 nent.

Hic diēs nostrīs longē gravissimū fuit, sed tamen hunc habuit ēventum, ut eō diē m̄ximus numerus hostiūm vulnerārētur atque interficerētur, ut sē sub ipsō vāllō cōnstipāverant recessumque primīs ultimī nōn dabant.
20 Paulum quidem intermissā flammā et quōdam locō turri adāctā et contingente vāllum, tertiā cohortis centuriōnēs ex eō, quō stābant, locō recessērunt suōsque omnēs remōvērunt, nūtū vōcibusque hostēs, sī introīre vellent, vocāre coepērunt; quōrum prōgredi ausus est nēmō. Tum ex 25 omni parte lapidibus coniectis dēturbātī turrisque succēnsa est.

Rival exploits of two centurions.

44. Erant in eā legiōne fortissimī virī, centuriōnēs, qui iam primīs ōrdinibus adpropinquārent, T. Pullō et L. Vorēnus. Hī perpetuās inter sē contrōversiās habēbant, uter alterī anteferrētur, omnibusque annīs dē locō summīs simultātibus contendēbant. Ex hīs Pullō, cum ācerrimē ad mūnitiōnēs pūgnārētur, “quid dubitās,” inquit, “Vorēne? aut quem locum tuae probāndae virtūtis exspectās? 5 Hīc diēs dē nostrīs contrōversiīs iūdicābit.” Haec cum dixisset, prōcēdit extrā mūnitiōnēs, quaeque pars hostium cōnfertissima est vīsa, inrumpit. Nē Vorēnus quidem sēsē tum vāllō continet, sed omnium veritus existimātiōnem subsequitur. 10

Mediocri spatiō relictō Pullō pilum in hostēs immittit atque ūnum ex multitudine prōcurrentem trāicit; quō percussō et exanimātō, hunc scūtīs prōtegunt hostēs, in illum ūniversī tēla cōiciunt neque dant prōgrediendī facultātem. Trānsfigitur scūtum Pullōnī et verūtum in 15 balteō dēfigitur. Āvertit hīc cāsus vāginam et gladium ēdūcere cōnantī dextram morātur manum, impeditumque hostēs circumsistunt. Succurrit inimicus illi Vorēnus et laborantī subvenit. Ad hunc sē cōnfestim ā Pullōne omnis multitūdō convertit; illum verūtō trānsfixum arbi- 20 trantur. Gladiō cominus rem gerit Vorēnus atque ūnō interfectō reliquōs paulum prōpellit; dum cupidius instat, in locum dēiectus inferiōrem concidit. Huic rūsus circumventō subsidium fert Pullō, atque ambō incolumēs, complūribus interfectīs, summā cum laude 25 sēsē intrā mūnitiōnēs recipiunt.

Sic fortūna in contentiōne et certāmine utrumque versāvit, ut alter alterī inimicus auxiliō salūtique esset neque dīiūdicārī posset, uter utrī virtūte anteferendus vidērētur. 30

Cicero communicates with Caesar.

45. Quantō erat in diēs gravior atque asperior oppūgnātiō, et māximē quod, māgnā parte militum cōfectā vulneribus, rēs ad paucitatem dēfēnsōrum pervēnerat, tantō crēbriōrēs litterae nūntiūque ad Caesarem mittē-5 bantur; quōrum pars dēprehēssa in cōspectū nostrōrum militum cum cruciātū necābātur. Erat ūnus intus Ner-vius, nōmine Verticō, locō nātus honestō, quī ā primā obsidiōne ad Cicerōnem perfūgerat suamque eī fidem praestiterat. Hic servō spē libertātis māgnisque per-10 suādet praemiis, ut litterās ad Caesarem dēferat. Hās ille in iaculō inligātās effert, et Gallus inter Gallōs sine ullā suspiciōne versātus ad Caesarem pervenit. Ab eō dē periculis Cicerōnis legiōnisque cōgnōscitur.

46. Caesar acceptis litteris hōrā circiter undecimā diēi 15 statim nūntium in Bellovacōs ad M. Crassum mittit, cuius hīberna aberant ab eō milia passuum xxv; iubet mediā nocte legiōnem proficisci celeriterque ad sē venīre. Exit cum nūntiō Crassus. Alterum ad C. Fabium lēgātum mittit, ut in Atrebātium finēs legiōnem adducat, quā sibi 20 iter faciendum sciēbat. Scribit Labiēnō, sī rei pūblicae commodō facere possit, cum legiōne ad finēs Nerviorum veniat. Reliquam partem exercitūs, quod paulō aberat longius, nōn putat exspectandam; equitēs circiter cccc ex proximis hībernīs cōgit.

Caesar goes to his rescue.

25 47. Hōrā circiter tertiā ab antecursōribus dē Crassī adventū certior factus, eō diē milia passuum xx prōgreditur.

Crassum Samarobrivae praeficit legionemque ei attribuit, quod ibi impedimenta exercitus, obsides civitatum, litteras publicas frumentumque omne, quod eo tolerandae hiemis causam dēvexerat, relinquebat. Fabius, ut imperatum erat, non ita multum moratus, in itinere cum legione 5 occurrit. Labienus interitum Sabini et caede cohortium cognitam, cum omnes ad eum Treverorum copiae venissent, veritus, ne, si ex hibernis fugae similem profectionem fecisset, hostium impetum sustinere non posset, praesertim quos recentem victoriam efferi sciret, litteras Caesaris remittit, 10 quanto cum periculo legionem ex hibernis educturus esset; rem gestam in Eburonibus perscribit; docet, omnes equitatus peditatusque copias Treverorum III milia passuum longe ab suis castris consedissee.

48. Caesar consilio eius probato, etsi opinione trium 15 legionum deiectus ad duas reciderat, tamen unum communem salutem auxilium in celeritate ponebat. Venit magnis itineribus in Nerviorum fines. Ibi ex captivis cognoscit, quae apud Ciceronem gerantur quantoque in periculo res sit. Tum cuidam ex equitibus Gallis magnis 20 praemiis persuadet, uti ad Ciceronem epistulam deferat. Hanc Graecis conscriptam litteris mittit, ne intercepta epistula nostra ab hostibus consilia cognoscantur. Si adire non possit, monet, ut tragulam cum epistula ad amentum deligata intra munitiones castrorum abiciat. 25 In litteris scribit, se cum legionibus profectum celeriter adfore; hortatur, ut pristinam virtutem retineat.

Gallus periculum veritus, ut erat praeceptum, tragulam mittit. Haec casu ad turrim adhaesit, neque a nostris biduo animadversa tertio die a quodam milite conspicitur, 30 dēmta ad Cicerōnem dēfertur. Ille perlēctam in conventū mīlitum recitat māximāque omnēs laetitīā adfcit. Tum fūmī incendiōrum procul vidēbantur; quae rēs omnem dubitātiōnem adventūs legiōnum expulit.

The Gauls raise the siege and hasten to intercept Caesar. Caesar is warned by Cicero.

- 5 49. Galli rē cōgnitā per explōrātōrēs obsidiōnem relinquunt, ad Caesarem omnibus cōpiīs contendunt. Haec erant armāta circiter mīlia LX. Cicerō datā facultāte Gallum ab eōdem Verticōne, quem suprà dēmōstrāvimus, repetit, quī litterās ad Caesarem dēferat. Hunc 10 admonet, iter cautē diligenterque faciat. Perscribit in litterīs, hostēs ab sē discessisse omnemque ad eum multitudinem convertisse. Quibus litterīs circiter mediā nocte Caesar adlātīs suōs facit certiōrēs eōsque ad dīmicandum animō cōnfīrmat.
- 15 Posterō diē lūce primā movet castra et circiter mīlia passuum IIII prōgressus trāns vallem et rīvum multitudinem hostium cōnspicātur. Erat māgnī periculī rēs, tantulīs cōpiīs iniquō locō dīmicāre; tum, quoniam obsidiōne liberātum Cicerōnem sciēbat, aequō animō remittendum dē celeritāte exīstimābat; cōnsīdit et, quam 20 aequissimō potest locō, castra commūnit atque haec, etsi erant exigua per sē, vix hominum mīlium VII, praesertim nūllis cum impedimentīs, tamen angustīs viārum, quam māximē potest, contrahit, eō cōnsiliō, ut in summam contempliōnem hostibus veniat. Interim speculātōribus in 25 omnēs partēs dīmissīs explōrat, quō commodissimē itinere vallem trānsīre possit.

The enemy are deceived by Caesar's pretence of fear.

50. Eō diē parvulis equestribus proeliis ad aquam factis utrique sēsē suō locō continent: Galli, quod ampliōrēs cōpiās, quae nōndum convēnerant, exspectābant, Caesar, si forte timōris simulātiōne hostēs in suum locum ēlicere posset, ut citrā vallem prō castris proeliō contenderet; si 5 id efficere nōn posset, ut explorātis itineribus minōre cum periculō vallem rīvumque trānsiret. Primā lūce hostium equitātus ad castra accēdit proeliumque cum nostris equitibus committit. Caesar cōsultō equitēs cedere sēque in castra recipere iubet, simul ex omnibus partibus castra 10 altiōre vāllō mūniri portāsque obstrui atque in his administrandis rēbus quam māximē concursārī et cum simulātiōne agī timōris iubet.

They attack his camp and are repulsed with heavy losses.

51. Quibus omnibus rēbus hostēs invītātī cōpiās trādūcunt aciemque inquō locō cōstituunt; nostris vērō 15 etiam dē vāllō dēductis, propius accēdunt et tēla intrā mūnitiōnem ex omnibus partibus cōiciunt praecōnibusque circummissis prōnūtiārī iubent, seu quis Gallus seu Rōmānus velit ante hōram tertiam ad sē trānsire, sine periculō licēre; post id tempus nōn fore potestātem. Ac sic nostrōs con- 20 tempsērunt, ut, obstructis in speciem portis singulis ordinibus caespitem, quod eā non posse intrōrumpere vidēbantur, alii vāllum manū scindere, alii fossās complēre inciperent. Tum Caesar omnibus portis ēruptiōne factā equitātūque ēmissō celeriter hostēs in fugam dat, sic 25 uti omnīnō pūgnandī causā resisteret nēmō, māgnumque ex eis numerum occīdit atque omnēs armīs exiit.

Caesar joins Cicero. He decides to spend the winter with the army.

52. Longius prōsequi veritus, quod silvae palūdēque intercēdebant neque etiam parvulō dētrīmentō illōrum locum relinqui vidēbat, omnibus suis incolumibus eōdem diē ad Cicerōnem pervēnit. Institūtās turrēs, testudinēs
5 mūnitiōēsque hostium admirātur; prōductā legiōne cōgnōscit nōn decimum quemque esse reliquum militem sine vulnere; ex hīs omnibus iūdicat rēbus, quantō cum periculō et quantā virtūte rēs sint administrātae. Cicerōnem prō eius meritō legiōnemque conlaudat; centuriōēs singillā-
10 tim tribūnōsque militum appellat, quōrum ēgregiam fuisse virtūtem testimoniō Cicerōnis cōgnōverat. Dē cāsū Sabīni et Cottae certius ex captivīs cōgnōscit.

Posterō diē cōntiōne habitā rem gestam prōpōnit, milites cōnsolātur et cōnfīrmat; quod dētrīmentum culpā et 15 temeritatē lēgātī sit acceptum, hōc aequiōre animō ferundum docet, quod beneficiō deōrum immortalium et virtūte eōrum expiātō incommodō neque hostibus diūtina laetitia neque ipsis longior dolor relinquātur.

53. Interim ad Labiēnum per Rēmōs incrēdibili celeritate dē victoriā Caesaris fāma perfertur, ut, cum ab hibernīs Cicerōnis milia passuum abesset circiter LX eōque post hōram nōnam diēi Caesar pervēnisset, ante mediam noctem ad portās castrōrum clāmor orerētur, quō clāmōre significātiō victōriae grātulātiōque ab Rēmīs Labiēnō
25 fieret. Hāc fāmā ad Trēverōs perlātā, Indūtiomārus, qui posterō diē castra Labiēni oppugnāre dēcreverat, noctū profugit cōpiāsque omnēs in Trēverōs reducit.

Caesar Fabium cum suā legiōne remittit in hiberna, ipse cum III legiōnibus circum Samarobrīvam trīnis hībernīs hiemāre cōstituit, et quod tantī mōtūs Galliae exstiterant, tōtam hiemem ipse ad exercitum manēre dēcrevit. Nam, illō incommodō dē Sabīnī morte perlātō, omnēs ferē Galliae cīvitatēs dē bellō cōsultābant, nūntiōs lēgatiōnēsque in omnēs partēs dīmittēbant et, quid 5 reliquī cōsiliī caperent atque unde initium belli fieret, explōrābant nocturnaue in locīs dēsertiis concilia habebant. Neque ūllum ferē tōtius hiemis tempus sine sollicitūdine Caesaris intercessit, quā aliquem dē cōsiliīs ac mōtū Gallōrum nūntium acciperet. 10

REVOLT OF THE SENONES AND TREVERI, 54-53.

The Senones expel the king appointed over them by Caesar.

54. At Caesar, prīncipibus cūiusque cīvitatīs ad sē ēvocātis, aliōs territandō, cum sē scīre, quae fierent, dēnūntiāret, aliōs cohortandō, māgnam partem Galliae in officiō tenuit. Tamen Senonēs, quae est cīvitas in prīmīs firma et māgnae inter Gallōs auctōritātis, Cavarīnum, quem Caesar apud eōs rēgem cōstituerat, cūius frāter Moritasgus adventū in Galliam Caesaris cūiusque maiōrēs rēgnum obtinuerant, interficere publicō cōsiliō cōnātī, 25 cum ille praesēnsisset ac profūgisset, usque ad finēs in-secūti rēgnō domōque expulērunt, et missis ad Caesarem satisfaciendī causā lēgātis, cum is omnem ad sē senātum venire iussisset, dictō audientēs nōn fuērunt.

Ac tantum apud hominēs barbarōs valuit, esse aliquōs
5 repertōs principēs bellī inferendī, tantamque omnibus voluntātum commūtātiōnem attulit, ut praeter Haeduōs et Rēmōs, quōs praecipuō semper honōre Caesar habuit, alterōs prō vetere ac perpetuā ergā populum Rōmānum fidē, alterōs prō recentibus Gallicī bellī officiis, nūlla ferē 10 civitās fuerit nōn suspecta nobis. Idque adeō haud sciō māximē, quod, quī virtūte bellī omnibus gentibus prae-ferēbantur, tantum sē eius opiniōnis dēperdidisse, ut populi Rōmānī imperia perferrent, gravissimē dolēbant.

Indutiomarus, of the Treveri, leads a revolt.

15 55. Trēverī vērō atque Indūtiomārus tōtius hiemis nūllum tempus intermiserunt, quā trāns Rhēnum lēgātōs mitterent, civitatēs sollicitārent, pecūniās pollicērentur, māgnā parte exercitūs nostrī interfectā multō minorem superesse dicerent partem. Neque tamen ulli civitatī 20 Germānōrum persuādērī potuit, ut Rhēnum trānsīret, cum sē bis expertōs dicerent, Ariovistī bellō et Tencterōrum trānsitū; nōn esse amplius fortūnam temptātūrōs. Hāc spē lāpsus Indūtiomārus nihilō minus cōpiās cōgere, exercēre, ā finitimis equōs parāre, exulēs damnātōsque 25 tōtā Galliā māgnis praemiis ad sē adlicere coepit. Ac tantam sibi iam hīs rēbus in Galliā auctoritatem comparāverat, ut undique ad eum lēgātiōnēs concurrerent, grātiam atque amicitiam publicē privātimque peterent.

56. Ubi intellēxit, ultrō ad sē venīrī, alterā ex parte Senonēs Carnutēsque cōscientiā facinoris instīgārī, alterā Nerviōs Atuatucośque bellum Rōmānis parāre, neque sibi voluntāriōrum cōpiās dēfore, sī ex finibus suis prōgredi coepisset, armātum concilium indēit. Hōc mōre Gallō- 5 rum est initium bellī; quō lēge commūnī omnēs pūberēs armātī convenīre cōguntur; quī ex eis novissimus venit, in cōspectū multitudinis omnibus cruciātibus adfectus necātur.

In eō conciliō Cingetorigem, alterius prīncipem facti- 10 ōnis, generum suum, quem suprà dēmōstrāvimus Caesaris secūtum fidem ab eō nōn discessisse, hostem iūdicat bonaque eius publicat. His rēbus cōfectis in conciliō prōnūntiat, arcessitum sē ā Senonibus et Carnutibus aliisque complūribus Galliae cīvitatibus; hūc itūrum per 15 finēs Rēmōrum eōrumque agrōs populātūrum ac, priusquam id faciat, castra Labiēnī oppugnātūrum.

He attacks Labienus's camp, but is defeated and killed.

57. Quae fierī velit, praecipit. Labiēnus, cum et locī nātūrā et manū mūnitissimis castris sēsē tenēret, dē suō ac legiōnis periculō nihil timēbat, nē quam occāsionem 20 rei bene gerendae dīmitteret, cōgitābat. Itaque ā Cingetorige atque eius propinquis ōrātiōne Indūtiomārī cōgnitā, quam in conciliō habuerat, nūntiōs mittit ad finitimās cīvitatēs equitēsque undique ēvocat; hīs certam diem conveniendī dēit. Interim prope cotidiē cum omni equi- 25 tātū Indūtiomārus sub castris eius vagābātur, aliās ut situm castrōrum cōgnōsceret, aliās conloquendī aut terri- tandī causā; equitēs plērumque omnēs tēla intrā vāllum cōiciēbant. Labiēnus suōs intrā mūnitiōnem continēbat timōrisque opīniōnem, quibuscumque poterat rēbus, augēbat.

58. Cum māiōre in diēs contemptiōne Indūtiomārus ad
5 castra accēderet, nocte ūnā intrōmissis equitibus omnium finitimārum cīvitātum, quōs arcessendōs cūrāverat, tantā diligentiā omnēs suōs custōdiis intrā castra continuit, ut nullā ratiōne ea rēs ēnūtiārī aut ad Trēverōs perferri posset. Interim ex cōnsuetūdine cotidiānā Indūtiomārus 10 ad castra accēdit atque ibi māgnam partem diēi cōsumit; equitēs tēla cōiciunt et māgnā cum contumēliā verbōrum nostrōs ad pūgnam ēvocant. Nullō ab nostris datō re-spōnsō, ubi vīsum est, sub vesperum dispersi ac dissipati discēdunt.
- 15 Subitō Labiēnus duābus portis omnem equitātum ēmittit; praecipit atque interdicit, perterritis hostibus atque in fugam coniectis — quod fore, sicut accidit, vidēbat — ūnum omnēs petant Indūtiomārum, neu quis quem prius vulneret quam illum interfectum viderit, quod 20 morā reliquōrum spatium nactum illum effugere nōlēbat; māgna prōpōnit eis, quī occiderint, praemia; submittit cohortēs equitibus subsidiō. Comprobat hominis cōnsi-lium fortūna, et cum ūnum omnēs peterent, in ipsō flūminis vadō dēprehēnsus Indūtiomārus interficitur, 25 caputque eius refertur in castra; redeuntēs equitēs, quōs possunt, cōnsectantur atque occidunt. Hāc rē cōgnitā omnēs Eburōnum et Nerviorum, quae convēnerant, cōpiae discēdunt, pauloque habuit post id factum Caesar quietiōrem Galliam.

BOOK I.

INTRODUCTION.

War with the Helvetii.— While Caesar was still in Rome, early in 58, preparing to depart for his provinces, news came that a powerful Gallic tribe, the Helvetii, was about to start upon a westward migration. Of this movement, which the Helvetii had set on foot in 61, the Romans had probably received some information before. That the Helvetii were restless, at least, had been known for some time. Two years previously, in 60, they were reported in arms and making raids into the Transalpine province. The alarm felt in Rome at that time prompted the sending of an embassy to prevent other Gallic tribes from supporting them.

The Helvetii quite likely were being harassed by the Germans, of whom more in another connection. At all events, they felt cramped in their present country, a part of modern Switzerland, and had determined to remove to western Gaul. The leader in the movement was the powerful chieftain Orgetorix, to whose direction were confided the preparations for departure. Orgetorix betrayed his trust by intriguing with two other Gallic chieftains to gain supreme power in their respective states. His trial and death did not deter the Helvetii from proceeding with their plan. In the early spring of 58 they were ready for the march, having decided upon a route that led through the Roman province. Two other and smaller tribes had cast in their lot with them. The news of the danger threatening the province brought Caesar on a hurried journey to Geneva. His refusal to grant right of way through the province forced the Helvetii to adopt the only other route readily available, through the Pas de l'Écluse and the country of the Sequani. Caesar, however, had no intention of permitting their migration without a struggle. In western Gaul they would still be dangerous neighbors to the province, while the country they were leaving was certain to be occupied by the Germans. The slow progress of the Helvetian host enabled Caesar to muster sufficient forces to follow them as they advanced up the valley of the Saône, and finally to rout them in a desperate battle late in June. The survivors were sent back to their former home.

So far as we know, Caesar had received no explicit instructions from the Roman senate with reference to the Helvetii. His policy was dictated by regard for the interests of the province and by the necessity of securing the frontier. The possibility of further German aggressions was, in all probability, the danger that seemed to Caesar most pressing and the problem with which he was expecting immediately to concern himself upon assuming his provincial command. It was with these Germans that he now came in conflict.

War with Ariovistus. — Two leagues of Gallic tribes (Introd. 65) had long been at strife for various causes, one led by the Haedui, the other by the Sequani, the former having at one time been the stronger. The weaker Sequani, however, had recourse to an alliance with German mercenaries from beyond the Rhine, and repeatedly defeated the Haedui in battle. The Haeduan Diviciacus finally visited Rome, probably in 61, in a vain attempt to secure help for his people as friends and allies of Rome (Introd. 68). The senate issued a conventional decree directing any governor of Gaul to protect Rome's allies. Shortly after, in 61 or 60, the disastrous battle of Magetobriga completed the humiliation of the Haedui. Upon Caesar's arrival Haeduan hostages were in the hands of the Sequani and Germans, the latter exacting a yearly tribute in addition. But the condition of the Sequani was even more deplorable than that of the vanquished Haedui. The Germans, attracted by the superiority of the Gallic land, had determined to remain in Gaul. Under their redoubtable leader, Ariovistus, their numbers had already increased from fifteen thousand to one hundred and twenty thousand. One third of the Sequanian country was now in their possession and a second third demanded. The Sequani had ample reason to repent their rash alliance. Indeed, it is quite possible that they joined forces with the Haedui at Magetobriga against the Germans.

After the defeat of the Helvetii, which occurred in Haeduan territory, the Gallic tribes which had felt or feared German oppression appealed to Caesar for protection. In the relation of friendship between the Romans and the Haedui, and in the injuries to the latter at the hands of the Germans, Caesar found a ready pretext for entering into communication with Ariovistus. His professed purpose was to free the Haedui from subjection to the Sequani and Germans, and to exact assurance of no further German encroachments in Gaul. Of Ariovistus and his ambitions Caesar was doubtless more or less informed before coming to Gaul. In his own consulship, and apparently with his approval, the senate had conferred upon Ariovistus the title of "king and friend," which did not mean that Caesar would necessarily treat him as such a year later. Caesar's march to meet the German host, the amusing panic in his own army, the masterly speech in which he restored courage, the fruitless negotiations between the resolute Roman and the no less resolute German, the hard-fought battle in the valley of the Rhine, form one of the most interesting episodes of the Gallic war. By the overwhelming victory of the Roman army the Germans were driven from this region of Gaul; and that, it is not hard to believe, was Caesar's purpose from the outset.

At the conclusion of the campaign Caesar established his legions in winter quarters among the Sequani. He himself went to his Cisalpine province for the winter, in order to attend to administrative duties.

CHAPTER 1, Line 1. Gallia omnis : Gaul as a whole. Gallia is also frequently used of some one of the divisions of Gaul. The context usually makes the meaning clear. est dīvisa : is divided. Perfect participles may be employed as predicate adjectives. quārum : of these, gen. of the whole, the so-called partitive genitive. The relative pronoun when introducing an independent sentence should be translated by a personal or demonstrative pronoun. ūnam : sc. partem (also with aliā and tertiam).

2. incolunt : is inhabited. The Latin emphasis and order are often preserved best by translating an active verb in the passive. quī : for eī quī, those who. The antecedent of a relative pronoun may be omitted if readily understood from the context. ipsōrum linguā : in their own language; lit. in the language of themselves.

3-5. nostrā : sc. linguā. linguā, institūtis, lēgibus : in language, etc.; for the case see ¹A. 418 (253); B. 226; G. 397;

H. 480, 3; H-B. 441. inter sē: from one another, reciprocal use of sē; how lit.? Gallōs: . . . dīvidit: the Gauls are separated; see note on incolunt, 2, above. Gallōs: equivalent to Celtās. dīvidit: singular verb, the Marne and Seine being regarded as a single boundary.

6. Hōrum: gen. of the whole; cf. quārum, 1, above. propterea quod: differs from quod, used alone, no more than English for the reason that differs from because.

7. cultū: manner of life. hūmānitāte: civilization. Translate the two together, civilized life. prōvinciae: the Transalpine province; see Intro. 68.

8-9. minimēque . . . commeant atque . . . important: the second reason. minimē saepe; very seldom. mercātōrēs: especially from the Greek city of Massilia. ea, quae: those things which; i.e. luxuries, wine in particular. ad . . . pertinent: tend to weaken character. effēminandōs: for the gerundive construction see A. 503, 506 (296, 300); B. 338, 3, 339, 2; G. 427, 432; H. 628; H-B. 612, III.

10. proximique sunt, etc.: the third reason, the main point lying in quibuscum . . . gerunt. Germānis: for the dat. depending on proximī see A. 384 (234, a); B. 192, 1; G. 359; H. 434, 2; H-B. 362, III. quibuscum: for cum enclitic see A. 150, d (104, e); B. 142, 4; G. 413, R. 1; H. 182, 2; H-B. 418, a.

11-12. Quā dē causā: for this reason. For translation of Quā see note on quārum, 1, above. dē: a monosyllabic preposition often stands between a noun and a modifier in agreement with it. virtūte: abl. of specification, like (second) linguā, 3, above.

13-15. proeliis: in battles. cum . . . prohibent . . . aut . . . gerunt: when they either keep out the Germans, etc., or translate by a participial construction, either keeping out the Germans, etc. finibus: for the case see A. 401 (243, a); B. 214, 2; G. 390, 2; H. 464, 1; H-B. 408, 2. suīs and ipsī refer to the Helvetii, eōs and eōrum to the Germans.

16. Eōrum: (of them) instead of Galliae, the people being put for the country, as often. quam . . . dictum est: which the Gauls occupy (as) has been said. The infinitive clause stands as subject of dictum est. Gallōs: i.e. Celtās.

17-18. Garumnā: abl. of means. ab: on the side of, a not infrequent use of ā and ab, to indicate the standpoint.

Page 2. 1. vergit ad septentrionēs: trends towards the north, perhaps with reference to the course of the rivers in general.

2. Belgae: the people instead of the country; cf. Eōrum, 1, 16. extrēmīs: farthest, from the standpoint of the province or of Rome. Galliae: i.e. Celtic Gaul.

3. spectant in: cf. vergit ad, 1, above. The course of the main rivers is northeast.

6. est ad: is near, lies next to.

Explain the construction (page 1) of partēs, finam 1, Celtae, Galli 3, sē, Aquitanis 4, prōvinciae 7, eōs 8, Rhēnum 10, bellum, causā 11, (second) finibus 14; (page 2) Galliae 2, Ōceanī 6. Give the principal parts (page 1) of est 1, differunt 4, dīvidit 5, gerunt 11, contendunt 13, dictum est 16.

9. CHAPTER 2. M. Messālā et M. Pisōne cōsulibus: in the consulship of Marcus Messala and Marcus Piso, i.e. 61 B.C. For the case see A. 419, a (255, a); B. 227, 1; G. 409, 410; H. 489; H-B. 421, 1. The Roman chief magistrates were two consuls, elected annually, and holding office jointly. Their names in the ablative absolute with cōsulibus are regularly employed to indicate Roman years. In such phrases et is usually omitted. rēgnī: objective genitive after cupiditāte.

10-11. nōbilitātis: see Introd. 63. cīvitātī: (his) state, for (his) countrymen, hence the plural verb exirent. For the case see A. 367 (227); B. 187, II, a; G. 346; H. 426, 2; H-B. 362, I. ut dē . . . exirent: to leave; for the mood see A. 563 (331); B. 295, 1; G. 546; H. 565; H-B. 502, 3. cōpīis: forces, population, including women and children.

12-13. perfacile esse . . . potīrī: verbs of saying and the like are often to be inferred from the context; (saying) that it was very easy to gain supremacy over all Gaul, since they surpassed all in valor. potiri: subject of esse. In direct discourse, perfacile est, cum . . . praestētis, . . . potiri. praestarent: subjv. with cum causal. omnibus: for the dat. governed by praestarent see A. 370 (228); B. 187, III, 1; G. 347; H. 429; H-B. 376. imperiō: for the abl. with potiri see A. 410 (249); B. 218, 1; G. 407; H. 477, I; H-B. 429.

14-15. Id . . . persuāsit: he persuaded them (to) this (course of action) the more easily. Id refers to the plan of emigration. For the acc. with persuāsit see A. 227, f (369); B. 176, 2, a; G. 332; H. 404, 1; H-B. 364, 4. hōc: abl. of cause, explained by the causal clause, quod, etc. nātūrā: abl. of cause. ūnā ex parte: on one side; ex, like ab, 1, 18, indicating the standpoint.

16. qui: the relative here and in 19 takes the name of the river as antecedent; usually flūmen is the antecedent in such combinations.

17-18. alterā: second. Ūnus and alter frequently have ordinal meanings, especially when followed by tertius. tertiā: sc. ex parte.

20-21. Hīs rēbus fiēbat, ut: from these facts it resulted that, etc.; rēbus is an abl. of cause; for the force of fiēbat and the following imperfects see A. 470 (277); B. 260, 1; G. 231; H. 534; H-B. 468, 2. ut . . . possent: subject of fiēbat, A. 569, 1 (332, a); B. 297, 2; G. 553, 3; H. 571, I; H-B. 521, 3, a. fnitimis: like omnibus, 12, above, dat. after a compound, inferre; here the verb is transitive and governs a direct object also, bellum. quā ex parte: from this fact, for this reason.

22. hominēs: (as they were) people. bellandi cupidī: fond of making war; for the gen. bellandi see A. 349, a (218, a); B. 204, 1; G. 374, 5; H. 451, 1; H-B. 354.

23-26. Prō multitudīne hominū: in proportion to their population. In chapter 29 the migrating host is given as 263,000. glōriā belli atque fortitudinis: renown for bravery in war. The English idiom leads us to expect bellicae fortitudinis, noun and adjective instead of coördinate nouns. For the hendiadys see A. 640 (385); B. 374, 4; G. 698; H. 753, 3, n. 1; H-B. 631, 5 sē habēre arbitrābantur: thought that they had. quī . . .

patēbant: as the clause is not part of the indirect discourse, but a statement of fact added by the author, the mood is indicative. mīlia: for the case see A. 425 (257); B. 181; G. 335;
 H. 417; H-B. 387, I. passuum: the plural of mille is a substantive and is regularly followed by a genitive.

Construction of Helvētiōs 8, cupiditāte, nōbilitātis 10, cōpiis 11, virtūte 12, eīs 14, flūmine 15, dolōre 22, multitū- dine 23. Principal parts of fēcit 10, persuāsit, exīrent 11, potiri 13, flēbat 20, Inferre, possent 21. Compare minus, lātē 20, facile 21.

Page 3. 2-3. CHAPTER 3. ea, quae . . . comparāre:
to make those preparations which, explained in detail by the following infinitives. ad proficiscendum: to departure, or to the journey; for the gerund see A. 506 (300); B. 338, 3; G. 425; H. 628; H-B. 612, III. pertinērent: subjunctive due to informal indirect discourse, A. 591, 1 (341, d); B. 323;
 G. 628; H. 649, I; H-B. 535, 1, a. quam māximum nu- merum: the largest number possible; for the superlative with quam see A. 291, c (93, b); B. 240, 3; G. 303; H. 159, 2;
 H-B. 241, 4.

4-5. ut . . . suppeteret: in order to have on hand; for the mood see A. 531, 1 (317, 1); B. 282; G. 545, 1; H. 568;
 H-B. 502, 2.

6. Ad . . . cōnficiendās: to complete these preparations, gerundive construction, like ad effēminandōs animōs, I, 9. rēs:
 should be translated definitely, according to the context, here preparations.

7. sibi: for them. dūxērunt: deemed, considered, as a verb of thinking governs indirect discourse, biennium . . . esse.
in: for.

8. cōnfirmant: the historical present, A. 469 (276, d);
 B. 259, 3; G. 229; H. 532, 3; H-B. 491, 1.

10. sibi suscipit: takes upon himself, undertakes. cōvitātēs.

i.e. the neighboring Gallic tribes. persuādet: this historical present, as often, is followed by a past tense in the dependent clause, occupāret, 14, although the present subjunctive might have been employed.

12. rēgnū: see Introd. 62. annōs: for the case see A. 423 (256, 2); B. 181, 1; G. 336; H. 417; H-B. 387, II.

13-14. senātū: abl. of the agent. amicus: predicate nominative after appellātus erat. The title of "friend" was sometimes conferred by the Roman senate on foreign princes for friendly services or to secure their allegiance. ut . . . occupāret: to seize. habuerit: subjunctive by attraction to the mood of occupāret; or we may read with the manuscripts habuerat, indicative in an independent statement of the author's, like obtinuerat and appellātus erat, above.

15. Dumnorīgī: dat. governed by persuādet, 17. Diviciācī: an influential leader among the Haedui and a member of the priestly order of druids. He was at the head of the faction friendly to Rome. Some years before he had visited Rome in a vain attempt to secure aid against the Germans and Sequani. quī: refers to Dumnorīgī. tempore: abl. of time when.

16-17. māximē plēbī acceptus: a special favorite with the common people. plēbī: for the dat. dependent on acceptus see A. 384 (234); B. 192, 1; G. 359; H. 434, 2; H-B. 362, I. eī: dat. of indirect object.

19. Perfacile factū: very easy; factū, to do, may be omitted in translation; for the supine see A. 510 (303); B. 340, 2; G. 436; H. 635, 1; H-B. 619, 1. illīs: dat. of indirect object after probat. perficere: subject of esse.

20. obtentūrus esset: expected to gain, intended to gain; subjunctive in a subordinate clause in indirect discourse. The periphrastic is employed to report a past intention.

21-22. nōn esse dubium, quā . . . possent: there was no doubt (he said), that the Helvetii were the most powerful (people) of all Gaul. For the subjunctive with quā see A. 558, a (319, d); B. 298; G. 555, 2; H. 595, 1; H-B. 521, 3, b. plūrimū: acc. expressing degree with possent, see A. 390, c (238, b); B.

176, 3, a; G. 334; H. 416, 2; H-B. 387, III. illis: dat. of indirect object. conciatūrum: sc. esse, often omitted in the future active and perfect passive infinitives.

23-24. inter se dant: they exchange. For the reciprocal use of se cf. 1, 4. fidem et ius iurandum: an oath-bound pledge, another instance of hendiadys. regnō occupātō: by seizing supreme power, or if they should seize, etc.; lit. the supreme power having been seized, abl. absolute, A. 420, 4 (255, 4); B. 227, 2, b; G. 409, 593, 2; H. 489, 1; H-B. 421, 6. per: with the accusative expresses indirect agency.

25-26. Galliae: the genitive, instead of the ablative, is sometimes governed by potior. seesē . . . posse spērant: hope to be able.

Construction of sēmentēs 4, frūmentī 5, lēge 8, dux 9, Casticō, filio 11, frātri 15, Perfacile 19, cōpīis, exercitū 22, seesē 25. Principal parts of cōficiendās 6, dēligitur 9, suscipit 10, dat 18. Compare māximum 3, plūrimum 21.

Page 4. 1. CHAPTER 4. Ea res: this plan, this plot. per indicium: abstract for concrete, equivalent to per indicēs, by informers. Mōribus suis: in accordance with their custom; for the case see A. 418, a (253, N.); B. 220, 3; G. 397; H. 475, 3; H-B. 414.

2. ex vinculis: in chains; lit. ? coēgērun: like its English equivalent, compel, cōgō may govern an infinitive clause, here Orgetorigem . . . dicere. In the sense of bring together, 6, it governs an accusative alone.

3. damnātum . . . oportēbat, ut Ignī cremārētur: if convicted, punishment by burning must befall him; lit. the punishment that he be burned must befall (him) convicted. damnātum limits eum to be supplied as object of sequi. For the participle equivalent to a conditional clause see A. 496 (292); B. 337, 2, b; G. 667; H. 638, 2; H-B. 604, 3. poenam: subject of sequi and forming with it an infinitive clause, subject of the impersonal oportēbat. ut . . . cremārētur: substantive clause in apposition with poenam, A. 561, a (329, 2); B. 207, 3; G. 557;

H. 564, III; H-B. 502, 3, a, n. 1. Further mention of this form of punishment is made in Bk. VI, 16, 19, and Bk. VII, 4.

4. Diē . . . dictiōnis: on the day set for pleading his case. causae: objective genitive after dictiōnis.

5. familiam: household, especially those retainers whose condition was one of virtual slavery. See Introd. 63. ad: about, an adverb modifying decem. mīlia: acc., in apposition with familiam.

6. clientēs, obaerātōs: for their status see Introd. 63.

7-9. per eōs: through them; not necessarily by actual violence, but by the fear their large numbers inspired. nē diceret: a clause of purpose, to be translated freely with sē ēripuit, avoided standing trial. cum . . . cōnārētur: for mood and tense see A. 546 (325); B. 288, 1, B; G. 585; H. 600, II, 1; H-B. 524.

11-12. neque abest suspiciō . . . quīn: and the suspicion is not lacking . . . that, etc., an instance of litotes, and so equivalent to there is a strong suspicion. neque abest suspiciō is akin in meaning to nōn esse dubium, 3, 21; see note there for the quīn clause. Observe neque, meaning and not, and ut, as, a frequent meaning with an indicative following. The emphasis in ipse is sufficiently preserved in the English suicide.

Construction of Helvētiīs 1, ignī 3, Diē 4, hominum 5, quōrum 6, rem 8, armīs 9, sibi 12. Principal parts of coēgērunt 2, sequī, oportēbat 3, cōnstitūtā 4, mortuus est 10, cōnscīverit 12.

13. CHAPTER 5. nihilō: abl. of degree of difference; with minus, nevertheless; lit. less by nothing.

14. ut ē . . . exeant: (viz.) to leave, a substantive clause in apposition with id.

15. Ubi iam: when at length. In narration ubi is most frequently followed by the perfect indicative. parātōs: predicate adjective, sē being the subject of esse. oppida: towns with natural or artificial fortifications.

16. numerō: in number, abl. of specification. ad: about, an adverb as in 5, above. vīcōs: unprotected villages.

17. privāta aedificia: isolated dwellings in the country.

18-19. praeter quod: except what, equivalent to praeter id quod. portātūrī erant: they intended to take. ut . . . parātiorēs . . . essent: in order to be better prepared, a clause of purpose. domum: acc. after the idea of motion in reditiōnis, A. 427, 2 (258, b); B. 182, 1, b; G. 337; H. 419, 1; H-B. 450, b. spē ablātā: abl. absolute, by removing the hope.

20-21. trium mēnsium: to last three months, a three months' supply of, gen. of measure, A. 345, b (215, b); B. 203, 2; G. 365, 2; H. 440, 3; H-B. 355. quemque . . . efferre: for the construction after iubent see A. 563, a (331, a); B. 331, II; G. 423, 2, n. 6; H. 565, 3; H-B. 587. domō: for the case see A. 427, 1 (258, a); B. 229, 1, b; G. 390, 2; H. 462, 4; H-B. 451, a.

23-24. utī . . . ūsī . . . exustis . . . proficiscantur: lit. having adopted the same plan, their towns having been burned, to set out along with them, but translated best by three infinitives, to adopt . . . to burn . . . and to set out. cōnsiliō: for the abl. with utor see A. 410 (249); B. 218, 1; G. 407; H. 477; H-B. 429. eīs: referring to the Helvetii, used instead of the reflexive sē to avoid applying suīs and sē, in close proximity, to different persons.

24-26. Bōiōsque . . . receptōs . . . adsciscunt: and they admit to their numbers and ally with themselves the Boii. receptōs is equivalent to a finite verb coördinate with adsciscunt; cf. damnātum, 3, above, equivalent to a conditional clause. oppugnārant: contracted from oppugnāverant.

Construction of ēius, mortem, id 13, reditiōnis, pericula subeunda 19, sibi 20, finitimis 22. Principal parts of incendunt 17, sublātā, subeunda 19, efferre, iubent 21, ūsī 23, proficiscantur 24, receptōs 26.

Page 5. 1-2. CHAPTER 6. Erant: there were, a common meaning of the verb sum standing at the beginning of a sentence. omnīnō itinera duo: only two routes, i.e. for migration westward. itineribus: omī in translation. In Latin an antecedent may be repeated in the relative clause. The ablative is employed to express the way by which. quibus . . . possent: a clause of characteristic, A. 535, a (320, a); B. 283, 1, 2; G. 631, 2; H. 591, 5; H-B. 521, 1. per Sēquanōs: through (the country of) the Sequani. angustum: the narrowest point is at the Pas de l'Écluse.

3-5. vix quā . . . dūcerentur: where carts could hardly be hauled one at a time. For the mood see references on possent, 2, above, but H-B. 517, 2. The normal order, quā vix, is reversed to emphasize vix. quā is an adverb. ut . . . possent: so that, etc., for the mood see A. 537, 1 (319, 1); B. 284, 1; G. 552, 1; H. 570; H-B. 521, 2. prohibēre: sc. eōs as object.

6. multō: adverb, in origin the abl. neuter of multus expressing degree of difference.

7. Allobrogum: the Allobroges as far back as 121 B.C. had submitted to Roman domination. A deputation came to Rome in 63 asking for a redress of certain grievances. Failing of their object, the tribe rose in revolt in 62, but was subdued by the propraetor C. Pomptinus.

8-9. nōn nullis locis: in several places; for the abl. without a preposition see A. 429, 1 (258, f); B. 228, 1, b; G. 385, N. 1; H. 485, 2; H-B. 436. vadō trānsitur: is forded, can be forded; the abl. is one of means.

11. finibus: dat. after proximum.

13. bonō animō: in a friendly mood, in the predicate after vidērentur. For the case see A. 415 (251); B. 224, 1; G. 400; H. 473, 2; H-B. 443. in: towards. vidērentur: subjunctive in a subordinate clause in indirect discourse.

14-15. ut . . . paterentur: to allow, substantive clause, object of persuāsūrōs and coāctūrōs. An infinitive clause is the normal construction in Caesar after cōgō, compel (cf. 4, 2); the ut clause here is due to persuāsūrōs. suōs: refers to the Allobroges, eōs to the Helvetii. See note on eis, 4, 24. eōs ire: infinitive clause, the usual construction in Caesar after patior, allow, permit. omnibus . . . comparātis: abl. absolute, having made all preparations for departure, or when they had made, etc.

16. quā . . . omnēs conveniant: on which all are to assemble

(omit diē in translation). For the mood see A. 531, 2 (317, 2); B. 282, 2; G. 630; H. 590; H-B. 502, 2.

17-18. diēs: observe the change of gender from diē, and see A. 97, a (73); B. 53; G. 64; H. 135; H-B. 101. a. d. V. Kal. Apr., i.e. ante diem quintum Kalendās Aprīlēs, March 28th by the pre-Julian calendar, March 24th by the Julian. For Roman dates see A. 631, 424, g (376, 259, e); B. 371, 5, d; G. p. 491; H. 754, III, 2; H-B. 664, 667. L. Pīōne, A. Gabīniō cōn-sulibus; i.e. in 58 B.C.

Construction of domō 1, Helvētiōrum, quī 7, Genava 11. Compare difficile 2, expeditius 6, Extrēmum 10, bonō 13. Explain the tense of Erant 1, possent 2, impēdēbat 4, pācāti erant, fluit 8, existimābant 14, dīcunt 16. Principal parts of fluit 8, vidērentur 13, paterentur 15, conveniant 16.

19. CHAPTER 7. Caesarī: dat. of indirect object. The word belongs grammatically with the subordinate cum clause, but is the source of a subject for mātūrat. In such a combination of functions a noun is frequently put first in the sentence. id: it, explained by eōs . . . cōnārī. cum . . . nūntiātum esset: for mood and tense see note on cōnārētur, 4, 9.

20. ab urbe: from (the vicinity of) the city, "the city" being Rome. As a proconsul invested with military authority Caesar could not remain within the city limits. proficīscī: infinitive, complementary to mātūrat.

21. quam . . . itineribus: by the most rapid travel possible; potest, though unnecessary, is used to reënforce quam with the superlative. According to Plutarch the journey was accomplished in eight days. Galliam ulteriōrem: i.e. the Trans-alpine province.

22-23. ad: with town names after verbs of motion ad means into the vicinity of, after verbs of rest in the vicinity of. Prōvinciae . . . imperat: calls upon the whole province for, etc. For the dat. with imperō see A. 369 (227, f); B. 187, II, a; G. 346; H. 424; H-B. 364, 4. The usual construction after imperō is a dative and an objective clause introduced by ut or nē; the clause is here replaced by a noun, numerus.

24-25. legiō ūna: the 10th legion, which became Caesar's favorite. quī erat ad Genavam: at Geneva. Latin frequently employs a relative clause where English uses an adjective phrase.

Page 6. 1-2. lĕgātōs . . . mittunt: the Helvetian emigrants as a whole had not yet assembled at the Rhone. nō-bilissimōs: a substantive. cōlius lĕgātīōnis: an embassy of which. An appositional antecedent regularly stands in the relative clause, taking the case of the relative.

4-5. quī dīcerent: to say, a relative clause of purpose. sibi esse in animō: that they had it in mind, that they intended. For the case of sibi see A. 373 (231); B. 190; G. 349; H. 430; H-B. 374. facere: subject of esse.

6. nūllum: placed last in the sentence for emphasis. rogāre: sc. sē as subject. The accusative subject of an infinitive is sometimes omitted, if readily understood from the context. ut . . . sibi liceat: that they be permitted to do so; for the mood see A. 563 (331); B. 295, 1; G. 546; H. 565; H-B. 530, 2. sibi is dat. after liceat, of which facere is the subject. voluntāte: with his approval; for the case see A. 418, a (253, n.); B. 221; G. 397; H. 473, 3; H-B. 414, a.

7-8. Caesar: in thought the common subject of tenēbat and putābat, and so placed first. L. Cassium . . . occisum exercitumque . . . missum: indirect discourse after memoriā tenēbat. This defeat occurred in 107 B.C., at the time of the invasion of the Cimbri, with whom part of the Helvetii allied themselves.

9. iugum: yoke, two upright spears, with a third spear fixed crosswise, under which the defeated army marched in token of submission. concedendum (esse) nōn putābat: thought permission should not be given. The infinitive is impersonal. neque: and not; take the negative with existimābat.

10-11. inimicō animō: unfriendly disposed, abl. of quality, like animō, 5, 13. datā facultāte: if given the opportunity, abl. absolute; lit.? itineris faciundī: of marching; for the gerundive construction see A. 503, 504 (297, 298); B. 339, 1; G. 427, 428; H. 626, 1; H-B. 612, 1.

12-13. dum milites . . . convenirent: until the soldiers . . . should assemble; for the mood and tense see A. 553 (328); B. 293, III, 2; G. 572; H. 603, II, 2; H-B. 507, 5. diem: time.

14-15. si quid vellent, . . . reverterentur: if they wanted anything, let them return, equivalent to si quid vultis, . . . revertimini, in direct discourse. For the subjunctive, reverterentur, see A. 588 (339); B. 316; G. 652; H. 642; H-B. 538. ad: by, or about. Id. April.: April 13th.

Construction of eōs 5, 19, facere 20, itineribus 21, pontem 24, rescindī 25; certiorēs 6, 1, maleficiō 4, habērent 5, posset 12, lēgātis 13. Principal parts of pervenit 5, 22, rescindī 25; occisum, pulsum 6, 8, concēdendum 9, intercēdere 12, respondit 13, sūmptūrum, vellent 14, reverterentur 15.

16. CHAPTER 8. legiōne, militibus: abl. of means.

20-21. mārum: merely an earthen rampart. In all probability this was not a continuous fortification, for the southern bank of the Rhone was in most places precipitous enough to constitute a natural barrier. At the few points where the slope of the bank was gradual, the upper part of the slope was cut down, and a trench was excavated at the foot of the cutting. Colonel Stoffel estimated the total length of the works at these few places to be about 5000 meters. The castella were probably earthen redoubts, located, presumably, in proximity to the various sections of the rampart. The præsidia were detachments of troops, stationed doubtless in the castella. pedum: gen. of measure; cf. mēnsium, 4, 20. dispōnit, commūnit: the omission of a conjunction, et here, between coördinate verbs is called asyndeton. castella commūnit: establishes strong redoubts.

22-23. quō facilius . . . prohibēre posset: that he might be able to stop them the more easily; for the use of quō and the mood see A. 531, 2, a (317, b); B. 282, 1, a; G. 545, 2; H. 568, 7; H-B. 502, 2, b. si . . . cōnārentur: if they should attempt, a condition future to the past verb posset, upon which it depends. sē invitō: against his wish, abl. absolute.

Page 7. 2. negat: says not, the negative to be taken with posse. mōre et exemplō: in accordance with the custom and precedent.

4-5. prohibitūrum: sc. sē and eōs as subject and object respectively. eā spē dēiectī: disappointed in this hope; spē is abl. of separation. nāvibus iūctis, etc.: abl. absolute, with accessory idea of means. Apparently bridges of boats are meant by the first phrase.

6. alii: another alii, which we should expect before nāvibus, may be supplied in translation, disappointed in this hope, some of the Helvetii . . . others, etc.

7-9. sī . . . possent, cōnātī: having tried (to see) if they could; for the mood see A. 576, a (334, f); B. 300, 3; G. 460, 1 b; H. 649, II, 3; H-B. 582, 2, a. operis mūnitiōe: by the protecting intrenchment. cōnātū: abl. of separation.

Construction of milia 6, 19, opere 21; sē, mōre 7, 2, posse, alii 3, cōnentur 4, vadis 6. Principal parts of infuit 6, 18, dispōnit 21; vēnit 7, 1, ostendit 4, iūctis 5, dēstitērunt 9.

Page 8. 1-3. CHAPTER 9. Relinquēbātur: there was left, there remained. ūna: one only, only the. per Sēquanōs: an adjective phrase limiting via. Sēquanis invitis: translate as sē invitō, 6, 22, or as a condition. angustiās: i.e. at the Pas de l'Écluse. cum . . . possent: since, etc.; for the mood see A. 549 (326); B. 286, 2; G. 586; H. 598; H-B. 526.

4. eō dēprecātōre: by his intercession, abl. absolute; lit.? impetrārent: gain their request or object. The verb is here used absolutely, i.e. without an object.

5. grātiā, largitiōe: may be regarded as abl. of means or cause.

6. plūrimum: acc. of degree with poterat. Helvētiis: for the case depending on amicus see A. 384 (234, a); B. 192, 1; G. 359; H. 434, 2; H-B. 362, II.

7. filiam . . . dūxerat: for the fact cf. 3, 17-18.

8-9. novis rēbus: revolution. For the case see A. 367 (227); B. 187, II, a; G. 346; H. 426; H-B. 362, II. quam plūrimās:

as many as possible. habēre obstrictās: to have under obligations, slightly different from obstringere in that the phrase emphasizes the continuance of the relation.

10-14. rem: task, mission. ā Sēquanis impetrat, ut . . . patiantur: induces the Sequani to permit; lit.? obsidēs uti . . . dent, perficit: brings about an exchange of hostages. For the objective clauses, ut . . . patiantur and uti . . . dent, see A. 568 (332): B. 297, 1; G. 553, 1; H. 571, 3; H-B. 521, 3, a. Sēquanī, Helvētī: sc. obsidēs dant. nē . . . prohibeant, ut . . . transeant: purposes of the exchange of hostages.

Construction of Sēquanīs 1, angustiās, Hīs 2, impe-trarent 4, dūxerat 7, cupiditāte, rēgnī 8, ire 11, itinerē 12. Principal parts of Relinquēbātur 1, studēbat 8, obstrictās, volēbat 9, patiantur 11.

14. CHAPTER 10. Helvētīs esse in animō: the Helvetii intend. For case of Helvētīs see note on sibi, 6, 4. The subject of esse is facere, 16.

16-17. quae civitās: a state which. For the position of the relative see note on cūius lēgatiōnis, 6, 2. absunt, est: indicative, because the clauses in which these verbs stand are not part of the indirect discourse, but are inserted by the narrator.

17-20. Id si fieret: if this should happen. māgnō . . . futūrum (esse), ut . . . habēret: it would be very dangerous to the province for it to have. prōvinciae: genitive, but best translated as above. For ut . . . habēret (lit. that it should have), substantive clause subject of futūrum (esse), see A. 569, a (332, a, 288, f); B. 297, 2, 270, 3, a; G. 553, 3; H. 571, 1, 619, 2; H-B. 521, 3, a, 472, c. locīs: dat. after finitimōs, as neighbors (to). The western districts of the Transalpine province are meant. patentibus: exposed, i.e. without a barrier of mountains or other natural protection. mūnitiōnī: for the dat. with praeficit see A. 370, a (228, n. 1); B. 187, III, 2; G. 347, 3; H. 429, 1; H-B. 376, a.

21. T. Labiēnum: Caesar's ablest and most trusted lieutenant in the Gallic war. In the Civil war he espoused the cause of Pompey and the senate. He was killed at the battle of Munda.

22-23. Italiam: i.e. the Cisalpine province. duās legiōnēs: the 11th and 12th. trēs: the 7th, 8th, and 9th. circum: winter quarters were usually established in the vicinity of, not in, a town. Aquilēsiā: founded in 182 B.C., strongly fortified and garrisoned to resist Gauls and Illyrians.

24-25. quā proximū iter . . . erat: by the shortest route. See map, Campaign of 58. The route is not absolutely certain. quinque: these, with the 10th legion left to guard the Rhone, would give Caesar perhaps 25,000 men. He had also 4000 Gallic cavalry.

Page 9. 3. Complūribus: with proeliis. his pulsīs: abl. absolute. ab Ocelō: from the vicinity of Ocelum, A. 428, a (258, a, n. 1); B. 229, 2; H. 462, 3; H-B. 453, 1.

6. in Segusiāvōs: Caesar's camp was pitched probably on the heights of Sathonay, where Labienus doubtless joined him with the 10th legion. Two months may have been required for the trip to and from Italy and the recruiting of the new legions. It was now, therefore, about June 7th of the Julian calendar, which will be followed for dates in these notes.

Construction of Caesari, esse 8, 14, periculō 18, populī 19, Aquilēsiā 23, legiōnibus, ire 25; prōvinciae 9, 5, primī 8. Principal parts of intellegēbat 8, 17, praeficit 21, cōnscribit 23.

9-10. CHAPTER 11. Helvētī . . . in Haeduōrum finēs pervēnerant: the unwieldy column of emigrants could move but slowly, and had gone only so far in their westward journey during the two months of Caesar's absence.

11. Haedui: among the first Gallic peoples to form an alliance with the Romans, about 123 B.C. See Intro. 68. cum: causal, since. sē suaque: themselves and their property.

13-16. rogātum: to beg; for the use of the supine see A. 509 (302); B. 340, 1, a; G. 435, n. 3; H. 633; H-B. 618, a. ita sē . . . dē . . . meritōs esse: their deserts as regards the Roman people had always been such, indirect discourse after the verb of saying implied in rogatum. ut . . . nōn dēbuerint: that their fields ought not to have been laid waste, etc., a negative clause of result. For tense of dēbuerint see A. 485, c (287, c); B. 268, 6; G. 513; H. 550; H-B. 478, 582, 3, a.

18-19. Caesarem certiōrem faciunt: inform Caesar (lit. ?); a phrase of frequent occurrence, followed by indirect discourse or by dē with the ablative. dēpopulātis: perfect participles of deponent verbs are sometimes used as passives. nōn facile . . . prohibēre: translate freely, found it difficult to keep off.

22. sibi . . . nihil esse reliquū: they had nothing left. sibi is dat. of possession. For the gen. reliquū dependent on nihil see A. 346, a, 1 (216, a, 1); B. 201, 1; G. 369; H. 440, 5; H-B. 346, a.

23-25. nōn expectandum sibi statuit: decided that he must not wait. expectandum (esse) is impersonal; for the case of sibi see A. 374, a (232); B. 189, 1; G. 355; H. 431; H-B. 373, 1. dum . . . pervenirent: until they should arrive; for the mood see A. 553 (328); B. 293, III, 2; G. 572; H. 603, II, 2; H-B. 507, 5.

Construction of tempore 17, certiōrem 18, hostium 19, solum 22. Principal parts of trādūxerant 10, dēfendere 12, dēbuerint 16, recipiunt 21.

Page 10. 1. CHAPTER 12. per: through, the territories of the two peoples being regarded loosely as one tract.

2. incrēdibilī lēnitāte: abl. of quality, limiting flūmen.

3. in utram partem fluat: an indirect question.

4. ratibus, lintribus: abl. of means. iūctis: with lintribus only. trānsībant: were crossing.

5-6. partēs . . . flūmen trādūxisse: had led three fourths of their forces across this river; for the two accusatives see A. 395, N. 1 (239, 2, b); B. 179, 1; G. 331, R. 1; H. 413; H-B. 386.

7. citrā: i.e. on the east side. Ararim: for the acc. ending see A. 74, d, 75, a, 1 (55, d, 56, a, 1); B. 38, 1; G. 57, R. 1;

H. 102, 3, N.; H-B. 88, 1. reliquam: equivalent to relictam. dē tertiā vigiliā: in the course of the third watch, i.e. after midnight. dē, lit. out of, in such expressions indicates that the watch has begun. For the divisions of the night see Introd. 30.

Page 11. 1. quae . . . trānsierat: the attack on the Tigurini occurred probably from ten to twelve miles north of Caesar's camp.

3. mandārunt: contracted from mandāvērunt. in: in, lit. into, followed by the accusative because of the idea of motion in abdidērunt.

5. dīvisā est: is divided, as in 1, 1.

6-7. cum: when. memoriā: abl. of time when. L. Casium: cf. 6, 7-8, and note.

8. sive cāsū sive cōnsiliō: by chance or by the intention. The ablative of certain nouns in very common use is used to express manner without a preposition.

9-10. quae pars . . . ea: that part which; for the position of the antecedent see A. 307, b, N. (200, b, N.); B. 251, 4, a; G. 616, 1; H. 399, 3; H-B. 284, 6. populō Rōmānō: on the Roman people, dat. of indirect object after intulerat. princeps persolvit: was the first to pay, first paid; for use of the adjective with adverbial force see A. 290 (191); B. 241, 2; G. 325, 6; H. 497, 3; H-B. 243.

11-13. Quā: not which. ēius: his. L. Pisonis: consul in this year, 58, father of Caesar's third wife, Calpurnia. avum: object of interfēcerant.

Construction of oculis, possit 10, 3, Helvētiōs, trādūxisse 6, reliquam 7, profectus 8, fugae 11, 3, Tigurinus 4, domō, exisset 6. Principal parts of adgressus, concīdit 11, 2, abdidērunt 4, interfēcerat 7, ultus est 12.

15. CHAPTER 13. Hōc proeliō factō; after this battle, which occurred about June 10th. ut: may be removed from its normal position at the head of its clause, in order to emphasize some word or phrase, here reliquās cōpiās.

16. pontem . . . cūrat: he causes a bridge to be built over the Arar; possibly a pontoon bridge is meant. faciendum: for the gerundive after cūrō and the like see A. 500, 4 (294, d); B. 337, 8, b, 2; G. 430; H. 622; H-B. 612, III.

18-19. id: object of fēcisse, is explained by the appositive clause, ut . . . trānsirent, A. 561, a, 568 (329, 332); B. 297, 3; G. 557; H. 571, 4; H-B. 521, 3, a, n. Translate with the clause as object, knew that he had accomplished the passage of the river in one day, a thing which they, etc. diēbus vīginti: in twenty days, abl. of the time within which, or in the course of which.

21. bellō: abl. of time when. As Cassius's defeat occurred in 107, Divico must have been an old man in 58.

22. si pācem, etc.: Divico's speech stands in indirect discourse. Review the principles in the grammar, A. 580 ff.; (336 ff.); B. 314 ff.; G. 650 ff.; H. 642 ff.; H-B. 589, 534 ff.

23-24. faceret: would make; direct, will make. cōstituisset: should have established; direct, you shall have established (second person, Divico addressing Caesar in person).

Page 12. 1. sīn . . . perseverāret: but if he persisted in; direct, but if you persist in, etc. reminisceretur: let him remember; direct, remember (imperative).

2. incommodi, virtūtis: for the construction with verbs of remembering see A. 350, c (219); B. 206, 2; G. 376; H. 454; H-B. 350.

3. Quod . . . adortus esset: as to the fact that he (you) attacked, etc., or as to his (your) unexpected attack on one division; for the use of quod see A. 572, a (333, a); B. 299, 2; G. 525, 2; H. 588, II, 3, n.; H-B. 552, 2.

5-7. nē . . . tribueret: let him not give, etc.; direct, don't give any great credit to your own valor. tribueret is used absolutely. ipsōs: i.e. the Helvetii, used instead of sē to avoid applying suae and sē to different persons. ut . . . contenderent, etc.: clauses of result; ut is to be understood after quam.

8-10. dolō, insidiis: the abl. without in is used with nūtor, rely upon. nē committeret, ut is locus . . . nōmen cape- ret: let him not cause, etc.; direct, don't cause the place . . . to take its name. The ut clause is a substantive clause of result, object of committeret. ubi cōstitissent: where they should make their (we shall make our) stand.

Construction of proeliō 11, 15, adventū 17. What would be the mood in direct discourse of posset 11, 16, intellegerent 19; possent 12, 5? Principal parts of cōsequi 11, 16, commōti 18, ēgit 22; adortus esset 12, 3.

12. CHAPTER 14. His: sc. lēgātis. Caesar's reply is also in indirect discourse. Direct, I feel less hesitation because I am aware of the facts which you (envoys) have related, and I am the more incensed the less these things happened according to the deserts of the Roman people, etc. eō: abl. of cause, expl. by quod causal. dubitātiōnis: gen. of the whole after minus.

14. eō, quō: the . . . the, correlatives, abl. of degree of difference; lit. by that much . . . by how much. ferre: sc. sē as subject.

15. quī sī: if they, i.e. the Roman people. sī alicūius: if some; sī cuius would mean if any. iniūriæ: for the gen. depending on cōnsciū see A. 349, a (218, a); B. 204, 1; G. 374; H. 451, 1; H-B. 354.

16. fuisset: the same mood and tense would stand in direct discourse, in a past condition contrary to fact. fuisse: in direct discourse we should have fuit, indicative, because the possibility of being on their guard was a fact irrespective of the condition. Caesar might have said would have been on their guard, for which the subjunctive, cāvisset, would have been employed. eō: by the fact, explained by the substantive appositive clause, quod . . . putāret, that, etc.

17-18. commissum (esse), timendum (esse): impersonals, did not know they had done anything, did not think they ought to fear. quārē timēret: on account of which they should fear, a relative clause with the subjunctive expressing propriety. Quod sī: but if, now if; for the case and force of quod see A. 397, a (240, b); B. 185, 2; G. 610, R. 2; H. 510, 9; H-B. 385, a, N.

19. contumēllae: gen. after a verb of forgetting; cf. incommodi after reminisceretur, 2, above. vellet: direct, vellem, in a present condition contrary to fact. The conclusion, posse, 22, represents direct possum, A. 586 (338); B. 315, 2; G. 651, R. 1; H. 642, 2; H-B. 591, a. num: introducing an indirect question, is equivalent to -ne.

20-21. infūriarum: depends on memoriam, 22. quod, etc.: that, etc., substantive appositive clauses explaining iniuriarum. iter . . . per vim temptassent: had tried to force their way.

22-24. Quod . . . admirarentur: that they boasted . . . and were surprised, substantive clauses, subjects of pertinere. viotoriā: abl. of cause. tam diū sē . . . intulisse: at having inflicted, etc.; lit. that they had inflicted, depending on admirarentur. eōdem pertinere: pointed in the same direction, hinting apparently at their approaching punishment in accordance with divine will; cf. the following lines.

26-28. Cōnsuēsse: (contracted from cōnsuēvisse); direct, cōnsuērunt (lit. have become accustomed), are wont, to which concedere, 28, is complementary. Other verbs showing the same force of the perfect are nōvi, I know, memini, I remember, ōdi, I hate. quō . . . doleant: a clause of purpose; see references on 6, 22. In this sentence the tenses are all primary, the author having chosen to shift the point of view to the present in the statement of a general truth. his: refers to quōs and hominēs. secundiorēs rēs: unusual prosperity. When the standard of comparison is omitted the Latin comparative may be translated by too, rather more than usual, or by some equivalent; so diuturniorem, unusually long.

2. factūrōs (esse): a subject is to be understood from eis, 1. Haeduīs (and Allobrogibus): dat. of indirect object after satisfaciant, make reparation to.

5. factūrum (esse): direct, faciam, future indicative.

7. utī . . . cōnsuērint: a clause of result. nōn: take closely with dare.

8. ēius rei . . . esse testem: referring to the fact that the survivors of Cassius's army had been compelled to give hostages to the Helvetii.

Construction of eō invitō 12, 20, sē 23, intulisse 24, his 27, ipsis, sociis 13, 3. Subject of fuisse 12, 16. Principal parts of timēret 12, 18, oblivisci 19, Cōnsuēsse 25, doleant 26, polliceantur 13, 2, satisfaciant 4, institūtōs 6, discessit 9.

10. CHAPTER 15. castra . . . movent: as the mountains prevented a direct march west for so large a number, the Helvetii followed the valley of the Saône for some distance, then turned northwest.

13. coāctum habēbat: had collected; for the perfect participle with habēō see A. 497, b (292, c); B. 337, 7; G. 238; H. 431, 3; H-B. 605, 5, a. quī videant: to see, a relative clause of purpose; quī is plural from the implied plural in the collective antecedent, equitātum. quās in partēs: in what direction, etc., an indirect question, hence the subjunctive.

14-15. Quī: they, these. cupidius: too eagerly. For the comparative with the standard unexpressed see note on secundiorēs, 12, 27. locō: for the locative abl. without a preposition see A. 429, 1 (258, f, 1); B. 228, 1, b, 385, n. 1; H. 485, 2; H-B. 436.

16. paucī . . . cadunt: in Chapter 18 we are told that the remainder fled through the treachery of their leader, Dumnorix. dē nostris: of our men; for the partitive expression see A. 346, c (216, c); B. 201, 1, a; G. 372, r. 2; H. 444; H-B. 346, e.

17. equitibus: abl. of means.

19. novissimō agmine: from their rear line. proeliō, in battle.

20-22. satis habēbat . . . prohibēre: deemed it sufficient to prevent. rapinis, pābulātiōnibus populātiōnibusque: abl. of separation; the plural of abstract nouns is frequently employed in the sense of acts of so and so. diēs . . . quīn-decim: June 13-27.

24. nōn amplius . . . interesset: there was an interval of not more than five or six miles each day. The distributives quīnis and sēnis are used with reference to successive days. For milibus governed by amplius see A. 406 (247); B. 217, 1; G. 296; H. 471; H-B. 416, d.

Construction of diē 10, proeliō, sublātī 16, diēs 22, interesset 24. Principal parts of insecūtī 14, cadunt 16, prōpulerant 18, laccessere, coepērunt 19. Compare cupidius 14, audācius 18.

Page 14. 1-2. CHAPTER 16. Haeduōs frūmentum flāgitāre: kept importuning the Haedui for the grain which (as he reminded them) they had promised in the name of the state. For the two accusatives, Haeduōs, frūmentum, see A. 396, N. (239, c); B. 178, 1, a; G. 339; H. 411, 2; H-B. 393. For flāgitāre, historical infinitive with subject nominative, see A. 463 (275); B. 335; G. 647; H. 610; H-B. 595. essent pollicitī: Caesar the author reports informally the words of Caesar the general, hence the subjunctive, A. 592, 1, 3 (341, b, d); B. 323; G. 508, 3; H. 649, I; H-B. 535, a. frigora: the cold seasons, the cold climate, the plural marking the cold as a general characteristic. To a Roman the climate would seem cold in comparison with that of Italy. The climate has probably become milder since Caesar's time.

4. posita: predicate adjective. frūmenta: the plural is used of standing grain, crops.

5. nē . . . quidem: this phrase regularly emphasizes the enclosed word. Scanty forage was doubtless due, partly, to the large number of animals belonging to the Helvetii.

6. frūmentō: abl. governed by utī, 7. flūmine: up the river, abl. of the way by which. nāvibus: in boats, abl. of means.

8-9. Diem ex diē dūcere: put him off day after day. Diem is acc. of duration of time, dūcere and dicere are historical infinitives. cōnferri, comportāri, adesse: sc. frūmentum as subject.

10-11. diūtius: too long. quō . . . oportēret: when it would be necessary to issue grain to his soldiers. mētīri: subject of the impersonal oportēret. For the distribution of grain see Introd. 22.

12. cōpiam: equivalent to numerus.

13. in hīs: among them. summō magistrātui praeerat: held the highest office. For the dat. governed by praeerat see A. 370 (228); B. 187, III; G. 347; H. 429; H-B. 376.

14. quem: the grammatical antecedent is magistrātui, the logical antecedent the officer himself. vergobretum: a Celtic word meaning judgment dealer. Caesar tells us in the seventh book that the vergobret was not allowed to leave the state during his term of office. annuus: annually, adjective translated as adverb; cf. princeps, 11, 10.

15. in suōs: over his people.

16-20. quod . . . nōn sublevētur: the reason given by Caesar the general, hence the subjunctive; cf. essent polliciti, 2, above. possit: sc. frūmentum as subject. For the mood see A. 593 (342); B. 324, 1; G. 663, 1; H. 652; H-B. 539. propinquīs hostibus: abl. absolute. māgnā ex parte: to a great extent, largely. sit dēstitūtus: the subjv. again in a reported reason, like sublevētur.

Construction of pābuli 5, cōnferri 9, mīlitibus 11, Diviciācō, Liscō 13, vergobretum, annuus 14, tempore 17, suscēperit 19, sit dēstitūtus 20. Principal parts of posita 4, averterant, nōlēbat 8, cōnferri 9, mētīri 11, emī 16, queritur 20.

22. CHAPTER 17. quod: antecedent unexpressed; so in English, set forth what he had before kept silent about. Observe the verb taceō used transitively. esse nōn nūllōs: indirect discourse; direct, there are some whose prestige . . . is very great, who have more authority. . . . These men . . . are hindering the people, etc. There were two factions among the Haedui, one led by Diviciacus, friendly to the Romans, the other led by Dum-norix, national and patriotic, and desirous of shaking off allegiance to Rome. The leaders of the patriotic party are here referred to in the words nōn nullōs.

23-24. plūrimum, plūs : acc. of degree. privātim : translate as if privātī, (though only) private citizens.

Page 15. 1-3. nē . . . cōnferant : from collecting; dependent on dēterrēre, A. 558, b (331, e); B. 295, 3; G. 548; H. 566; H-B. 502, 3, b. praestāre : it is better (they say); the subject is the infinitive perferre, 4. Liscus here summarizes (lines 2-6) the arguments of the anti-Roman agitators. iam nōn : no longer. possint : sc. Haedui as subject.

4-6. neque dubitāre dēbēre : sc. as subject sē (referring to the agitators), they have no reason to doubt (they say). quīn . . . sint ōreptūrī : that they (i.e. the Romans) will take away, or intend to take away. For the mood see A. 558, a (319, d); B. 298; G. 555, 2; H. 595, 1; H-B. 521, 3, b. The periphrastic subjunctive is generally used after nōn dubitō quīn to avoid any ambiguity as to the future meaning. superāverint : perfect subjunctive, shall have vanquished. Haeduis : from the Haedui; for the case see A. 381 (229); B. 188, 2, d; G. 347, 5; H. 429, 2; H-B. 371. ūnā cum : along with, or as well as from. quaeque : equivalent to et ea quae.

8-10. Quīn etiam : with corrective force, nay in fact; and more than that; and not only that, but. quod ōnūntiārit : as to the fact that he has reported, or in reporting; for the use of quod see note on Quod . . . adortus esset, 12, 3. coāctus : compelled, i.e. under stress of circumstances. quantō . . . fēcerit : an indirect question.

Construction of magistrātūs 14, 24; Isdem 15, 6, hostibus 7, periculō, fēcerit 10. The number of cōnferant 15, 2. Principal parts of tacuerat, prōpōnit 14, 22, valeat 23; dēterrēre 15, 1, perferre 4, coērcērī 8.

13. CHAPTER 18. plūribus praesentibus : in the presence of many, abl. absolute.

14-15. dīmīttit, retinet : sc. sed to connect these verbs.

The omission of an adversative conjunction is called adversative asyndeton. sōlō: sc. eō or Liscō.

17-18. esse vōra: that (these statements) are true, referring to the speech of Liscus. ipsum esse Dumnorīgem: that it is in fact Dumnorix. summā audāciā: (a man) of the utmost boldness, abl. of quality; cf. lēnitāte, 10, 2.

19. rērum novārum: objective gen. after cupidum.

20-22. portōria: import duties, and river and bridge tolls. vectigālīa: other taxes, on the produce of the country. pretiō: abl. of price. redēpta habēre: has held the contract for. The combination of a perfect participle with habēre emphasizes the continued state of affairs; cf. coāctum habēbat, 13, 13. The Haedui seem to have employed the same method of collecting taxes as the Romans. The contract for collection was let to the highest bidder, who was bound to pay a fixed sum into the state treasury, making what he could out of the transaction. contrā: against him, adverb.

23. ad largiendum: an adjective phrase is frequently placed between a noun and an adjective, here facultātēs . . . māgnās.

25. neque: and not. domī: at home, locative, A. 427, 3 (258, d); B. 232, 2; G. 411, 2; H. 484, 2; H-B. 449, a.

Page 16. 1. hūius potentīae causā: for the sake of this power; in this meaning causā regularly follows its dependent genitive.

3. uxōrem: for the fact cf. 3, 17-18. sorōrem ex mātře: half-sister.

4. nūptum: the supine; translate with conlocāsse, has given in marriage. in aliās civitātēs: (to men) in other states.

5-6. Helvētīs: for the dative with favēre and cupere see A. 367 (227); B. 187, II, a; G. 346; H. 426, 4, n.; H-B. 362, II. suō nōmine: on his own account.

9-10. summam in spem . . . venīre: is coming to have the highest hopes. imperīō: under the domination, abl. of attendant circumstances.

11. eā, quam habeat, grātiā: his present influence. A limiting clause, here quam habeat, may separate a noun and adjective; cf. the similar position of ad largiendum, 15, 23.

12-13. in quaerendō: upon inquiry, gerund. quod . . . esset factum: in regard to the disastrous cavalry battle of a few days before, lit. as to the fact that, etc.

15. auxiliō Caesarī: to Caesar's assistance; for the two datives see A. 382, 1 (233, a); B. 191, 2, b; G. 356; H. 433; H-B. 360, b.

Construction of annōs 15, 20, redēpta 21, largiendum 23, sūptū 24; homīnī 16, 1, obtinendī 9, diēbus 13, equitātū 15. Principal parts of sentiēbat 15, 13, Quaerit 15, reperit 17, redēpta 21, licente, audeat 22, auxisse 23, alere 25; cupere 16, 4, ōdisse 5, dēminūta 7, restitūtus 8. Compare liberius 15, 16.

18-19. CHAPTER 19. cum: causal. quod: that, etc., explaining rēs, facts.

20-21. obsidēs . . . dandōs cūrāset: had effected an exchange of hostages; for the gerundive with cūrō, see note on pontem . . . faciendum cūrāt, 11, 16. iniussū suō et civitātis: without his order and that of the state, ablative of accordance.

22. Inscientibus ipsis: without their knowledge, abl. absolute.

23. satis esse causae: there was sufficient reason; causae is gen. of the whole.

24. quārē . . . animadverteret: why he should punish, relative clause with subjunctive expressing propriety; cf. quārē timēret, 12, 17.

25. animadvertere: to (do so). The Latin idiom differs from the English in repeating the verb.

Page 17. 1. His: dat. governed by repugnābat, a verb of resisting. ānum: one consideration, explained by the quod clause, that, etc.

2-3. Observe how the limiting phrases, in populum Rōmānum and in sē, separate noun and adjective.

4-5. cōgnōverat: knew, lit. had come to know, pluperfect equivalent to English imperfect; cf. Cōnsuēsse, 12, 25 and note. nē . . . offenderet, verēbātur: was afraid he would offend; for the construction after a verb of fearing see A. 564 (331, f); B. 296, 2; G. 550, 2; H. 567; H-B. 502, 4. Diviciaci animus: we should say simply Diviciacus. priusquam . . . cōnārētur: before he should attempt anything, or before attempting anything; for the mood and tense see A. 551, b (327); B. 292, 1, a; G. 577; H. 605, II; H-B. 507, 4, a.

8. prōvinciae: i.e. the Transalpine province. cui: in whom. omnium rerum: in all matters, equivalent to an adjective, implicit.

9-11. simul . . . et: at the same time . . . and, almost the same as et . . . et. quae . . . sint dicta and quae quisque . . . dixerit are indirect questions. ipsō: i.e. Diviciacus.

12-14. ut . . . vel ipse iubeat: that . . . he (be permitted) either (to) pass judgment himself on Dumnorix after hearing his case or (to) order the state to; ipse refers to Caesar.

Construction of civitatem 16, 24; sius, supplicio 17, 4, sint dicta 11, sius 13. The clause ut . . . iubeat 17, 12-14. Tense of repugnabat 17, 1, verēbātur 5, iubet 6. Principal parts of cognitis 16, 18, animadverteret 24; verēbātur 17, 5, conloquitur 9, Petit 12.

16. CHAPTER 20. nēquid gravius . . . statueret: not to decide upon anything too severe.

17. scire sē: he knew (he said). ex eō: from that fact, therefrom.

18-20. doloris: gen. of the whole depending on plūs. ipse: Diviciacus. ille: (while) he, asyndeton. orēvisset: the subject is Dumnorix, sē referring to Diviciacus.

22-23. ūterētur: an infinitive might have been employed, A. 583, b (336, b); B. 314, 4; G. 635; H. 643, 1; H-B. 535, 1, b. fraternō: equivalent to frātris, objective genitive. existimatiōe vulgi: public opinion. Quod si: but if, here almost for if.

24. ā Caesare: at Caesar's hands. accidisset: for a future perf. indic. or perf. subjv. of direct discourse, shall befall, or should befall. eum locum: such a position.

25-27. nōn suā voluntāte: without his approval, abl. of accordance. quā ex rē futurum (esse), utī: the result of this would be that, etc.; for the periphrasis with futurum esse see A. 569, a (288, f); B. 270, 3, a; G. 248; H. 619, 2; H-B. 472, c.

Page 18. 1. plūribus verbis: in quite a lengthy speech. Caesar's report of it is condensed.

2. rogat, finem . . . faciat: begs him to end his entreaties; for the clause without ut see A. 565, a (331, f, r.); B. 295, 8; G. 546, r. 2; H. 565, 4; H-B. 502, 3, a, footnote 2.

3-5. tantī: of so much value, so great, a predicate genitive; for the case see A. 417 (252, a); B. 203, 3; H. 448, 1; H-B. 356, 1. utī . . . condōnet: a clause of result; translate the verb as pardon with iniūriam, forego with dolōrem. ſuis voluntātī ac precibus: in answer to his wish and entreaties. Caesar's regard for Diviciacus may well have been genuine, but a more urgent reason for leniency was the possibility of alienating the Haedui by dealing severely with so popular a character as Dumnorix, a thing to be avoided in the present crisis.

5-6. vocat, adhibet: asyndeton, sc. et. quae . . . reprehendat: an indirect question.

7-8. ut . . . vitet: to avoid. praeterita: the past.

9. Diviciācō frātrī: in deference to his brother Diviciacus, dat. of reference.

Construction of grātiā 17, 18, plūrimum, domī, minimum 19, opibus, minuendam 21, eī 24; verbis 18, 1, orandī 2, agat, loquātur, possit, 10; the clauses nō quid . . . statueret 17, 16; ut . . . vitet 18, 8. Principal parts of scribere 17, 17, orere 17, 17, visset 20; fiens 18, 1, prēndit 2, reprehendat 6, loquātur 10.

CHAPTER 21. Caesar now resumes the narrative of Chapter 15, interrupted by his account of the interview with the Haeduan chiefs.

Page 19. 1-2. in circuitū: on all sides. quī cōgnōcerent, mīsit: sent (men) to find out, a relative clause of purpose.

3-4. esse: sc. ascēsum or eum as subject. lĕgātum prō praetōre: lieutenant with authority of general; general is the earlier meaning of, praetor. In its developed and usual meaning it was the title of Roman magistrates invested with judicial functions. eīs ducibus: those men as guides.

6. quid sui cōsili sit: what his plan is; cōsili is gen. of the whole depending on quid. Apparently Labienus was to ascend the mountain at the foot of which the enemy were encamped, and to attack by a front and flank movement, while Caesar, after marching up the valley, attacked from the rear.

8-10. rei militāris peritissimus: very skilled in the art of war; for the genitive see A. 349, a (218, a); B. 204, 1; G. 374; H. 451, 1; H-B. 354. L. Sullae: Lucius Cornelius Sulla, who, after a successful military career, was dictator in the years 81-78. See Introd., page x. in: sc. exercitū. M. Crassi: the triumvir, who conducted the war against Spartacus, 72-71.

Construction of mīlia 18, 12; cōgnōscerent 19, 2, ducibus 4, sit 6, itinere, quō 7, peritissimus 9. Principal parts of cōnsēdisse 18, 12; mīsit 19, 2, ascendere 5, ierant 7.

12. CHAPTER 22. cum: the temporal clauses extend through cōgnitus esset, 15. summus mōns: the top of the mountain; for the adjective denoting a part see A. 293 (193); B. 241, 1; G. 291, R. 2; H. 497, 4; H-B. 244.

13. ipse: Caesar.

14-15. passibus: abl. of comparison. Notice the asyndeton, tenērētur, abesset. Point out two other instances in this paragraph. neque . . . aut . . . aut: and neither . . . nor.

16. equō admissō: with horse at full speed, abl. absolute.

18. Insignibus: ornamental devices on shields and helmets.

20-21. ut erat, etc.: just as he had been ordered by Caesar not to bring on a battle, or in accordance with Caesar's orders, not to, etc. eī is dat. of indirect object depending on the impersonal praeceptum erat, of which the nē clause is subject. ipsius: i.e. Caesar's. nisi . . . vīsa essent: part of Caesar's instructions, hence the subjv. of a subordinate clause in indirect discourse for a future perf. indic. of the direct, don't bring on a battle unless you shall see.

22. ut . . . fieret : a clause of purpose.

24. Multō diē : abl. of time when, when the day was well advanced ; i.e. relatively speaking, for it was probably in the forenoon.

26-27. quod nōn vīdisset, prō vīsō sibi renūntiāvisse : had reported to him as (having) seen what he had not seen ; vīsō is the neuter perf. participle used as a substantive. quō cōnsuērat intervāllō : at the usual interval, equivalent to eō intervāllō, quō cōnsuērat.

29. castra pōnit : probably near modern Toulon-sur-Arroux.

Construction of lūce, Lablānō, tenērētur 12, comperit 14, quem 16, occupārī 17, castra 21, proeliō 23, mīlia 28. Tense of cōnsuērat 27. Principal parts of comperit 14, accurrit 16, instruit 19, praeceptum 20, fieret 22.

2. cum . . . oportēret : when (= before) it would be necessary to issue grain to his army.

4-5. rei frūmentāriae . . . existimāvit : thought he must provide for supplies ; prōspiciendum esse is impersonal.

6. Bibracte : for the case see A. 427, 2 (258, b) ; B. 182, 1, a ; G. 337 ; H. 418 ; H-B. 450.

8. quod, etc. : reasons of the Helvetii reported by Caesar, therefore the subjunctives, A. 540 (321) ; B. 286, 1 ; G. 541 ; H. 588, II ; H-B. 535, 2, a.

10. superiōribus locis occupātis : though having taken position on higher ground, a move which would ordinarily indicate intention to join battle. It did in this case, but the Helvetii were ignorant of Considius's mistake.

11. eō, quod : for the reason that. rē : abl. of separation. posse : sc. Rōmānōs.

12-13. ā : in, on ; translate nostrōs and ā novissimō agmine together, our rear line.

Construction of supererat 1, exercituī, mētīrī 2, oppidō 3, mīlibus 4, ire 6, eō 9, locīs occupātīs 10. Principal parts of prōspiciendum 5, contendit 6, discēdere 9, intercolūdi, cōnfiderent 11, conversō 12.

14. CHAPTER 24. id : object of the phrase animū advertit used as equivalent to animadvertit.

15. proximū collem : the site of the battle has been fixed with certainty by Colonel Stoffel's investigations. quī sustinēre : to withstand. The Helvetii had not yet attacked in sufficient force to prevent the Romans from retracing their steps to the hill of Armecy. Here the legions were arrayed and an intrenchment was begun, while the cavalry tried to hold the enemy in check.

16. in colle mediō : half-way up the hill ; for the adjective denoting a part see note on summus mōns, 19, 12.

17. legionū quattuor veterānārum : (consisting) of the four veteran legions, the 7th, 8th, 9th, and 10th.

18-19. duās : the 11th and the 12th. proximē : for the fact cf. 8, 22-23.

20. tōtum montem : if Caesar really wrote these words, they would seem to refer to the slope of the hill above the triple line, i.e. they are practically equivalent to the summū iugum of 18. sarcinās : nothing is said of the heavy baggage. It may have gone on to Bibracte with a small escort.

21-22. eum . . . mūnīrī : this intrenchment, the location of which has been revealed by excavations, is marked C in the plan. superiōre acīē : not part of the triple line, but consisting of the two new legions and the auxiliaries. cōnstitērant : were stationed, lit. had taken position ; the pluperfect with the force of an imperfect ; we have found cōnsueverat and cōgnōverat in the same tense usage.

23. ipsī : the Helvetian fighting men.

24-25. cōnfertissimā acīē : abl. of means, or of manner. phalange : a compact mass of men, those in the first rank presenting a solid barrier of shields held vertically in front, while those behind held their shields horizontally overhead.

Construction of advertit 14, sustinēret 15. Compare proximē 19. Principal parts of instrūxit 17, complēri 20, cōnferrī 21, mūniri 22, rēiectō 24, successērunt 25.

Page 21. 1. CHAPTER 25. suō: sc. equō remōtō. omnium: i.e. of the mounted officers, but not of the cavalry.

2-3. ut . . . tolleret: a clause of purpose. aequātō . . . periculō: by equalizing the danger, abl. absolute. cohortātus: for the general's exhortation to his troops see Introductio 33.

5. gladiis dēstrictis: the usual hand-to-hand encounter, following the javelin volleys. See Introductio 33.

6. Gallis māgnō ad pūgnam erat impedimentō: it was a great hindrance to the Gauls in fighting; for the two datives cf. auxiliō Caesaris, 16, 15, and see A. 382, 1 (233, a); B. 191, 2, a; G. 356; H. 433, 2; H-B. 360, b.

7-9. quod . . . poterant: that, etc., substantive clause, subject of erat, 6. plūribus eōrum scūtis: their shields in many instances. transfixis et colligātis: in the phalanx the shields overlapped, so that one javelin might pierce and bind together two shields. cum: when, with incidental suggestion of repeated occurrences, whenever. ferrum: the iron head. See Introductio 19. sinistrā impeditā: the left arm carried the shield.

10-11. ut . . . praeoptārent: a clause of result. nūdō corpore: with body unprotected, abl. of manner.

14-15. Captō: when they had gained. Bōii et Tulingi: these tribal contingents seem to have been late in reaching the scene of battle. Possibly they had formed the van of the migrating column and now had to march past the wagons to get into battle. As they were the last to arrive Caesar describes them as a "rear guard."

16. novissimis praesidiō erant: formed a rear guard; for the two datives cf. Gallis impedimentō, 6, above. ex itinere: (straight) from the march, immediately.

17. ab latere apertō: on the unprotected flank, i.e. the right.

20. conversa signa bipertitō intulērunt: faced about and advanced in two divisions, lit. carried forward their turned stand- ards; the perf. participle conversa replaces an indicative coördinate with intulērunt. In reality only the third line "faced about."

21. victis ac submōtis: the beaten and dislodged (Helvetii), participles as substantives, in the dative after a verb of resisting. venientēs: those advancing, i.e. the Boii and Tulingi.

Construction of manū 10, passūs 13, milibus 15. Mood of inflexisset 8, ēmittere 10, pūgnāre 11, sustinēret 22. Comment on the order of multī ut 9-10. Principal parts of perfrēgērunt 4, disiectā 5, trānsfixis 7, inflexisset 8, referre 12, claudēbant 16, circumvenire 17, victis, submōtis, resisteret 21.

23. CHAPTER 26. incipitī proeliō . . . pūgnātum est: a battle with double front was fought, long and fierce; proeliō is an abl. of manner, pūgnātum est impersonal passive of an intransitive verb.

25. alterī: one division, the Helvetii; alterī, the other, the Boii and Tulingi. ut coeperant: cf. 13, above. sē recēpērunt, and sē contulērunt, 22, 1, are both used of an orderly retreat, further noticed in the following sentence, Nam, etc.

Page 22. 1-2. hōc tōtō proeliō: throughout this battle, abl. of time, the idea of duration lying chiefly in the adjective tōtō. hōrā septimā: the day between sunrise and sunset was divided into twelve hours, the seventh beginning at noon. cum . . . pūgnātum sit: although the fighting lasted; observe the mood with cum concessive.

3-4. āversum: in flight, lit. turned away. Ad multam noctem: till late at night; cf. multō diē, 19, 24. etiam: in a temporal sense, still.

5. prō vallō: as a rampart. ē locō superiōre: the Gauls seem to have mounted the carts and wagons.

6. venientēs: as they came up. cōficiēbant: would hurl, kept hurling, imperfect of repeated action.

8. impedimentis, castris: for the abl. with potior see A. 410 (249); B. 218, 1; G. 407; H. 477, I; H-B. 429.

10. ūnus ē filiīs: for the partitive expression see A. 346, c (216, c); B. 201, 1, a; G. 372, 2; H. 444, 1; H-B. 346, e. cap-tus: agrees with ūnus, the nearer subject.

12. partem: acc. of duration of time.

13. diē quārtō: July 2d. The Romans regularly reckoned in the day from which the count began. The exact route and stopping-place of the Helvetii cannot be determined. The map is after Napoleon.

16. Lingonas: for the form see A. 81, 5, 82 (63, f, 64); B. 47, 3; G. 66, 4; A. 109, 5; H-B. 95.

17. nē . . . iuvārent, (commanding the Lingones) not to assist them; the idea of command resides in litterās misit. quī sī iūvisset: (saying that) if they did assist them, representing a future perf. indic. of direct discourse.

18. sē eōdem locō . . . habitūrum: he would consider them in the same position as the Helvetii, i.e. as enemies. trīduō intermissō: after an interval of three days.

Construction of possent 21, 24; venientēs 22, 6, nocte 12, diē 13, trīduum 15, locō 18. Subject of pūgnātum sit 2. Order of Diū cum 8. Principal parts of obiēcērant 5, iuvārent 17.

22-24. CHAPTER 27. suppliciterque locūtī flentēs; in suppliant tones and with tears. eōs; i.e. the main body, not the lēgātī. iussisset: Caesar is the subject.

25-26. quī . . . perfūgissent: who (he said) had fled, subjv. in informal indirect discourse.

Page 23. 1. Dum ea coquūrantur: while these were being hunted up; for mood and tense with dum see A. 556 (276, e); B. 293, I; G. 229, r; H. 604, 1; H-B. 559. A neuter pronoun, ea here, may be employed referring to antecedents of different gender, if some of them are inanimate things.

2-3: mīlia . . . perterritī: the participle is masculine according to sense, A. 286, b (187, d); B. 235, B, 2, c; G. 211, b; H. 389, 2; H-B. 325. nē . . . adficerentur: that they would be visited; for the construction after a verb of fearing see A. 564 (331, f);

B. 296, 2; G. 550, 2; H. 567, 4; H-B. 502, 4. armis traditis: if they should deliver up their arms.

4-6. quod . . . existimarent: the reason of the Helvetii as reported by Cæsar, and so the subjv. of informal indirect discourse. occultari: be concealed, not the fact of flight, but the route taken and their destination. omnino ignorari: be altogether overlooked. prima nocte: early at night, the adjective denoting a part; cf. colle medio, 20, 16.

Construction of convēnissent 22, 22, eōs 23, essent, expectare 24, pāgi; Verbigenus 23, 2. Principal parts of prōiēcissent 22, 22, pāruērunt 24, perflūgissent, poposcit 26; conquīruntur 23, 1, traditis 3, ēgressi 7.

9-11. CHAPTER 28. Quod: this. quōrum . . . his: relative clauses frequently precede demonstrative antecedents. English reverses this order; his is dat. of indirect object after imperāvit, the ut clause being the direct object, A. 563 (331); B. 295, 1; G. 546; H. 565; H-B. 502, 3, a. sī . . . vellent: if they wished, part of Caesar's message, hence the subjv. of informal indirect discourse. sibi: in his eyes; for the case see A. 376 (235); B. 188, 2, c; G. 352; H. 425, 4; H-B. 370. reductōs: (them) when they were brought back, object of habuit. in hostium numero habuit: euphemistic for put to death.

14. Helvētiōs, etc.: the Rauraci are not accounted for in this list; a subsequent notice of them makes it probable that they were sent back to their old home.

16. quō famem tolerārent: with which to relieve hunger, or with which they could relieve hunger; the subjunctive is variously explained, but is best taken as potential, A. 531 (317); B. 282, 2; H. 591; H-B. 517, 2.

17. facerent: furnish. ipsōs: i.e. the Helvetii, etc.

19. eā maximē ratione, quod: especially for the reason that.

22. finitimī: neighbors (to), governing the dative following.

23-25. Bōiōs . . . concessit: at the request of the Haedui Caesar granted them permission to establish the Boii in their country, because the Boii were known to be (people) of unusual valor. Bōiōs is the object of conlocārent; petentibus Haeduis is dat. of indirect object after concessit, or abl. absolute; the clause ut . . . conlocarent is best taken as object of concessit, possibly of petentibus. To strengthen the friendly Haedui would redound to the advantage of the Romans. The arrangement was doubtless agreeable to the Boii, as they had no settled home when they joined the Helvetii.

26-27. parem . . . atque ipsi erant: the same . . . as they themselves enjoyed (lit. were); words of likeness and equality are often followed by atque, as. This bestowal of equal rights was probably made at Caesar's dictation and subsequent to the rebellion of 52, in which the Boii remained faithful, on the whole, to the Romans.

Construction of purgati 10, domi, quod 16, eis, facerent 17, ratione 19, incolunt 21, virtute 24. Principal parts of resciit 9, conquirerent 10, iussit 15, restituere 18, noluit 19, incolunt 21, dedērunt 25.

Page 24. 1. CHAPTER 29. tabulae: possibly the same kind of waxed writing tablets as used by the Romans. litteris Graecis: i.e. in the Gallic language, but written with the Greek alphabet, which had become familiar to the southern Gauls through commercial relations with the Greek city Massilia.

3-4. nominatim: in detail. qui numerus . . . exisset: an indirect question depending on ratio. qui . . . possent: a clause of characteristic, therefore the subjunctive.

5-6. rerum: items. capitum: persons, souls. milium: predicate genitive.

8-9. ex his, etc.: of these (there were) about 92,000 who could bear arms; his is not antecedent of qui; the relative clause is characterizing. ad: adverb, about; also in 9. fuērunt: adapted in number to the predicate noun milia, A. 316, b (204, b); B. 254, 4; G. 211, r. 1, Excep. c; H. 390; H-B. 332.

Construction of litteris 1, domo 3, exisset 4, milia 9, domum, censu 10. Principal parts of repertae 1, confectae, relatae 2, rediērunt 10.

WAR WITH ARIOVISTUS, 30-54.

13. CHAPTER 30. Galliae: probably Celtic Gaul only.

14. grātulātum: to offer congratulations, the supine.

15. intelligere sēsē: they knew (they said), indirect discourse.

16. Helvētiōrum infūris populī Rōmānī: injuries inflicted by the Helvetii on the Roman people, subjective and objective genitives.

17. ex ūsū: to the advantage.

18-20. eō cōnsiliō . . . utī . . . Inferrent: with the design of making war; the purpose clause explains cōnsiliō. flōrentissimīs rēbus: abl. absolute, though enjoying the greatest prosperity, and therefore under no necessity of changing their abode.

21. domiciliō: for a home; for the case see A. 382, 2 (233, b); B. 191, 1; G. 356; H. 433, 3; H-B. 361. ēx māgnā cōpiā: from the wide extent of country.

22. iudicāssent: should judge, for a future perf. indic. of direct discourse.

23. stipendiāriās: in the predicate.

Page 25. 1-2. utī sibi . . . indicere . . . liceret: that they be permitted to call, substantive clause, object of petērunt: for the construction of sibi and indicere see A. 565, n. 2 (331, i, n. 3); B. 327, 1; G. 346, r. 2, 422; H. 615; H-B. 362, 585. tōtius Galliae: probably only the Celtic tribes of central Gaul are meant. Caesaris voluntāte: with Caesar's sanction. Theoretically he had no authority to forbid or sanction a council, but the Gauls wished him to understand they were not forming a league against him.

5-6. nē quis ēnūntiāret: that no one should report (the result of their deliberations); substantive clause, object of sānxērunt. inter sē sānxērunt: bound one another. nisi quibus: except (those) to whom. mandātum esset: the duty should be intrusted, impersonal passive.

7. CHAPTER 31. dīmissō: the dismissal only is mentioned, the assembling to be inferred.

8. fuerant: sc. ad Caesarem.

10. Caesarī ad pedēs: at Caesar's feet; for the dat. see A. 377 (235, a); B. 188, 1, n.; G. 350, 1; H. 425, 4, N.; H-B. 368.

11. id: (for) this, acc., object of contendere and labōrāre, and explained by the appositive nē clause, that what they should say should not be reported, and by the utī clause.

15. Galliae tōtius: Celtic Gaul, and probably only the central and eastern portions.

17. Arvernōs: these people had suffered a severe defeat at the hands of the Romans in 121 B.C. See Introd. 68. In Caesar's time the Sequani seem to have been the real leaders of the second faction mentioned.

18. contenderent: had contended; multōs annōs has the same effect as iam diū or iam dūdum with the present and imperfect, A. 471, b (277, b); B. 260, 4; G. 234; H. 535, 1; H-B. 485. factum esse: it had come about, with utī . . . arcesserentur as subject.

19. mercēde: for pay.

21-23. hominēs ferī ac barbarī: being a savage and barbarous people. trāductōs: sc. esse. nunc esse . . . numerus: now the number in Gaul was about 120,000.

Page 26. 1. clientēs: see Introd. 63.

3. omnem nōbilitātem, etc.: the picture is overdrawn, as we know from facts stated later.

4. quī: equivalent to cum ei, although they; sc. as antecedent eōs, subject of cōactōs esse.

5. virtūte: abl. of cause. hospitiō: a formal relation of friendship between individuals in different nations, or, as here, between two nations, mutually guaranteeing honorable treatment and certain privileges.

6-7. ante: adverb. dare: infinitive complementary to cōactōs esse; in the active cōgō governs an infinitive clause.

8. sēsē . . . repetitūrōs: that they would neither demand back, etc., explaining the oath, iūre iurandō.

10. quōminus . . . essent: to be, etc., depending on recūsā.

tūrōs, A. 558, b (319, c); B. 295, 3; G. 549; H. 568, 8; H-B. 502, 3, b. illōrum: the Sequani.

11-12. Unum: the only man. quī . . . potuerit: a clause of characteristic.

14. postulātum: the supine. For the mission of Diviciacus see Introduction to Bk. I, page 164.

16-17. p̄sius . . . accidisse: a worse fate had befallen. victōribus: the victorious, a noun equivalent to an adjective. Observe the chiasmic arrangement of victōribus Sēquanis . . . Haeduis victis, adjective + noun, noun + adjective. Germānōrum: probably the Suebi only. tertiam partem: now upper Alsace.

20. alterā parte tertiā: a second third.

22-23. quibus . . . parārentur: a relative clause of purpose. Futūrum esse . . . utī: the result would be that; for the periphrasis with futūrum esse see A. 569, a (288, f); B. 270, 3, a; G. 248; H. 619, 2; H-B. 472, c. paucis annis: abl. of time within which.

25-27. cōferendum: to be compared. Gallicum: sc. agrum; the Gallic land and mode of life was better than the German. English reverses the Latin order by putting last the thing preferred. hanc: of what is near the speaker, equivalent to Gallicam. illā: i.e. Germānōrum.

Page 27. 1. ut: with temporal meaning; translate with vicerit, having once defeated. For vivid effect the narrative is given a present standpoint through the remainder of the chapter, as the presents and perfects show. Gallōrum: the reference seems to be to the Haedui and their allies, though it has been suggested that the Sequani, having repented their rashness in invoking the aid of the Germans, had finally joined forces with the Haedui against Ariovistus.

2. quod proelium: a battle which; the appositional antecedent in the relative clause, as usual. Magetobrigam: its exact location is not known. The battle was fought in 61 or 60.

3. superbē et crudēlīter imperāre: is making arrogant and cruel demands. nōbillissimī cōliusque: of all those of highest rank; quisque, each, is frequently employed with a superlative to indicate a class.

4. exempla cruciātūsque: cruelties of every sort, hendiadys. in eōs . . . ēdere: visits upon them.

5. ad nūtum aut ad voluntātem: at his (beck and) nod or to suit his wish.

8. quid auxili: some help; auxili is gen. of the whole.

9-10. omnibus Gallīs idem esse faciendum: all the Gauls must do the same; for the dat., Gallīs, see A. 374, a (232, n.); B. 189, 1; G. 355; H. 431; H-B. 373, 1. ut . . . ēmigrent, etc.: i.e. leave home, an appositive clause explaining idem.

13-15. quīn . . . sūmat: that he will exact; for the use of quīn see A. 558, a (319, d); B. 298; G. 555, 2; H. 595, 1; H-B. 507, 2, b.

17-18. dēterrēre . . . nē . . . trādūcātur: prevent a larger horde from being brought across; the nē clause is substantive, object of a verb of hindering. Rhēnum: acc. after the trāns in trādūcātur, A. 395, n. 2 (236, 2, b, n. 2); B. 179, 1; G. 331, r. 1; H. 413; H-B. 386, a.

22. CHAPTER 32. ūnōs: alone. nihil: none.

23. tristēs: dejectedly, adj. where English employs an adverb.

24. quae causa esset: an indirect question, felt as dependent both upon mirātus and quaeiit.

2. Idem: *again, as before, A. 298, b (195, e); B. 248, 1; G. 310; H. 508, 3; H-B. 270, a. hōc miserīōrem: *the more wretched.

5-6. -que: but. velut sī cōram adesset: *as if he were present; imperfect for the present subjv., adsit, of direct discourse, A. 524 (312); B. 307, 1; G. 602; H. 584; H-B. 504, 3, a. reliquīs: *sc. Gallīs.

7-9. tamen: at any rate, at least. Sēquanīs vērō . . . essent perferendī: while the Sequani must endure, dative of agent, like Gallīs, 27, 9.

11. CHAPTER 33. sibi eam cūrae futūram esse; the matter should receive his attention; for the two datives see A. 382, 1 (233, a); B. 191, 2, a; G. 356; H. 433, 2; H-B. 360, b.

12. beneficiō suō: i.e. the bestowal of the title rēx atque amicus the year before. Cf. 29, 22 and note.

13. iniūriīs: the genitive is used more frequently than the dative with finem facere.

15-16. ea: these facts, i.e. what he had heard from Diviciacus. multae rēs eum hortābantur, quārē . . . putāret: there were many urgent reasons for thinking, lit. many things urged him, on account of which he thought; putāret is subjv. in a clause of characteristic; sibi is dative of agent. in primīs: especially, lit. among the first, or most important, things.

17. quod, etc.: that, or because, etc., explaining rēs, which is further explained by 23 ff. cōnsanguineōs: both the Haedui and Arverni appear to have claimed kinship with the Romans, the Arverni, at least, by Trojan descent.

20. quod: (a state of affairs) which, or and this state of affairs; a neuter relative is often employed referring to the facts of a preceding sentence. in tantō imperiō: considering the extended sway.

23. Paulātim autem Germānōs cōnsuēscere, etc.: for the Germans gradually to grow accustomed to cross the Rhine, etc., infinitive clauses, subject of esse understood, periculōsum being a predicate adjective.

25-27. sibi . . . temperātūrōs . . . quīn . . . exīrent: would refrain from proceeding. For sibi governed by temperātūrōs see A. 367 (227); B. 187, II, a; G. 346; H. 426, 4, n.; H-B. 362. For the quīn clause see A. 558 (319, d); B. 298; G. 555, 1; H. 595, 2; H-B. 502, 3, b. occupāvissent: should (have) overrun, had overrun, the pluperfect representing a future perfect from a past point of view. ut: just as. Cimbri, Teutonī: tribes from northern Germany who wandered south in the latter part of the second century B.C. After committing widespread depredations in Gaul they were finally crushed by the Romans, the Teutoni near Aquae Sextiae in 102, the Cimbri in northern Italy in 101.

Page 29. 1. fēciissent: had done, subjv. by attraction.

3. Rhodanus: (only) the Rhone. quibus rēbus: lit. things which, i.e. the situation, or the threatened danger. The dative is governed by the compound verb occurrendum, impersonal, provision must be made against.

5. nōn: limits vidērētur; but translate with ferendus, unbearable.

7-9. CHAPTER 34. placuit ei: he decided, lit. it pleased him, with ut . . . mitteret, to send, as subject. qui . . . postularent: a relative clause of purpose. medium utriusque: midway between the two. Ariovistus was probably on the west bank of the Rhine assembling his army.

10. rē publicā: matters of state. summīs utriusque rēbus: matters of the greatest importance to both.

11-14. si quid, etc.: if he had need of anything from Caesar, he would have come to him, indirect discourse; direct, si quid mihi . . . esset, ad eum vēnissem. ipsi: dative of possession; an instance of the reflexive use of ipse. opus: need, may take an ablative, or, as here, may stand in the predicate with the thing needed in the nominative as subject, quid. For the condition and conclusion see A. 517, a, 589, b, 1, 2 (308, a, 337, b, 1, 2); B. 304, 1, 2, 321, A. 2, a, B; G. 597, R. 1, 656, 1, 2; H. 579, 1, 647; H-B. 581, b. velit: for the direct vult, wants, the subjv. being due merely to the indirect discourse. Volū may govern two accusatives, quid and sē, here, if the thing desired is expressed by a neuter pronoun; translate, if Caesar wanted anything of him.

fectus: (though) treated. cum . . . appellātus esset: in having been entitled, lit. since he had been entitled, explaining beneficiō. The bestowal of the title, possibly on Caesar's motion, had in reality been only in the interest of temporary peace, not as a mark of esteem for Ariovistus.

23-25. hanc sibi . . . grātiā referret, ut . . . gravārētur . . . putāret: made him . . . this requital, that, etc., or requited him . . . by refusing and by thinking, etc.; the ut clause explains grātiā. Neque . . . discendum sibi et cōgnōscendum: that he was not under obligations to learn of and investigate a matter of mutual interest.

Page 30. 1-2. nē . . . trādūceret: that he should not lead across; this and the following clauses explain haec, 29, 25.

4. voluntāte eius: with his sanction.

5. illīs licēret: unnecessary to the sense; translate as if we had permitteret . . . ut redderent, permit the Sequani to restore. nēve lacesseret: and that he should not attack; nēve, and not, corresponds to nē, while neque, and not, corresponds to nōn. iniuriā: unjustly, without cause, abl. of manner.

7. ita fēcisset: should do so, should act thus, for a future perf. indic. of direct discourse. sibi, populō: dat. of possession.

8. nōn impetrāret: should not obtain his wishes, for a future indic. of direct discourse; the subject has shifted to Caesar.

9. sēsē: subject of neglētūrum, 18, but repeated in 12 because of the long intervening clause. M. Messālā, M. Pisōne cōnsulibus: i.e. in 61 B.C.

11. quod . . . posset: so far as he could do so; for the restrictive clause see A. 535, d (320, d); B. 283, 5; G. 627, R. 1; H. 591, 3; H-B. 521, 1, f. commodō rei publicae: with advantage to the state; commodō is an abl. of attendant circumstances. The decree referred to (see Introduction to Bk. I, page 164) had thus far been of no help to the Haedui, but merely a formal expression of sympathy. "Upon Caesar's arrival a change took place," as the author remarks in Bk. VI.

14-16. CHAPTER 36. ut, quī vicissent, eis . . . imperārent:

that those who have conquered shall rule those, etc., a substantive clause, subject of esse. Observe the past tenses; in English, statements of general principles usually stand in the present, even if dependent on a past tense in the main sentence. quī: equivalent to et quī. quem ad modum: in such manner as, just as; quem is a relative. victis: the vanquished, a participle used as a substantive. ad: according to.

18-19. quem ad modum . . . ūterētur: how they were to use their rights; quem is here an interrogative; the question is an indirect deliberative, A. 575, b (334, b); B. 300, 2; G. 467; H. 642, 3; H-B. 503. oportere: this verb, remember, is impersonal, though translated with a personal subject, he; the grammatical subject is the infinitive clause, sē . . . impediri.

21. sibi: dat. after stipendiāriōs, tributary (to).

23-24. Māgnam: in emphatic position, great was the wrong. quī . . . dēteriōra faceret: in impairing, lit. since he, etc., quī being equivalent to cum is; the clause explains iniūriam; cf. the cum clause, 29, 21-22. Observe suō and sibi referring to different persons; sibi, his, dat. of reference, for a possessive adjective or a genitive; cf. Caesari, 25, 10.

25. neque: but not, a connective, and also a correlative to the second neque.

26. sī in eō manērent, quod convēnisset: if they stood by their agreement.

Page 31. 1. longē . . . nōmen . . . āfutūrum: the title of brothers of the Roman people would be far from (helping) them. eis: dat. of reference. frāternum: equivalent to frātrum, which might have been employed.

2-3. Quod . . . dēnūtiāret: as to Caesar's threatening him; for this use of quod see A. 572, a (333, a); B. 299, 2; G. 525, 2; H. 588, 3, n.; H-B. 552, 2. sibi, sēcum: Ariovistus. sē: Caesar.

4-6. congraderetur: let him advance, imperfect subjunctive for present of direct discourse; vellet stands for a future indicative. quid . . . virtūte possent: the prowess of, lit. what strength they had in valor, an indirect question. invicti: unconquered, implying invincible. annōs quattuordecim: not to be understood literally, but with reference to their lack of a fixed home.

7-8. CHAPTER 37. eōdem tempore . . . et: at the same time that; in Latin the two sentences are coördinate. questum: to complain, the supine.

9-11. quod . . . populārentur: the reason for complaint given by the Haedui, as the mood shows. transportāti essent: subjv. by attraction. dati: by giving. Trōverī: sc. nūntiāvērunt or a supine, nūntiātum.

12. pāgōs centum Suēbōrum: it is not clear whether Caesar took this to mean the migration of a whole people or merely the invasion of an army; cf. Bk. IV, Chapter 1.

15. mātūrāndum sibi: he must act quickly; sibi is dat. of agent. nē: for fear that.

17. sēsē conifūxisset: should unite; the subjv. (in the perf.) might be used also in direct discourse, by attraction. minus . . . posset: resistance could less easily be offered; resistī is the impersonal passive of an intransitive verb.

19. contendit: Caesar started from some point in the country of the Lingones, whither he had pursued the Helvetii.

20. CHAPTER 38. trīdūi: gen. of quality or measure. viam prōcessisset: for the cognate acc. see A. 390 (238); B. 176, 4, a; G. 333, 2; H. 409; H-B. 396, 1.

22. quod: referring to a masculine antecedent, but neuter by attraction to the predicate noun, oppidum. est: indicative in a statement of the author's made in passing.

24. Id nē accideret: subject of praecavendum (esse), that that should not happen, diligent precautions must be taken by him.

Page 32. 2. ūsui: of service, dat. of the purpose or end. idemque: and also, then too; cf. idem, 28, 2, and note.

3. ad dūcendum bellum: for a prolonged war.

5-6. ut: as if. pedum: predicate gen. of quality or measure; amplius is here an adverb, with no effect on the case, A. 407, c (247, c); B. 217, 3; G. 296, r. 4; H. 471, 4; H-B. 416, d.

7. intermittit: leaves a gap. altitudine: abl. of quality.

8. rādicēs, rīpae: object and subject respectively of contin-gant.

9. Hunc: sc. montem. mūrus circumdatus: an encircling wall. arcem: predicate accusative. This hill is the citadel of modern Besançon.

10. nocturnis: put first for emphasis, by night as well as by day.

3-4. māgnitudine, virtūte, exercitātiōne: abl. of quality, in the predicate after esse.

6. cum hīs congressōs: having encountered them.

8. nōn: take closely with mediocriter, in no slight degree.

10-11. Hic: sc. timor. tribūnis, praefectis, reliquis: see Introd. 8, 13, and 16.

13-15. alius aliā causā inlātā: one adducing one reason, another another, or each adducing a different reason; for the use of alius aliā see A. 315, c (203, c); B. 253, 2; G. 221, R. 1; H. 516, 1; H-B. 265. quam . . . necessariam esse diceret: which he said made it necessary for him to leave; for the mood of diceret see A. 592, 3, N. (341, d, R.); B. 323; H. 649, I; H-B. 535, a. petēbat: would beg, imperfect of repeated action; cf. the following imperfections.

18. ingere: compose, control, lit. mold.

22. tōtis castris: throughout the camp; for the locative abl. without a preposition see A. 429, 2 (258, f, 2); B. 228, 1, b; G. 388; H. 485, 2; H-B. 436, a.

25. in castris: in a soldier's life.

26. centuriōnēs: see Introd. 15. quique: equivalent to et ei qui.

27. Qui ex hīs: those of them who.

29. angustiās: referring probably to the narrow valley of the Doubs, which Caesar finally avoided.

Page 34. 1-2. rem frumentariam, ut . . . posset, timere: had fears for the supply of grain, that it could not, etc.; rem would naturally stand in the ut clause as subject, but is made the object of timere in order to maintain the construction of the preceding accusatives. For ut . . . posset, dependent on a verb of fearing, see A. 564 (331, f); B. 296, 2; G. 550, 2; H. 567, 4; H-B. 502, 4.

4. iussisset: should order; for a future perf. indic. of direct discourse; the cum clause limits fore and laturos. dicto audientes: obedient, lit. listening to his word.

7. CHAPTER 40. omnium ordinum: usually only centurions of the first rank were admitted to a council of war. See Introd. 15.

8-10. primum: no formal secondly follows, but a finally, dénique, 27. quod . . . putarent: the reason given by Caesar, the general. sibi quaerendum . . . putarent: thought it their business to inquire or consider.

11-12. cūr . . . iudicaret: why should any one suppose? for the mood see A. 586 (338); B. 315, 3; G. 651, R. 2; H. 642, 3; H-B. 513, 1. In direct discourse, iudicet.

13-15. Sibi quidem persuaderi: he, for his part, was persuaded. Intransitive verbs governing the dative are used impersonally in the passive. Persuadeo, like English persuade, equiv. to convince of a fact, may govern indirect discourse, eum . . . repudiaturum. cognitis: when he should learn.

16-18. Quod si: but if. quid . . . vererentur, . . . cūr . . . desperarent: what, pray, should they fear, or why should they despair? See note on iudicaret, 12. suā: their own. ipse: his; ipse is necessarily employed as a reflexive, when two reflexives are required referring to different persons.

19-21. periculum: trial, test. memoriam: in the time, abl. of time when. cum: when, equivalent to and upon this occasion, amplified by the abl. absolute, Cimbris . . . pulsus, viz. the defeat of the Cimbri and Teutoni by Marius. exercitus . . . meritis (esse) videbatur: the army evidently deserved, lit. was seen to have deserved.

22-23. servīlī tumultū: the slave revolt under Spartacus, 73-71; these slaves consisted largely of German and Gallic captives. They would know more or less of Roman military science. quōs tamen: who, however, or and yet they; the relative refers to an antecedent, servōrum, implied in servīlī. sublevārent: translate as a passive. aliquid: acc. of degree, somewhat.

24. posse: for the infinitive in a relative clause in indirect discourse see A. 583, b (336, c); B. 314, 4; G. 635; H. 643, 1; H-B. 535, 1, b. habēret: has; for the tense in the statement of a general principle cf. ut . . . imperārent, 30, 14-16, and note. bonī: gen. of the-whole depending on quantum.

25-26. inermēs: though unarmed. The slaves were but poorly armed at first. hōs: antecedent of quōs. victōrēs: several consular armies were defeated by Spartacus before Crassus crushed the rebellion.

Page 35. 1-2. congressī: a participle, to be translated coördinate with superārint, had repeatedly encountered and defeated. parēs: a match for, i.e. in the recent campaign.

3-4. Sī quōs . . . commovēret: if any were alarmed. proelium: the battle of Magetobriga, cf. 27, 2.

6. castris: in camp. The abl. of the place where is frequently used without a preposition in connection with teneō and contineō.

7-9. sui potestātem: a chance to attack him. dēspērantes dispersōs: limiting eōs to be understood as object of adortum and vicisse. ratione et cōnsiliō: by well-considered strategy.

9-10. Cui rationī . . . hāc: by that plan for which; for the position of the antecedent see A. 307, b, n. (200, b, n.); B. 251, 4, a; G. 616; H. 399, 3; H-B. 284, 5, 6. ipsum: Ariovistus.

12-14. Qui: equivalent to eōs qui. in rei frūmentāriae simulatiōnem: to a feigned alarm about supplies. cum: inasmuch as. officiō: (performance of) duty.

15. Haec sibi esse cūrae: these were matters for him to attend to; lit.? Explain the datives.

19-20. Quod . . . dīcantur: as to the statement that they would not obey, etc.; for Quod see note on Quod . . . dēnūtiāret, 31, 2. Observe that dīcantur is personal, A. 582 (330, b, 1); B. 332, c; G. 528, 1; H. 611, 1, n. 1; H-B. 590, 1. Cf. meritus (esse) vidēbātur, 34, 21. nihil: not at all, acc. of degree; cf. aliquid, 34, 22.

21-24. quibuscumque: dat. governed by dictō audiēns, equivalent to a verb of obeying; another dative, eis, is understood, depending on dēfuisse. Translate freely, whenever an army does not obey its commander, (it means) either (that) in view of some reverse fortune (is seen to have) deserted him, or (that) in the discovery of some wrongdoing (of his) avarice has been proved (against him). "Good luck," "good fortune," to the Roman mind, was a special gift of the gods. Sulla surnamed himself Felix. avāritiam: greed, suggesting dishonesty, referring probably to misappropriation of funds intended for the support of an army. innocentiam: integrity, contrasted with avāritiam. perpetuā vitā: throughout his life. fēlicitātem: contrasted with fortūnam dēfuisse.

25. quod: equivalent to id quod. conlātūrus fuisset: had intended to defer.

4. praetōriam cohortem: a general's bodyguard was regularly composed of troops chosen for preëminent bravery and ability. legiōnī: dat. depending on indulserat and cōnsulēbat, which belong to the list of verbs, persuade, command, obey, etc.

9. CHAPTER 41. prīnceps: first, adjective where English employs an adverb.

10-11. quod . . . fēcisset: because he had expressed, subjv. in a quoted reason.

12-14. cum tribūnīs . . . ēgērunt, utī Caesarī satisfacere: commissioned the tribunes . . . to apologize to Caesar.

15-16. dē summā bellī iūdicium: the decision as to the conduct of the war. suum, imperātōris: predicate adjective and predicate genitive, nor had they thought the decision . . . was theirs, but their commander's.

17-20. itinere exquiritō per Diviciācum, . . . ut . . . dūceret: translate freely, having, with the help of Diviciacus, determined upon a route which led the army, etc.; exquirō, lit. inquire about, ascertain; ut . . . dūceret is lit. a clause of result, so that he led. ei: in him, dat. after fidem habēbat; cf. legiōnē cōfultēbat, 4-5.

millium: gen. of measure; sc. passuum. amplius: adverb, with no effect on the construction; cf. 32, 6. locis apertis: along open ground; for the abl. without a preposition see A. 429, a (258, g); B. 218, 9; H. 476; H-B. 436, a, n. This detour to the northeast, which was made to avoid the narrow and wooded valley of the Doubs, was merely part of the seven days' march. Caesar entered the valley of the Rhine by the pass of Belfort and pitched camp probably between the sites of Ostheim and Gemar.

21-22. Septimō diē: Caesar probably left Vesontio about August 23d. cum iter nōn intermitteret: after an uninterrupted march. Ariovisti: Ariovistus was encamped possibly between the sites of Dorlisheim and Rosheim.

25. CHAPTER 42. quod: object of postulāisset, with id as antecedent; translate freely, Caesar's previous demand for a conference might be granted so far as he was concerned.

Page 37. 1. accessisset: Caesar is the subject.

4. petentī: sc. Caesarī, dat. of indirect object; translate, when Caesar requested it.

5. māgnam in spem veniēbat: he began to have high hopes. tantis: great (not so great), the regular translation of tantus when coupled with a possessive or a demonstrative.

6-7. fore, uti dēsisteret: that he would abandon; for the periphrasis see note on Futūrum esse . . . uti, 26, 23. pertināciā: abl. of separation.

10. nē: that, after a verb of fearing; see note on ut . . . posset, 34, 2. per insidiās: equivalent to an adverb, treacherously.

11-12. uterque . . . veniret: let each of them come, for direct uterque nostrum veniat. nōn: limits ventūrum; but translate with aliā ratiōne, on no other terms.

13. interpositā causā: abl. absolute, by the intervention of any pretext.

14. neque: and (yet) not. Possibly Caesar feared collusion between his Gallic cavalry and Ariovistus. The cavalry numbered 4000 at the beginning of the campaign.

15. esse: the subject is impōnere, hence the neuter predicate adjective, commodissimum.

16. equitibus: from the horsemen; for the case after dētractis see A. 381 (229); B. 188, 2, d; G. 347, 5; H. 429, 2; H-B. 371. eō: for in equōs.

18. si quid opus factō esset: if there should be any need of action. quid is acc. of degree, lit. to any extent. For factō governed by opus see A. 497, a (243, e, n.); B. 218, 2, c; G. 406; H. 477, III; H-B. 430, 2, b.

19. Quod cum fieret: while this was being done.

22. ad equum rescribere: the point of the witticism lies in the double meaning, was transferring them to the knights, was transferring them to the cavalry. The equitēs, knights, formed an honorable and wealthy class in Rome. In earlier times they were identical with the equitēs, cavalry. In Caesar's time the cavalry was composed entirely of foreigners.

23. CHAPTER 43. tumulus terrēnus: an earthen knoll, identified by Colonel Stoffel with the Tertre de Plettig. The adjective terrēnus contrasts the character of the eminence with the rocky mountains not far distant.

25. ut erat dictum: as had been agreed.

26. equis: on horseback, abl. of means.

Page 38. 1-2. passibus, intervallō: abls. of degree of difference.

5. Ubi eō ventum est: when they arrived there; ventum est is an intransitive verb used impersonally in the passive.

6. quod: that, etc., explaining beneficia. appellātus esset: subjv. of informal indirect discourse; the same verb is to be understood with amicus.

7. mūnēra: cf. the gifts sent to King Masinissa, a golden crown, a golden libation bowl, a curule chair, an ivory sceptre, and embroidered robes (Liv. XXX, 15).

8. quam rem: this tribute. docēbat: he tried to show.

9. illum: he (however). cum: although.

10-11. aditum: opportunity, lit. (right of) access; Ariovistus had not before been on such terms with Rome as to afford him any avenue of approach to the senate's favors. suā: i.e. Caesar's.

13-15. quam veterēs, etc.: indirect questions. ipsis . . . intercēderent: existed between themselves (i.e. the Romans) and the Haedui; ipsis is dative, lit. for themselves. quae . . . quotiēns quamque honorifica: what, how frequent, and how honorable. in eōs: in regard to them.

16. ut: how, introducing an indirect question.

18. adpetissent: subjv. in virtual indirect discourse, its clause depending on an indirect question; pluperfect for perfect indic. of direct discourse. hanc: explained by the appositive clause, ut . . . vellet, to desire; for hanc instead of hōc see A. 296, a (195, d); B. 246, 5; G. 211, r. 5; H. 396, 2; H-B. 326, 1.

19. sui nihil: nothing of their own, nothing of what they had; sui is a neuter substantive.

20-22. grātiā, etc.: in influence, etc., abls. of specification. quod . . . attulissent: (as to) what they had brought, etc., i.e. (as to) what they had possessed before becoming friends of the Roman people, viz. independence and leadership. id . . . quis patī posset: who could suffer that to be wrested from them? eīs: dat. of separation; cf. equitibus, 37, 16. posset: for direct possit; for the mood see A. 587 (338, a); B. 315, 3; G. 651, r. 2; H. 642, 3; H-B. 503.

24. nō . . . Inferret, etc.: that he should not make war, that he should return the hostages, etc., explaining eadem. The form of the clause is the same as if directly the object of Postulāvit.

26. at: yet at least.

5. habēre: sc. sē as subject. ipsi: i.e. the Gauls.

7. cōnsueŕint: are accustomed.

9. omnēs Galliae cīvitātēs: i.e. the Haedui and allies.

10. castra habuisse: had encamped, had engaged in hostilities.

ūnō proeliō: the battle of Magetobriga, cf. 27, 2.

11-12. experiri: used absolutely; for English try it. velint: for the sake of vividness present and perfect subjunctives are employed in the subordinate clauses through the greater part of this chapter, though the narrative begins with secondary tenses, respondit, praedicāvit, 1-2. dēcertāre: complementary infinitive, depending on parātum. Observe the force of dē in dēcertāre, fight it out.

13. dē . . . recūsāre: object to, refuse to pay; the infinitive is subject of esse.

15-16. sibi ōrnāmentō . . . nōn dētrimentō: a (source of) honor and protection to him, not of loss, a dat. of the person along with a dat. of the purpose or end. petisse: sc. eam as object.

20. Quod . . . trādūcat: as to his bringing across.

21. sui mūnienti causā: to protect himself; for the construction with sui see A. 504, c (298, a); B. 339, 5; G. 428, r. 1; H. 626, 3; H-B. 614.

22-23. quod . . . dēfenderit: a substantive clause, subject of esse; dēfenderit in the sense of ward off, with bellum as object, may be translated act on the defensive. nisi rogātus: without being asked.

24. populum Rōmānum: sc. vēnisse; populus Rōmānus vēnerit (or vēnisset) might have been expected, but the construction is attracted to that of sē . . . vēnisse.

26. Quid sibi vellet: what did he (Caesar) mean? lit. wish for himself. Observe the imperfect, the standpoint now shifting to the past.

Page 40. 1-4. hanc Galliam: this (part of) Gaul. illam: sc. Galliam. nostram: sc. prōvinciam. Ut ipsi concēdi

nōn oportēret : just as there ought to be no yielding to him. The infinitive is an impersonal passive, subject of oportēret. quod . . . interpellārēmus : in disturbing him, lit. because we, etc.

5. Quod . . . dīceret : as for Caesar's statement.

6-7. imperitum rērum : unacquainted with the facts; for the gen. see A. 349, a (218, a); B. 204, 1; G. 374; H. 451, 1; H-B. 354. bellō proximō : in 62-61 B.C.

9. Haedui : the word is repeated unnecessarily.

11-12. Dēbere : ought, in a logical sense, i.e. was justified, had reason. simulātā . . . amicitia : though feigning friendship. Observe the position of Caesarem, grammatical subject of habere, but also the logical subject of the action in simulātā. quem exercitum : the army which; an example of an antecedent standing in the relative clause only, with no demonstrative in the antecedent clause. sui opprimendī : see note on sui mūnīendī, 39, 21.

13. Qui nisi : unless he.

15-17. multis : Caesar's political enemies in Rome are meant. grātum : an adjective as a substantive, something pleasing. id compertum habere : had learned this; for the perfect participle with habeō see A. 497, b (292, c); B. 337, 7; G. 238; H. 431, 3; H-B. 605, 5, a.

21-22. quaecumque bella : see note on quem exercitum, 11-12. et . . . cōfectūrum : by carrying to completion, explaining praemiō. ſuis : on his part, i.e. Caesar's.

23-24. CHAPTER 45. in eam sententiam : to the effect, or purport; translate with quārē, in explanation of why. posset : subjv. in an indirect question.

Page 41. 1-3. pati, uti . . . dēsereret : allow him to abandon, that he abandon; pati may govern an ut clause, instead of the usual infinitive clause, when negated and with a thing as subject. esse Ariovistī : belonged to Ariovistus. Bellō : in 121 B.C., see Introd. 68.

4-5. quibus : dat. depending on ignōvisset, A. 367 (227); B. 187, II, a; G. 346; H. 426, 2; H-B. 362. The real reason for leaving these peoples free was their great distance from Rome and their inaccessibility.

6-7. antiquissimum quodque tempus: priority of conquest, lit. each earliest date (of conquest); alluding to Ariovistus's claim, 39, 23-24.

9-10. quam: equiv. to cum eam; translate, since, though defeated in war, (the senate) had been willing for it to enjoy its own laws.

11. CHAPTER 46. Dum . . . geruntur: for the mood and tense with dum see A. 556 (276, e); B. 293, I; G. 229, R.; H. 604, 1; H-B. 559.

12. propius tumulum: for the acc. see A. 432, a (261, a); B. 141, 3; G. 359, N. 1; H. 420, 5; H-B. 380, b.

15. nō quod omnīnō tōlum . . . rēicerent: not to hurl a single missile in return.

16-19. etsi . . . vidēbat: although he saw; for the mood see A. 527, c (313, c); B. 309, 2; G. 604; H. 585; H-B. 582, 8. committendum nōn putābat, ut, etc.: thought he ought not to make it possible for the enemy to say, if they were defeated, etc.; the ut clause is subject of committendum (esse); pulsis hostibus is an abl. absolute. per fidem: lit. through a pledge; may be translated, treacherously.

20-22. quā arrogantia ūsus: equivalent to quam arroganter, how insolently. omni Gallia Rōmānis interdixisset: had denied the Romans rights in any part of Gaul; Galliā, abl. of separation; Rōmānis, dat. of the person, the regular case after interdicō, forbid. ut: how, introducing an indirect question.

Page 42. 2. exercituī: dat. of indirect object after the compound iniecū est, was infused in.

4. CHAPTER 47. agī coeptae essent: for the passive of coepi see A. 205, a (143, a); B. 133, 1; G. 423, N. 3; H. 299, 1; H-B. 199, 2. neque: and not, or but not.

5-6. ut . . . cōstitueret: let him again set a day; felt as an objective clause depending on a verb of requesting understood from the preceding sentence. minus: here, as frequently, a practical equivalent for nōn.

7-9. Conloquendī: in emphatic position. causa vīsa nōn est: there seemed to be no reason. retinēri quīn . . . cōice-rent: be restrained from hurling; for the use of quīn see A. 558 (319, d); B. 295, 3, a; G. 555, 1; H. 595, 2; H-B. 502, 3, b.

12-13. Procillum: object of mittere, 18, which is the subject of vīsum est. virtūte, humānitāte: abl. of quality.

14-15. Flaccō: governor of the Transalpine province in 83. cōvītate dōnātus erat: had been presented with citizenship. Roman citizenship was sometimes bestowed on a provincial subject as a mark of honor for some service rendered. The recipient commonly adopted, as in this case, the nomen and praepomen of his benefactor, retaining his former name, Caburus here, as a cognomen.

16-18. quā multā . . . ūtēbātur: which Ariovistus now spoke readily; observe the adjective multā instead of an adverb. in eō: in his case. Germānis esset: the Germans had. The subjv. esset is due to the informal indirect discourse introduced by vīsum est. Presumably Ariovistus would feel more kindly towards a Gaul than towards a Roman. A Gaul, too, would not be so valuable to retain as a hostage.

22-24. quid venīrent: for the direct quid venitis? an speculandī causā: was it to play the spy? for the use of an see A. 335, b (211, b); B. 162, 4, a; G. 457, 1; H. 380, 3; H-B. 234. Cōnantēs . . . prohibuit: when they tried to speak he stopped them.

Page 43. 3. CHAPTER 48. praeter castra: that Caesar did nothing to prevent this movement was due probably to the fact that Ariovistus moved along the lower slopes of the mountains, where he could not be attacked readily.

4-6. eō cōnsiliō, utī . . . interclūderet: with the design of cutting off; as in 24, 18, cōnsiliō anticipates, and is explained by, a clause of purpose. supportārētur: subjv. by attraction.

7-9. aciem instrūctam habuit: kept his line of battle in array. See plan, 1st position. si vellet: the verb in a condition future to a past verb (habuit) regularly stands in the subjv., imperf. or pluperf. ei ut . . . nōn deesset: that he might not lack, a clause of purpose, nōn being taken closely with deesset. Observe the dat. with deesset, lit. be lacking to him, and cf. the dative of possession, Germānīs, 42, 17, used with esset.

10-11. exercitum: here used of the infantry alone. continuit, contendit: adversative asyndeton, but.

12. quō: in which.

13-14. totidem numerō: the same number of, lit. in number, abl. of specification. cōpiā: equivalent to multitudine. singuli singulōs: with singuli sc. equitēs, with singulōs sc. peditēs; translate, one for each horseman.

15-17. hīs: sc. peditibus. Observe the imperfects of repeated or customary action, versābantur, would engage, etc.; also the pluperfect dēsciderat, had fallen. hī: the infantry. dūrius: unusually serious. graviōre: unusually severe.

18-19. si quō, etc.: if it was necessary to advance to some point farther than usual or to withdraw with unusual speed; erat prōdendum and (erat) recipiendum are impersonal. sublevātī: supported by, holding on. In the campaign of 52 Caesar himself employed some of these German cavalymen with their attendant infantry. The Gauls are reported as employing the same tactics in 52. In the Civil War Caesar also made use of similar tactics with his own men.

21-23. CHAPTER 49. nō . . . prohibērētur: purpose of dēlēgit and mūnre iussit. locō: an antecedent repeated in the relative clause, and to be omitted in translation.

Page 44. 2. castra: the smaller camp; see the plan.

4. expedita: limits milia, but to be translated with hominum.

5-6. quae . . . terrērent: to terrify; cōpiāe (to be omitted in translation) is the appositional antecedent incorporated as usual in the relative clause, with the relative quae attracted to agree with it in gender. mūnitiōne: here used of the work of constructing camp.

11. CHAPTER 50. institūtō suō: according to his practice, as usual.

13. aciem: see plan, 2d position.

17-18. Acriter . . . pūgnātum est: the battle, waged fiercely by both sides, lasted till evening; pūgnātum est is an impersonal passive.

21-22. quam ob rem: why, lit. on account of what thing, introducing an indirect question. proeliō dēcertāret: fight a decisive battle.

23-25. quod . . . esset: that it was the custom, explaining causam. ut . . . dēclārārent: for the matrons to make known, explaining cōsuētūdō. The lots were rods inscribed with runes. Tacitus (Germania, 10) assigns to the priests the interpreting of lots in regard to public matters. The practice may have varied among different tribes. The same historian tells us that the Germans attributed to their women in general a certain prophetic power. vaticinātiōnibus: perhaps prophecies from observing the flight and cries of birds, and the eddies of rivers, as related by Tacitus and Plutarch. utrum . . . necne: whether . . . or not, a double indirect question. ex fīstī: expedient, advantageous.

26-27. nōn esse fās: it was not decreed, it was not the will of the gods. si . . . contendissent: if they should fight, for future perf. indic. of direct discourse. proeliō: the context suggests a general or decisive battle. novam lūnam: Sept. 18th. A superstitious regard for the phases of the moon is common among barbarian peoples. Tacitus (Germania, 11) says that the German popular assemblies were held either at the new or full moon.

Page 45. 1-2. CHAPTER 51. Postridiō: the battle was fought presumably about Sept. 14th. praesidiō utriusque castris: to guard both camps, two datives, of the purpose and the thing served. quod . . . vīsum est reliquit: left what seemed a sufficient (force).

4-5. minus . . . prō hostium numerō valēbat: was not so strong . . . as the enemy, lit. in comparison with the number of the enemy.

10. raedīs, carrīs: abl. of means.

11. Et: for in raedās et carrōs.

12-13. proficiscentēs: as they went, limiting militēs. nē: not to.

15-17. CHAPTER 52. singullī, etc.: five legions were commanded each by a legatus, a sixth by the quaestor. See Introd. 12, 14. testēs: as witnesses. ā dextrō cornū: on the right wing, i.e. of the Roman line. eam partem: i.e. the German left wing.

19-21. Ita: limits ācriter. signō datō: when the command was given. itaque: equivalent to et ita, ita limiting repente and celeriter. spatium cōiciendī: time to hurl. See Introd.

33. pīla: object of the gerund cōiciendī; what is the usual construction? Rēiectis: throwing aside.

22. comminus gladiis pūgnātum est: they engaged at close quarters with swords.

23. ex: according to. phalange: see note on phalange, 20, 24. Each tribe may have formed a separate phalanx; in that case the plural should be read in 46, 1.

Page 46. 1-2. phalanga: acc. singular, A. 81, 3 (63, f); B. 47, 1; G. 66, 3; H. 109, 3; H-B. 95. vulnerārent: inflicted wounds, used absolutely.

5. P. Crassus: son of the triumvir, Marcus Crassus. He was killed by the Parthians in 53 at the battle of Carrhae. expeditior: more free to act, the cavalry not yet having joined battle.

7. tertiā acoem: the third line constituted a reserve force. See Introd. 33. labōrantibus nostris subsidiō: to the support of our hard-pressed men.

10-12. CHAPTER 53. prius quam . . . pervēnērunt: for the mood see A. 551, a (327); B. 291, 2; G. 576; H. 605, I; H-B. 561. viribus cōnfisī: relying on their strength; for the case with confisus see A. 431 (254, b); B. 219, 1; G. 401, n. 6; H. 476, 3; H-B. 437. mīlia quīnque: the text is probably incorrect, as the Rhine was about fifteen miles distant. Possibly the Germans fled down the valley of the Ill, as indicated on the campaign map.

14-15. Ariovistus: his death is mentioned in Bk. V. How soon after this battle it occurred is not known. eā: in it, abl. of means. reliquōs omnēs: 80,000 fell in the battle and rout, according to Plutarch and Appian.

16-20. Duae uxōrēs: polygamy among the Germans was confined to the chiefs, according to Tacitus. nātiōne: by birth, abl. of specification. dūxerat: had brought; in 18, had married. duae filiae: sc. fuērunt.

Page 47. 1-3. Procillus: cf. 42, 12. trīnis: triple, distributive numeral, because catēnae is usually employed in the plural, A. 137, b (95, b); B. 81, 4, b; G. 97, 3; H. 164, 3; H-B. 247, a. in ipsum Caesarem incidit: fell into Caesar's own hands. quidem: emphasizes the word immediately preceding, and that was a circumstance which.

7-8. ēius calamitāte: by disaster to him. neque dē . . . quicquam fortūna dēminuerat: and because fortune had not subtracted anything from, or had not diminished. grātulātiōne: in a reflexive sense, self-congratulation, rejoicing.

9-10. ter sortibus cōnsultum: three times the lots had been consulted; sortibus, abl. of means; cōnsultum (esse), impersonal. Three was a sacred number in connection with the interpretation of lots among the Germans. utrum, etc.: whether he should be burned at once or be reserved for another time, double deliberative question, indirect, A. 575, b (338, a); B. 315, 3; G. 265, 651, r. 2; H. 559, 4, 642, 3; H-B. 503. sortium beneficiō: thanks to the lots.

15. CHAPTER 54. Ubii: from Bk. IV we learn that the Ubii and Suebi were enemies of long standing. Rhēnum: acc. after proximi; cf. propius tumultum, 41, 12.

18-19. mātūrius paulō: the latter part of September, or early in October. in Sēquanōs: the troops were probably quartered at Vesontio for the winter.

20. ad conventūs agendōs: to hold court. The governorship of a province combined both executive and judicial functions. Caesar probably left judicial duties in the Transalpine province to some subordinate, reserving Cisalpine Gaul for himself. Here he could more easily keep in touch with friends and with political affairs in Rome.

BOOK II.

INTRODUCTION.

War with the Belgae. — Whether Caesar had fully determined upon the conquest of Gaul before leaving Rome, we do not know. At all events the quartering of his army outside the province at the close of the first year's campaigns, and among a people not at war with Rome, made it clear that the project of conquest was now at least, if it had not been before, a well-defined purpose. In consequence, the Belgae of the north, alive to the meaning of the past year's events, formed a defensive league during the winter of 58-57, and prepared to resist any inroads upon their part of the Gallic land.

Caesar, informed of the situation by his trusted lieutenant, Labienus, enlisted two new legions in his Cisalpine province, bringing the total up to eight. With these legions he marched north in the summer of 57, friendly tribes meanwhile reporting the concentration of the Belgic forces. At Caesar's approach one Belgic tribe, the Remi, seized the opportunity to ingratiate themselves with the conqueror, and were thereafter as friends and allies accorded by Caesar a position of importance in the north second only to that of the Haedui in central Gaul.

The Haeduan allies were now sent to ravage the country of the Bellovaci, the most influential Belgic tribe, while Caesar entrenched his army on the north bank of the river Aisne and awaited the vast host of the Belgae. Unsuccessful in an attack on Bibrax, stronghold of the Remi, the Belgae proceeded against Caesar. Minor engagements followed, but without bringing on a decisive battle. The Belgae, learning of the movement of the Haedui, and being hard pressed for supplies, disbanded their forces, each tribal contingent returning to the defense of its own territory. Caesar availed himself of the obvious advantage thus offered and forced the surrender of one tribe after another in rapid succession. He then marched against the Nervii and their allies. Their sudden attack upon the Roman army, while busy at the work of constructing a camp, tested to the utmost the self-reliance, discipline, and courage of the individual soldier, and resulted in a battle the most desperate of the war thus far. In the end victory fell to the Romans. The Nervii, completely crushed for the present, sent envoys to offer their submission.

Upon hearing of this victory the Atuatucae, who were on their way to reinforce the Nervii, returned home and rallied in their chief town, a place possessed of strong natural fortifications and accessible only on one side by a narrow approach. Caesar hemmed them in by lines of circumvallation and constructed a siege mole along the narrow slope. Dismayed by this method of attack and in particular by the approach of the tower, the townspeople sued for peace. Part of their arms, however, they concealed at the time of surrender, and in the dead of night essayed an attack on the Roman works. They were repulsed with heavy loss and on the following day 53,000 were sold into slavery.

Close of the Campaign.—Publius Crassus, meanwhile, with one legion had brought about the submission of certain maritime tribes of northwestern Gaul.

Before leaving for Italy Caesar distributed his legions in winter quarters in such a way as to guard the newly conquered territory, and especially that of the maritime peoples, whose submission could as yet be hardly more than half-hearted. In honor of Caesar's victories the Roman senate voted a thanksgiving of fifteen days.

BOOK II.

WAR WITH THE BELGAE, 1-33.

Page 48. 1. CHAPTER 1. esset: for mood and tense see A. 546 (325); B. 288, B; G. 585; H. 600, II; H-B. 524. ita ut: just as. suprā: see 47, 20.

2. dēmōnstrāvimus: the "editorial we" of Caesar the author. adferēbantur: imperfect of repeated occurrences, reached him from time to time, kept coming to him; so also fēbat, 3.

3. litteris: most frequently singular in meaning, a letter, but here plural, despatches. Labiēnī: Labienus was in charge of winter quarters; see 47, 19. Belgās . . . conīūrāre, etc.: that the Belgae were forming a league, indirect discourse, A. 580 (336); B. 314; G. 650; H. 642, 643; H-B. 534.

4. quam: who (subject of esse), used instead of quōs, being attracted to agreement with the predicate noun, partem, A. 306 (199); B. 250, 3; G. 614, R. 3, b; H. 396, 2; H-B. 326, 1. dirēramus: indicative in an explanatory remark of the author's; the perfect might have been employed, as in 2, above.

5. inter sē dare: were exchanging; sē is here and often used as a reciprocal pronoun.

6-7. Conīūrāndī: gen. of the gerund depending on causās. hās: these, as follows, explained by the quod clauses, because, or that, etc. verērentur: subjv. in a subordinate clause in indirect discourse. nē: that; for the construction after a verb of fearing see A. 564 (331, f); B. 296, 2; G. 550, 2; H. 567; H-B. 502, 4, a. omnī pācātā Galliā; abl. absolute with conditional force, if all Gaul should be subdued, A. 420, 4 (255, d, 4); B. 227, 2, b; G. 410; H. 489, 1; H-B. 421, 6. Celtic Gaul is meant.

8-9. partim (sc. ab eis) quī: partly by those who, or some of whom. ut . . . ita: correlatives, just as . . . so. Beginning with partim qui the indirect discourse is dropped, what follows being stated as on the authority of the writer.

10-11. exercitum . . . inveterāscere: an infinitive clause depending on molestē ferēbant, resented it, that; cf. Germānōs versāri, 9, depending on nōluerant, had been unwilling for. partim quī: while others. mōbilitāte et levitāte: abls. of cause. Caesar more than once remarks upon the instability of the Gallic character.

12. imperīis: for the dative after studēbant see A. 367 (227); B. 187, II, a; G. 346, r. 2; H. 426, 1; H-B. 462, II. ab nōn nullis: sc. solicitābantur. Here appears a fourth reason for the Gallic unrest, the personal ambition of powerful chiefs, certain to be thwarted under Roman dominion.

13-14. ad condūcendōs hominēs: for hiring men, gerundive construction. For the fact compare the case of Dumnorix, 15, 24-25. occupābantur: conative imperfect; translate active, the more powerful . . . were trying to gain.

15. quī: and they. eam rem: referring to the acquiring of royal power. imperīō nostrō: under our sovereignty, abl. of attendant circumstances, A. 423 (256); B. 221; G. 399; H. 477, 3; H-B. 422, I.

Explain the construction of litteris 3, Gallis 8, occupābantur 14. Give the principal parts of adferēbantur 2, fiēbat 3, verērentur 6, nōluerant 9, inveterāscere 10, studēbant 12, cōnsequi 15.

17-18. CHAPTER 2. duās legiōnēs: the 13th and 14th. Six legions were already quartered among the Sequani; see 47, 18-19. initā aestāte: at the beginning of summer, abl. absolute. aestās is probably used to include the time between the spring and autumn equinoxes.

Page 49. 1. quī dēdūceret: to lead, relative clause of purpose, A. 531, 2 (317, 2); B. 282, 2; G. 630; H. 590; H-B. 502, 2. Pedium is the antecedent of qui.

2. cum primum: as soon as, usually takes the indicative.

3-5. Dat: historical present. negōtium: the duty, explained by the appositive clause, utī . . . cōgnōscant, etc., of finding out . . . and informing him. Belgīs: dat. after finitimī, A. 384 (234, a); B. 192, 1, a; G. 359; H. 434, 2; H-B. 362, III. gerantur: subjv. by attraction, A. 593 (342); B. 324, 1; G. 663, 1; H. 652; H-B. 539.

8. dubitandum (esse) nōn quīn . . . proficiſcerētur: he ought not to hesitate to proceed against them; dubitandum is impersonal. For the quīn clause see A. 558, a, n. 2 (332, g, n. 2); B. 298, b; G. 555, r. 3; H. 595, 1; H-B. 502, 3, b.

9. Rē prōvīſā: abl. absolute, after providing for supplies. dīēbus: abl. of time within which, in the course of which.

Construction of Senonibus 3, erant 4, manūs 6. Principal parts of initā 48, 18; inciperet 49, 3, gerantur, cōgnōscant 5, cōgī 7, proficiſcerētur 8.

11. CHAPTER 3. celerius omnium opīniōne: sooner than any one expected; for the case of opīniōne see A. 406 (247); B. 217, 1; G. 398; H. 471; H-B. 416.

12-13. vēniſſet: for mood and tense see references on esset, 48, 1. Rēmī: these people had been more or less under the dominion of the Suessiones. proximī ex Belgīs: the nearest of the Belgae. Galliae: dative after proximī; see references on Belgīs, 4, above. prīmōs: leading men.

14. quī dīcerent: a relative clause of purpose. sē: object of permittere; another sē is to be understood as subject; its repetition would have seemed awkward. For the principles of indirect discourse see references on Belgās . . . conīūrāre, 48, 3. sua omnia: all their possessions, the possessive adjective in the neuter plural as a substantive.

15. neque: and not, serves as a connective, and as a correlative with the following neque.

17. conīūrāsse: for the contracted form see A. 181, a (128, a, 1); B. 116, 1; G. 131, 1; H. 238; H-B. 163, 1. -que: may be translated and, or but. dare: infinitive, complementary to parātōs, ready to give, etc.

18. oppidīs: in their towns.

19. Germānōs: see 50, 29-30.

21-25. ut . . . dēterrēre potuerint, quā . . . cōnsentirent: that they have not been able to deter even the Sueviones from uniting with them. potuerint is subjv. in a clause of result. For the quā clause see A. 558 (332, g); B. 295, 3, a; G. 555, 1; H. 595, 2; H-B. 502, 3, b. iūre, lēgibus: for the abl. with utor see A. 410 (249); B. 218, 1; G. 407; H. 477, I; H-B. 429. Before unum a conjunction is to be supplied, and. The omission of a conjunction is called asyndeton.

Observe that the tenses in 15-25, though dependent on a past, dicerent, are given a present standpoint; as the present subjunctives show, for vivid effect. cōnsentirent, however, is imperfect depending on potuerint, which represents a present perfect of a direct statement. The present perfect may be followed in a dependent clause either by a present or an imperfect subjv., as the act is seen in connection with the present or the past.

Construction of prīmōs 13, frūmentō 18, incolant 20, ūtantur 23. Principal parts of cōnsēnsisse 16, iuvāre 19, incolant, confūxisse 20, ūtantur, 23.

27. CHAPTER 4. essent, possent: for the mood see A. 574 (334); B. 300, 1; G. 467; H. 649, II; H-B. 537, b. quid: acc. expressing degree, with possent, how strong they were; see A. 390, c (238, b); B. 176, 3; G. 334; H. 409, 1; H-B. 387, III.

Page 50. 1. plērōsque Belgās, etc., to the end of the chapter, indirect discourse. ortōs ā Germānīs: for the abl. see A. 403, a, n. 1 (244, a, r.); B. 215, 2; G. 395; H. 469, 1; H-B. 413, b. Possibly the Belgae had some admixture of German blood, but the statement here made was based rather upon the fact that the ancestors of the Belgae had come from the country east of the Rhine, which was true also of the ancestors of the Celtae. Rhēnum: for the case governed by trāns in trādūctōs see A. 395, n. 2 (239, 2, b, n. 2); B. 179, 1, 3; G. 331, r. 1.; H. 413; H-B. 386, a.

4-5. quī . . . prohibuerint: the clause is characterizing and would therefore retain the subjv. in direct discourse; A.

535, b (320, b); B. 283, 1, 2; G. 631, 2; H. 591, 5; H-B. 521, 1. memoriā: in the time, abl. of time. omni Gallia vexata: when, etc., abl. absolute. Teutonōs, Cimbrōs: see note on Cimbrī Teutonique, 28, 27. ingredi: from invading; an infinitive with or without an accusative is the regular construction employed by Caesar after prohibeo.

6-8. quā ex rē fieri, uti, etc.: the result of this was, that, etc.; the uti clause is a substantive clause of result, subject of fieri; see A. 569, 1 (332, a, 1); B. 297, 2; G. 553, 3; H. 571, 1; H-B. 521, 3, a. memoriā: abl. of cause.

9. omnia sē habere explorata: they had complete information; differs from explorāvisse in marking the continued result. A. 497, b (292, c); B. 337, 7; G. 238; H. 640, 2; H-B. 605, 5, a.

11. quisque: each (Belgic representative).

12. pollicitus sit: subjv. in an indirect question. For the sequence of tenses in this and the following finite verbs see note on 49, 21-25; second paragraph.

13-14. Plūrimū: acc. of degree with valere, were the foremost; cf. quid with possent, 49, 27. virtūte, auctoritate, numerō: in valor, etc., abls. of specification.

15. armata, electa: limit milia, equivalent to armatorum, electorum. pollicitōs: sc. esse.

20. cum . . . tum: not only . . . but also.

21. Britanniae: probably only the southern coast is meant.

22-23. ad hunc: upon him, after dēferri. omnium voluntate: by general consent; for the abl. see A. 418, a (253, n.); B. 220, 3; G. 408; H. 475, 3; H-B. 414, a.

24-25. numerō: in number, abl. of specification. Nerviōs: sc. pollicērī, also with the following accusative tribal names. ipsōs: the Belgae.

30. Germanī: see 49, 19. If "German" is used in the sense now attached to it, it is nevertheless quite probable that the tribes here mentioned had intermingled with the Gallic population. At all events they were able to make the Gallic cause their own. appellantur: indicative in a remark inserted by the author; cf. dixerāmus, 48, 4. arbitrārī: sc. as subject.

sē, referring to the Roman envoys. Condrūsōs, etc.: subjects of posse cōficere to be supplied.

Construction of quaereret 49, 26; sibi 50, 7, propinquitātibus 10, cōgnōverint 13, sibi 16, nōmine 29. Principal parts of expulisse 3, ingredi 5, possidēre 18, dēferri 23.

Page 51. 1. CHAPTER 5. liberaliter: translate as if an adjective, with ōratiōne.

2-4. senātum convenīre, liberōs addūcōs: infinitive clauses, the regular construction after iubeō. Senātus is of course a Latin term applied to a Gallic deliberative body. Quae omnia: all these commands. ad diem: punctually. Ipse: Caesar. Diviciācum: see note on Diviciāci, 3, 15.

5-7. quāto opere . . . intersit: indirect question, how much it is to the interest of the state, with manus . . . distinēri, that the forces of the enemy be divided, infinitive clause as subject of intersit. rei publicae, salutis: for the case with intersit see A. 355 (222); B. 210, 211, 1; G. 381; H. 449, 1, 2; H-B. 345. The Roman commonwealth is meant, while commūnis refers to Romans and Haedui. nō . . . cōnfigendum sit: in order that it may not be necessary to fight, a clause of purpose, with impersonal use of the second periphrastic.

8-9. Id fieri posse: this (Caesar shows him) can be done. intrōdūxerint, coeperint: perfect subjunctives for future perfect indicatives of direct discourse.

11. unum locum: doubtless some point north of the Aisne.

12-15. coactās ad sē venīre: had assembled and were coming; the perfect participle replaces an infinitive coordinate with venire. neque: and not, the negative to be taken with longē. ab eis explorātōribus: after cōgnōvit. flūmen: acc. governed by the trāns in trādūcere, while exercitum is the direct object. Cf. Rhēnum, 50, 1, where the direct object has become subject of the passive. quod: agreeing with flūmen in gender. Sometimes the name of the river is the antecedent in such combinations. ibi: at modern Berry-au-Bac, north of the river. Remains of the entrenchments here described have been found by excavation. Quae rēs: this move, or position. rēs, thing, should be translated definitely according to the context.

17-19: post eum quae erant: the country behind him; ea is to be understood as antecedent of quae and object of reddēbat. tūta: in the predicate. commeātūs . . . ut . . . portārī possent, officiēbat: made it possible for supplies to be brought. For the substantive ut clause see A. 568 (332); B. 297, 1; G. 553, 1; H. 571, 3; H-B. 521, 3, a. Observe the displacement of ut from its normal position at the head of its clause, in order to emphasize commeātūs. In: over, across.

20. ibi: i.e. at the north end of the bridge. in alterā parte: at the south end, the site of the castellum mentioned in 54, 15.

22-23. pedum: limits vāllō; for the genitive see A. 345, b (215, b); B. 203, 2; G. 365, 2; H. 440, 3; H-B. 355. duodēvigintī pedum: sc. in lātitudinem. The dimensions of a ditch are to be understood of the width unless otherwise specified. The depth may have been nine or ten feet.

Construction of obsidēs, hīs 3, intersit 6, mandātis 10, vidit 12, miserat 13, rīpīs 16, erant 17. Principal parts of prōsecūtus 1, distinēri, cōnfligendum sit 7, intrōdūxerint 9, posuit 15, reddēbat 17, relinquit 21.

24. CHAPTER 6. nōmine: by name, abl. of specification.

25. ex itinere: in the course of their march, i.e. against Caesar. impetū: abl. of manner, A. 412 (248); B. 220, 1; G. 399; H. 473, 3; H-B. 445, 3.

26. sustentātum est: they held out, the defence was maintained, impersonal passive.

Page 52. 1. eadem atque: the same as; atque following words of likeness and equality is to be rendered as, after words of difference, than. haec: as follows.

2-3. circumiectā multitudīne: abl. absolute, but translate the participle as coördinate with coepti sunt. The latter is to be translated have begun; for the passive see A. 205, a (143, a);

B. 133, 1; G. 423, N. 3; H. 299, 1; H-B. 199, 2. moenibus: dat. governed by circumictā, A. 370 (228); B. 187, III; G. 347; H. 429, 2; H-B. 376. dēfēnsōribus: abl. of separation.

4. testūdine: see Introd. 34 for the Roman testūdō. The Gallic formation was doubtless the same.

5. Quod: a thing which, this plan, a frequent use of the neuter relative referring to an act or state of affairs expressed by a preceding sentence. tum: on this occasion. cum: when, or since.

6-7. cōicerent: plural because of the individuals implied in the collective multitūdō. in mūrō, etc.: it was impossible for any one to maintain his position on the wall, lit. to no one was there the power, etc. nūllī: for the case see A. 373 (231); B. 190; G. 349; H. 430; H-B. 374. cōnsistendī: lit. of standing, objective gen. after potestās.

8. summā nōbilitāte: (a man) of the highest rank, abl. of quality, A. 415 (251); B. 224; G. 400; H. 473, 2; H-B. 443. suōs: his people.

9. oppidō: dat. of indirect object governed by the compound praerat; see references on moenibus, 2, above. lēgātī: as envoys, predicate nominative.

10-11. nūntiōs mittit: sends messengers (to say), followed by indirect discourse, nisi, etc. submittātur: represents a future indic. of direct discourse. sustinēre: hold out, the verb being used absolutely, i.e. without an object.

Construction of mīlia 51, 25, Gallōrum 52, 1, testūdine 4, cōicerent 6, oppugnandī, fēcisset 7, sibi 11. Principal parts of circumictā 2, iacī 3, subruunt 5, cōnsistendī 6, submittātur, sustinēre 11.

12. CHAPTER 7. dē mediā nocte: after midnight. duci-bus: as guides. ūsus: employing. The perfect participle of utor and some other deponents may be employed with present force.

13. Crētas: for the form see A. 81, 5 (63, f); B. 47, 3; G. 66, 4; H. 109, 5; H-B. 95.

14. subsidiō oppidānis: to the aid of the townspeople; for the two datives see A. 382, 1 (233, a); B. 191, 2; G. 356; H. 433; H-B. 360, b.

15-17. quōrum adventū: at their arrival, the abl. of time with accessory idea of cause. Rēmīs . . . studium . . . accessit: the Remi were inspired with eagerness. hostibus . . . spēs . . . discessit: the enemy lost hope; for the dative see A. 381 (229); B. 188, 2, d; G. 352; H. 427; H-B. 371. potiundī oppidī: gerundive construction. morātī: limiting hostēs to be supplied as subject of contendērunt and posuērunt.

19-20. quō: adv., equivalent to ad quae. incēnsīs: translate active, in coördination with the preceding participles. omnibus cōpīs: with all their forces; observe that cum is not used, A. 413, a (248, a, N.); B. 222, 1; G. 392, R. 1; H. 474, 2, N.; H-B. 420. ā: away. mīlibus: may be abl. of degree of difference with ā, or abl. of comparison after minus. In 22 mīlibus is abl. after the comparative amplius. See A. 414, 406, c (250, 247, c); B. 223, 217, 3; G. 403, 296, 4; H. 479, 3, 471, 4; H-B. 424, 416, d.

21. quae castra: this camp. ut: as.

Construction of Isdem 12, nūntiī 13, Rēmīs 15, vicīs 18, potuerant 19, fūmō, Ignibus, significābātur 22. Principal parts of accessit 16, incēnsīs 19, patēbant 23.

25. CHAPTER 8. opiniōnem virtūtis: reputation for valor. proeliō: abl. of separation.

Page 53. 1-2. quid hostis virtūte posset et quid nostri audērent: what the valor of the enemy and what the daring of our men, indirect questions. quid is acc. of degree, virtūte abl. of specification. periclitābātur: tried to find, imperfect of repeated action.

3-4. locō . . . idōneō: abl. absolute, as the ground was naturally favorable and adapted. prō castris: in front of the camp; referring to the ridge southwest of the camp. ad aciem instruendam: for drawing up a line of battle, gerundive construction; see A. 506 (300); B. 339, 2; G. 432; H. 628; H-B. 612, III.

5-8. paululum ēditus: about eighty feet. tantum . . .

patēbat: in front extended just as far (in width), quantum loci, as the space which; translate freely as though loci (gen. of the whole) limited tantum, afforded just the amount of space in front which his line of battle in array could cover. tantum is acc. of degree or extent, quantum is the object of occupāre, adversus limits collis. ex utrāque parte: on both sides, i.e. northwest and southeast. lateris dēiectūs: lateral declivities. in fronte; i.e. along the ridge to the southwest.

9-10. ab utrōque latere: on each side, i.e. to the northwest and southeast, Caesar meaning by the hill the highest part of the ridge, occupied by his camp. passuum: for the gen. of quality or measure see references on pedum, 51, 22.

11. ad extrēmās fossās: at the ends of the ditches; for the use of the adjective extrēmās see A. 293 (193); B. 241, 1; G. 291, R. 2; H. 497, 4; H-B. 244.

12-14. tormenta: Introd. 29. nē . . . possent: a clause of purpose. Instrūxisset: should draw up; for the mood see A. 593 (342); B. 324, 1; G. 663, 1; H. 652, 1; H-B. 508, 509. quod . . . poterant: equivalent to because of their superior numbers. poterant is indicative in an explanatory reason given parenthetically by the writer. multitūdine: abl. of specification. ab lateribus: on the flanks, by a flanking movement. pūgnantēs suōs: his men while they fought, his men in battle. duābus: the 13th and 14th.

Page 54. 2. si quō opus esset: sc. eās dūci, if it should be necessary for them to be led anywhere, if they should be needed anywhere. For the mood of esset see references on instrūxisset, 53, 12. subsidiō: dat. of purpose, as reinforcements.

4. ēductās instrūxērunt: led out and drew up. For the participle translated coördinately with the verb see A. 496, N. 2 (292, R.); B. 337, 5; G. 664, R. 1; H. 639; H-B. 604, 1.

Construction of proeliis 53, 1, posset 2, nostrōs, inferiōrēs 3, patēbat 6, poterat 7, Hōc 14; possent 54, 2. Principal parts of audērent 53, 2, intellēxit 3, redībat 9, instrūxisset 12; relictis 54, 1.

5. CHAPTER 9. Palūs: i.e. the marshy ground along the brook Miette.

6. Hanc sī nostrī trānsirent, hostēs exspectābant: the enemy were waiting, in case our men should cross this, almost equivalent to were waiting to see if our men would cross, A. 576, a (334, f); B. 300, 3; G. 460, 1, b; H. 649, II, 3; H-B. 582, 2.

7. sī . . . fieret: in case they should begin to cross. impeditōs: sc. illōs.

9. contendēbātur: impersonal, a cavalry battle was going on.

10-11. secundīōre proeliō: the cavalry battle proving more favorable to our troops, abl. absolute.

12-13. quod, etc.: which, (as) has been shown, was back of our camp; quod is subject of esse, while the infinitive clause as a whole is subject of dēmōnstrātum est.

15. eō cōnsiliō: with the design, explained by the clauses of purpose, ut . . . expugnārent, etc., that they should storm, or of storming, etc. sī possent: if they should be able; for the mood (also of potuissent below) see references on instrūisset, 53, 12. praeerat: not attracted to the subjv. because the clause contains an explanatory statement of the author's. cui: for the dat. governed by the compound verb, praeerat, cf. oppidō, 52, 9.

17-18. minus: equivalent to nōn. potuissent: should be able, lit. should have been able. Observe here and in many other instances that Latin is fond of emphasizing the completion of a future action much more than English. quī: the Remi. māgnō nōbīs ūsui: of great service to us; for the two datives see references on subsidiō oppidānis, 52, 14. gerendum: for the gerundive construction see note on instruendam, 53, 4. erant: for mood see note on praeerat, 15, above. commēntū: abl. of separation.

Construction of illis, trānseundi, fieret 7, adgrederentur 8, vadīs 13. Principal parts of adgrederentur 8, reperiēs 14, interscinderent 16, gerendum 18.

20-23. CHAPTER 10. certior factus: having been informed, i.e. of the movement of the enemy. levis armātūrae: light armed; for the case see A. 345 (215); B. 203; G. 365; H. 440, 3; H-B. 355. ponte: abl. expressing the way by which. trādūcit: i.e. to the south side of the river. pūgnātum est: impersonal, with Ācritēr, a fierce battle was fought.

24-27. per: over. reliquōs cōnantēs; when the rest tried, reliquōs being object of reppulērunt. trānsierant: had crossed, i.e. before the light-armed troops came up. equitātū: abl. of means. circumventōs interfēcērunt: surrounded and killed. For the participle see references on ēductās, 4, above.

Page 55. 1-3. dē: of, after spem. oppidō: Bibrax. spem sē fefelisse: that they had been mistaken in their hope, lit. hope had deceived them. neque: and not, the negative to be taken with prōgredi. iniquiōrem: less advantageous, than their present position. causā: for the case and the position of the word see A. 404, c (245, c); B. 198, 1; G. 373; H. 475, 2; H-B. 444, d.

4. rēs frūmentāria: the Gauls did not have the well-organized commissariat of the Romans. They engaged in raids rather than campaigns.

5-7. optimum esse: that it was best, with quemque reverti, for each to return, as subject of esse. The infinitive clause depends on cōstituērunt in the sense of decide (upon a fact); in the sense of decide (upon a course of action) the same verb is followed by convenirent, that they should assemble, A. 580, d (332, h); B. 295, 4, 8; G. 546, R. 1, 2; H. 565; H-B. 502, 3, a. domum: A. 427, 2 (258, 2, b); B. 182, 1, b; G. 337; H. 419, 1; H-B. 450, b. quōrum: the antecedent is eōs. intrōdūxissent: the subjv. is due to the virtual indirect discourse of the passage. It represents a fut. perf. indic. in the direct statement of the Belgae. Observe the relative clause preceding the antecedent, eōs.

8-9. ut . . . dēcertārent . . . ūterentur: for the mood see A. 531, 1 (317, 1); B. 282, 1; G. 545; H. 568; H-B. 502, 2.

10-11. cum: along with. ratio: explained by the quod clause, that, or because, etc. finibus: dat. after adpropinquāre; cf. the dative governed by adjectives of nearness.

Page 56. 1-3. Hīs persuādērī, etc.: these (the Bellovaci) could not be persuaded to remain longer and refrain from going (lit. not to go) to the aid of their people (lit. take aid to). Persuādeō in the active governs a dative of the person and an objective clause. In the passive persuādeō becomes impersonal, the dative and the clause being retained. See A. 372 (230); B. 187, II, a, b; G. 346, R. 1; H. 426, 2, 3; H-B. 364, 2.

Construction of expūgnandō 55, 1, fefellisse 2, optimum 5, dēfendendōs 7, cōpiīs 9; cōgnōverint 56, 1, suis 2. Principal parts of reppulērunt 54, 26; fefellisse 55, 2, dēficere 4, revertī 6; cōgnōverant, 56, 1.

4-5. CHAPTER 11. strepitū, tumultū, ōrdīne, imperio: ablatives of manner. castris: the abl. of separation with or without a preposition may be employed with verbs of literal separation containing a preposition.

6. cum . . . peteret: a causal or temporal clause, but well rendered by a participial construction, each one seeking.

7-8. fēcērunt, ut . . . vidērētur: they made their departure seem; for the objective clause see A. 568 (332); B. 297, 1; G. 553, 1; H. 571, 3; H-B. 521, 3, a. fugae: dat. with cōsimilis, A. 384 (234, a); B. 192, 1; G. 359; H. 434, 1, a; H-B. 362.

9. veritus: fearing, perf. participle with present force; cf. usus, 52, 12. discēderent: subjv. in an indirect question.

10. exercitum: occasionally, as here, equivalent to pedēs. castris: in camp. The abl. of the place where is frequently used without a preposition in connection with teneō and contineō.

11-12. rē: the fact (of their withdrawal). quī . . . morārētur: to delay, relative clause of purpose.

13. Hīs: plural because referring to the collective noun, equitātum; dat. of indirect object governed by the compound praefēcit.

16. millia: for the acc. see A. 425 (257); B. 181, 1; G. 335; H. 417; H-B. 387, 1.

17-18. fugientium: as they fled. cum: causal. ab extrēmō agmine: (those) in the rear. ad quōs ventum erat: whom (our troops) had overtaken, the verb being used impersonally.

20. priōrēs: (while) those in front. Observe the adversative asyndeton, omission of an adversative conjunction. quod . . . vidērentur neque . . . continērentur: a reason attributed to the fugitives and reported by the writer, hence the subjv., A. 540 (321); B. 286, 1; G. 541; H. 588, II; H-B. 555, a.

22-23. perturbātis ordinibus: with ranks thrown into utter confusion.

24. tantam . . . quantum fuit diēi spatium: as great . . . as the time permitted, lit. as was the space of the day.

Construction of rē, vigiā 4, sibi, domum 6, perspexerat 10, lūce 11, lēgātum 14, subsequi 15, cōnsisterent 18. Principal parts of peteret 6, veritus 9, perspexerat 10, subsequi 15, concoliderunt 17, cōnsisterent 18.

Page 57. 1-2. CHAPTER 12. priusquam sē hostēs . . . recipere: before the enemy should (or could) recover; for the mood see A. 551, b (327); B. 292, 1, b; G. 577; H. 605, I, II; H-B. 507, 4, b.

3. Rēmīs; for the dat. with proximi see references on fugae, 56, 7.

4. Noviodūnum: a Celtic name meaning New town. ex itinere: (immediately) from the march, at once, i.e. without establishing the usual siege works. See Intro. 34.

7. paucis defēdentibus: though the defenders were few, abl. absolute with adversative force.

8. vinēis: see Intro. 35. quaeque: equivalent to et ea quae. ad oppugnandum: gerund, for an attack. ūsui: of service, dat. of purpose or end.

9. Interim: Caesar's forced march, assault on the town, and beginning of preparations for a siege seem to have taken place in one day. ex fugā: after their flight.

11-15. vinēis actis: translate this and the following abls. absolute by temporal clauses, when, etc. māgnitūdine, celeritate: abls. of cause or means with permōti. petentibus Rēmīs, ut cōservārentur: as the Remi begged that they (the Suessiones) be spared. For the ut clause, object of petentibus, see A. 563 (331); B. 295, 1; G. 546; H. 565; H-B. 530, 2. The clause may be taken as object of impetrant.

Construction of Noviodūnum 4, audiēbat 5, erant 9, nocte 10. Tense of mittunt 14, impetrant 15. Principal parts of reciperent 2, dēfendentibus 7, actis, iactis 11.

16. CHAPTER 13. obsidibus: as hostages. primis: the leading men. atque: and in particular.

19. in Bellovacōs: into the country of the Bellovaci. Quicum: when they. sua omnia: as in 49, 14, all their possessions.

20-21. contulissent, abesset: observe the force of the tenses, had gathered, was distant.

22. māiōrēs nātū: older men, elders. nātū is an abl. of specification, A. 418 (253); B. 226, 1; G. 397; H. 480, 1; H-B. 441.

23-24. vōce: by their cries. They did not speak Latin. sēsē . . . venire: that they placed themselves under his protection and authority; cf. 49, 14-15, for a similar expression. neque: and not.

25-27. accessisset, pōneret: had drawn near, was pitching. ex mūrō: on (lit. from) the wall. suō mōre: according to their custom, abl. of accordance, A. 418, a (253, n.); B. 220, 3; G. 397; H. 475, 3; H-B. 414.

Construction of contulissent 20, milia, abesset 21, sēsē 23, contendere 25, manibus 27. Principal parts of trādītis 18, contulissent 20, tendere 23, accessisset 25.

Page 58. 1-3. CHAPTER 14. Prō: in behalf of. eum: Caesar. facit verba: speaks, intercedes. omni tempore: always, the idea of duration lying chiefly in the adjective. in fidē atque amicitia: under the friendly protection, i.e. the Bellovaci were clients of the Haedui. The power of the Haedui seems to have been merely nominal at this time, whatever it may have been in the past.

4. impulsiōs: limits eōs to be supplied as subject of dēfēcisse and intulisse.

6. omnēs: every kind of.

7. populō: dat., indirect object of the compound verb intulisse.

8. Qui: equivalent to eōs qui, with eōs as subject of profūgisse. principēs: leaders. quantam . . . intulissent: an indirect question.

Page 59. 1. in Britanniam: commercial relations and common religious interests made Britain a natural place of refuge for these Gallic leaders. See Introd. 60 and 61.

2-3. suā: in the not infrequent meaning, his well-known. in eōs: towards them.

3-6. Quod: this. The verbs in this sentence would be in direct discourse, fēceris (fut. perf. indic.), amplificābis, incidērunt, cōnsuērunt. For the force of the perfect tense of cōnsuēscō, are accustomed, see A. 476 (279, e); B. 262, A; G. 175, 5; H. 538, 4; H-B. 487. quōrum: refers to Belgās. si qua bella: whatever wars, any wars that. For the tense of inciderint see A. 518, b (309, c); B. 302; G. 594, N.; H. 578; H-B. 576, 579.

Construction of dicerent 58, 5, cōnsillī 8; clēmētiā 59, 2, titātur 3, auxiliis, opibus 5. Principal parts of revertat 58, 2, redāctōs 6; profūgisse 59, 1, inciderint 5, cōnsuērunt 6.

7. CHAPTER 15. honoris . . . causā: in deference to Diviciacus and the Haedui, lit. for the sake of honor(ing). Diviciaci and Haeduorum are objective genitives.

8. eōs in fidem receptūrum (esse): would take them under his protection, would receive their submission. Cf. the phrases in 57, 23-24, and 49, 14-15. Observe that esse is often omitted in the future active and perfect passive infinitives.

9. civitās: that of the Bellovaci. auctoritāte: abl. of quality, in the predicate.

10. hominum multitudīne: in population.

16-17. nūllum esse aditum, etc.: traders had no access to them. mercātōribus: for the case see A. 373 (231); B. 190; G. 349; H. 430; H-B. 374. nihil . . . inferri: infinitive clause governed by pati; with the latter supply eōs as subject. vinī: gen. of the whole depending on nihil, no wine.

19. ferōs māgnaeque virtūtis: two qualities, one expressed by an adjective, the other by a genitive.

20-21. quī: equivalent to cum ei, because they, A. 540, c (321, b); G. 626, r.; H. 592; H-B. 523. patriam: an adjective.

Construction of erat 9, multitudine 10, quaereret 15, rēbus 18, populō 20. Principal parts of poposcit 11, dēdidērunt 13, attingēbant 14, quaereret 15, patī 16, prōiciēssent 21.

25-26. CHAPTER 16. Sabim: river names in -is have -im in the accusative. mīlia: acc. of extent of space, amplius as an adverb having no effect on the case.

27. ibi: the Nervii were south, the Romans north, of the Sambre.

Page 60. 2. hīs utrisque: each of these peoples, dat. after persuāserant. "The plural forms of uterque have the sense of each of two sides, each of the two parties, etc." (H-B). utī . . . experirentur: to try, substantive clause, object of persuāserant.

4. quique: equivalent to et eōs quī, eōs and mulierēs being objects of conīēcisse. per: on account of.

5-6. quō . . . aditus nōn esset: to which an army had no access. The clause is characterizing, eum meaning a, or of such a sort.

Construction of trīdium, fēcisset 59, 24, passuum 26; finitimīs 60, 1, vidērentur 5, exercitūf 6. Principal parts of cōnsēdisse 59, 27; experirentur 60, 2.

8-9. CHAPTER 17. quī . . . dēligant: to choose. castrīs: dat. of purpose. ex dēditiciīs: instead of a gen., depending on complūrēs, A. 346, c (216, c); B. 201, 1, a; G. 372, r. 2; H. 444; H-B. 346, e. Cf. also quīdam ex hīs.

11-12. eōrum diērum, etc.: having observed our army's usual order of march during those days. The accumulation of genitives is noteworthy. For the order of march see Introd. 31.

13. inter singulās legiōnēs: between each two legions. impedimentōrum māgnū numerū: a large amount of heavy baggage, carried in vehicles and on pack animals.

14-18. neque esse quicquam negōtī . . . adorīrī: and that there would be (lit. was) no difficulty in attacking. adorīrī is the subject of esse. negōtī is gen. of the whole, lit. not anything of difficulty. vēnisset: should arrive, representing a fut. perf. indic. of direct discourse, while abessent, should be distant, represents a fut. indic. castra: camping ground. hanc: the first legion. quā pulsā: abl. absolute, when, or if, this should be routed. futūrum (esse), ut: the result would be that, etc. Caesar might have written reliquās . . . nōn ausūrās esse. The periphrasis, with a substantive clause of result as subject of futūrum esse, emphasizes the idea of result as in the corresponding English periphrasis, A. 569, a (288, f); B. 270, 3, a; G. 248; H. 619, 2; H-B. 472, c. contrā cōnsistere: make a stand, offer opposition.

19. Adiuvābat: the subject is the substantive quod clause, 20 ff.; we may translate, additional weight was given to the advice of those who reported the matter by the fact that the Nervii, etc.

20. Nervī: subject of effēcerant, 26. cum: causal. nihil possent: had no strength.

21. ei rei: that branch of the service, dat. governed by a verb meaning to favor. quicquid possunt: whatever strength they have; quicquid (also nihil above), acc. of degree.

22. valent: consists, lit. they are strong. quō facilius, etc.: a clause of purpose, in order the more easily to impede, A. 531, a (317, b); B. 282, 1, a; G. 545, 2; H. 568, 7; H-B. 502, 2, b.

23. vēnissent: should come, for the mood and tense cf. instrūxisset, 53, 12, and references in the note.

24. incisīs: saplings were notched on the trunks and bent over; as the trees continued to grow, the branches, together with briars planted among them, formed impenetrable hedges.

26-27. ut . . . praeberent: substantive clause of result, object of effēcerant, had caused these hedges to furnish protection like a wall. instar is in apposition with mūnimentum; it is regularly followed by a genitive. quō : adverb, which one not only could not penetrate, but could not even see through. The passive infinitives are impersonal. The clause may be regarded as characterizing or as giving the reason for the previous statement. In the latter case we should translate, since one not only could not penetrate them, etc. These hedges were intended, not as frontier fortresses, but to protect individual fields. Hedges of a similar character are said to be found in the region to-day.

Page 61. 2. nōn omittendum (esse) sibi cōsilium : they must not neglect the advice; for the dative of agent see A. 374, a (232); B. 189, 1; G. 355; H. 431; H-B. 373, 1.

Construction of dēligant 60, 8, facerent 10, hīs, 13, spatium 16, equitātū, possent 20, cōpīs 22, praedandi, 23; impedīrētur 61, 1. Principal parts of perspectā 12, intercōdere 14, adorfī, dīreptīs 17, audērent 18, Adiuvābat 19, valent 22, inflexīs 24.

4. CHAPTER 18. locum : an antecedent repeated in the relative clause, as frequently occurs; omit in translation.

5. dēolīvīs : note the force dē, downward, and of ad, upward, in acclivitās.

7. parī acclivitate : of, or with, equal slope, abl. of quality limiting collis. adversus : directly opposite. contrārius : on the other bank.

Page 62. 1-2. īnīmus : along the lower part, at the base, equivalent to ab īmā parte. apertus : contrasted with silvestris. ab superiōre parte : along the upper part, at the top. perspicī : impersonal passive, as in 60, 27.

4. secundum : preposition, along.

5. pedum : gen. of quality or measure, in the predicate.

Construction of castrīs 61, 4, huic 7; passūs 62, 1, posset 2, flūmen 4. Principal parts of vergēbat 61, 6, nāscēbātur 7.

6-7. CHAPTER 19. omnibus cōpīs : abl. of accompaniment without cum, in a military phrase, as in 52, 20. ratio ōrdōque agminis : the order of march. ratio and ōrdō are but parts of one idea, hence the singular verb. aliter sē habēbat, ac: was different from what, lit. had itself otherwise than. After words of difference, such as alius and aliter, ac is to be translated than. How after eadem, 52, 1?

9. cōnsuētūdine: abl. of accordance. expeditās: unencumbered, i.e. without baggage train; see Intro. 21 and 31.

11. duae legiōnēs: the 13th and 14th.

12-13. praesidiō impedimentis erant: served as a guard for the baggage train. For the datives see A. 382, 1 (233, a); B. 191, 2; G. 356; H. 433; H-B. 360, b.

16. Cum: when, while. sē recipere: kept withdrawing.

17-19. neque; and not, the negative to be taken with audērent. quem ad finem . . . pertinēbant: the extent of the open ground. cēdentēs: (them) as they fell back, limits eōs to be supplied as object of insequi.

20. primae: adjective, where English employs an adverb. opere dimēnsō: this had been done by the scouts and centurions, 60, 7. Observe that perfect participles of deponent verbs are sometimes used passively.

21. prima impedimenta: the head of the baggage train.

22-24. quod tempus . . . convēnerat: the time which had been agreed upon, the appositional antecedent attracted, as usual, into the relative clause. committendī proeli: for beginning battle, depending on tempus. ut . . . cōfirmāverant: just as they had, etc., or better in the manner in which they had arranged their order of battle within the woods and had mutually resolved (to act).

26-27. His: the cavalry. celeritāte: abl. of manner. ut, etc.: a clause of result.

2-4. adversō colle: up the hill; abl. absolute, lit. the hill being against (them). Cf. adversō flūmine, up stream. occupāti: busy, perf. participle as predicate adjective.

Construction of hostibus, adpropinquābat 8, pertinēbant 18, opere 20, visa sunt 22, committendī 23, cōstituerant

24, cōpilis 25. Full form of conlocārat 10. Principal parts of claudēbant 12, porrēcta 18, cēdentēs 19, dīmēnsō 20, latēbant 22, dēcucurrērunt 27.

5. CHAPTER 20. Caesari: by Caesar; for the dative of agent see references on sibi, 61, 2. vexillum: see Introd. 28.

6-7. prōpōnendum: sc. erat. cum: whenever. For the mood of oportēret see A. 548 (322); B. 288, 3, a; G. 584, R.; H. 601, 4; H-B. 540. concurrī: impersonal, subject of oportēret. signum: the signal to "fall in," given after the display of the vexillum on the general's tent. opere: work, i.e. on the camp.

8-10. quī: for ei quī, ei being the subject of arcessendī (erant). paulō longius: quite a distance; lit. a little farther, in comparison with the troops at work on the camp. aggeris: here in the sense of material for the camp rampart. cohortandī: see Introd. 33. signum: the signal to begin battle.

11. impediēbat: singular, brevitās and incursus constituting parts of a single idea. Cf. ratio ōrdōque sē habēbat, 62, 7.

12. His difficultātibus . . . subsidiō: two things served to remedy these difficulties. For the datives cf. praesidiō impeditis, 62, 12. duae rēs: explained by the appositive nouns, scientia and ūsus (further explained by the causal clause, quod . . . poterant), and by the appositive clause, quod . . . vetuerat, the fact of his having forbidden.

14. quid fierī oportēret: an indirect question depending on praescribere and docēri.

16-17. lēgātōs discōdere: an infinitive clause, the regular construction after vetō, forbid. nisi mūnitīs castrīs: unless or before, the camp should be constructed. An abl. absolute with nisi may be employed to express a condition. HI: the lēgātī.

18-19. nihil iam: no longer, lit. not at all (now); nihil, acc. of degree, is frequently used as a stronger negative than nōn. per sē: of their own accord. quae vidēbantur: what seemed (necessary).

Construction of aggeris 8, proeliis, quid 13, oportēret 14, poterant 15, vidēbantur 19. Principal parts of concurrī

6, oportēret 7, arcessendī, Instruenda 9, docēri 15, vetuerat 17.

20. CHAPTER 21. necessāriis rēbus imperātis: after giving (only) such orders as were indispensable.

21. quam in partem fors obtulit: in the direction chance took him. For the antecedent standing in the relative clause only, cf. quem ad finem, 62, 18.

22-24. nōn longiōre . . . quam uti: in a speech just long enough to urge them to remember, lit. no longer than that they should remember. The uti clause contains in indirect form the substance of Caesar's exhortation. suae: their well-known, their usual, as in 59, 2. neu: the regular connective, and not, after ut and nē with imperative and optative ideas. Before sustinērent an ut is to be understood.

Page 64. 1. quod . . . aberant: causal, looking forward to signum dedit.

2. quō tēlum adigī posset: a javelin's cast, lit. to what (distance) a javelin could be cast. The clause is one of result, or characteristic, A. 535, c (320, c); B. 283, 2, a; G. 298; H. 570, 1; H-B. 521, 2, c.

3. alteram partem: i.e. the right wing.

4. pūgnantibus occurrit: finds (his men) already engaged.

6-8. insignia, galeās, tegimenta: see Introd. 18. scūtis: abl. of separation. dēfuerit: for the tense see A. 485, c (287, c); B. 268, 6; G. 513; H. 550; H-B. 478. Quam in partem: to what(ever) place.

9-10. prima: adjective for adverb. haec: antecedent of quae. suis: sc. signis. pūgnandī: from (lit. of) fighting.

Construction of cohortandōs 63, 20, orātiōne 22, virtutis 23, animō 24; pūgnantibus 64, 4, dīmicandum 5, dēfuerit 8, dīmitteret 10. Principal parts of obtulit 63, 21, dēvsnit 22; adigī 64, 2, profectus 4, induendās, dēstrahenda 7, cōstitit 9.

11. CHAPTER 22. ut: as, also in the next line.

13-15. ratio atque ordō: the theoretical arrangement. cum:

as, since. diversae: acting independently. alias aliā in parte: some in one part (of the field), others in another, A. 315, c (203, c); B. 253, 2; G. 221, R. 1; H. 516, 1; H-B. 265. saepibus . . . interiectis: abl. absolute, by the intervening hedges.

16-17. neque: here begins the main sentence. certa: definite, i.e. according to a definite plan. neque, quid . . . esset, prōvidēri (poterat): nor was it possible to foresee what was necessary.

3-4. Chapter 23. ut . . . cōstitērant: according to the position which they held at the left of the battle line. Ut in such clauses contains a suggestion both of manner and cause. Cf. the ut clause, 62, 23-24. aciēs: gen., a form found occasionally instead of the form in -ē.

6. hīs: i.e. the Atrebatēs. ea pars: that post, opposite the Roman left. locō superiōre: the high ground where the two legions were at the beginning of the battle.

7. cōnantēs: sc. eōs, object of insecuti.

8-10. impeditam: hampered (as they were). Ipsī: the Romans. locum inficum: the hill south of the river is meant. resistentēs . . . redintegrātō: when they turned and renewed.

12. aliā in parte: i.e. in the center. diversae: acting independently of the other legions, as in 64, 13.

14. ex locō superiōre: connect with prōfigātis.

15. ā fronte: along the front.

18. cōnfertissimō agmine: in close formation, abl. of manner. duce Boduōgnātō: under the leadership of Boduognatus, abl. absolute.

20-21. ab apertō latere: on the unprotected flank, i.e. the right, the shield being carried on the left arm. summum castrōrum locum: the high ground (which was the site) of the camp; the gen. is possessive.

Construction of cursū, lassitudinē 4, hīs 5, proeliō 10, cōstitisset 17, duce 18. Principal parts of cōnfectōs 5, obvenerat 6, compulserunt 7, prōgressi 9, coniēcerunt 11, contenderunt 19, coepit 21.

23-24. CHAPTER 24. quī: refers to peditēs, while quōs refers to equitēs and peditēs. quōs . . . dixeram: who, as I have said, had been routed. For the tense of dixeram see note on dixerāmus, 48, 4.

Page 66. 1. adversis hostibus occurrēbant: met the enemy face to face. Their first flight had carried them back to, and beyond, the Roman camp. As they reentered from the rear or side they met the Nervii coming in from the front.

2-3. decumānā portā: the camp site, as usual, was the crest and slope of a hill, the rear gate resting on the crest; ac summō iugō merely explains the location of the gate. nostrōs victōrēs: our victorious troops; victōrēs, in apposition with nostrōs, replaces an adjective.

5. praecipitēs: agrees with cālōnēs, but may be translated with fugae.

6-8. quī . . . veniēbant: the 13th and 14th legions. oriēbātur: a singular verb, the two subjects being taken together as parts of one idea. Cf. postulābat, 64, 13, and habēbat, 62, 7. alii aliam in partem: some in one direction, others in another, or simply in different directions. Cf. 64, 13-14. ferēbantur: were hurrying.

10. virtūtis opiniō: reputation for valor.

Page 67. 2-3. legiōnēs: the 7th and 12th. circumventās: predicate adjective, forming with tenēri a stronger expression than circumventās esse.

5. dēspērātis nostris rēbus: giving our cause up as lost, abl. absolute.

6-7. pulsōs, superātōs: sc. esse. castris, impedimentis: for the abl. with potior see A. 410 (249); B. 218, 1; G. 407; H. 477, I; H-B. 429. potitōs: sc. esse.

Construction of armātūrae 65, 22, impetū 24; hostibus

66, 1, respexissent 4, fugae 6; vidissent, domum 67, 5, civitātī 7. Principal parts of occurrēbant 66, 1, respexissent 4, oriēbātur 7; dispersōs 67, 4.

CHAPTER 25. Caesar here resumes the narrative of his own part in the battle, interrupted at 64, 4. In the following passage the main sentence is, Caesar . . . profectus, . . . scōtō . . . dētractō (21), . . . prōcessit (22) . . . iussit (25). ubi . . . posset, 9-21, pictures the condition of the right wing at Caesar's arrival. In translating break up into short declarative sentences, Caesar proceeded from . . . to the right wing. There he found his men hard pressed. As the standards had become massed together, the crowded soldiers of the twelfth legion hampered one another in fighting, etc.

10-11. sibi, impedimentō: two datives, one of the person, the other of the end. Cf. 63, 12.

12. signiferō, signō āmissō: Intro. 28.

14. in hīs: among them. prīmiplō: Intro. 15.

15-16. multis gravibusque: many severe, without and, is the English idiom. vulneribus cōfectō: Baculus lived to fight another day, as we find in Bk. III. ut . . . nōn posset: a clause of result; translate iam and nōn together, no longer.

17. tardiōrēs: rather spiritless. ab novissimis: in the rear ranks. proeliō: abl. of separation.

18-19. neque: correlative with et, 19. In 20 we find the reverse order, et . . . neque. neque . . . subeuntēs intermittere: and that the enemy did not stop advancing, or and that the enemy continued to advance. intermittere is used absolutely.

20. rem esse in angustō: matters were at a crisis. vidit: repeated from 11, above, because of the long passage intervening.

21. quod . . . posset: a clause of characteristic. mlitī: from a soldier; for the dative of separation see A. 381 (229); B. 188, 2, d; G. 352; H. 427; H-B. 371.

25. quō facilius: in order more easily, a clause of purpose.

26. mlitibus: dat. of indirect object after the compound verb, inlātā. cum prō sē quisque . . . operam nāvāre cuperet: since each was eager to do his best; prō sē, lit. according to his ability.

Principal parts of urgērī 9, occīsīs 12, excōdere 18, instāre 19, dētractō 21; cuperet 68, 2.

6. CHAPTER 26. sēsē: object of coniungerent, legiōnēs being subject of the latter and also of inferrent. Translate, directed the tribunes that the legions should gradually draw together, face about, and advance upon the enemy. For the use of the participle, conversa, instead of a coördinate verb, see A. 496, N. 2 (292, R.); B. 337, 5; G. 664, R. 1; H. 639; H-B. 604, 1. The exact nature of the movement here described is difficult to determine. It had the effect, if not the form, of a hollow square.

7-9. aliīs aliī subsidium ferrent: rendered mutual assistance. How lit.? nē . . . circumvenirentur: that, etc.; for the construction after verbs of fearing see A. 564 (331, f); B. 296, 2; G. 550, 2; H. 567; H-B. 502, 4, a. āversī: from the rear, lit. being turned away. hoste: abl. of agent. The word is here used collectively.

13. cursū incitātō . . . cōspiciēbantur: quickened their pace and were sighted. summō: top of, adjective denoting a part; cf. infimus, 62, 1. colle: the hill on which the Roman camp lay.

16. decimam legiōnem: the 9th and 10th legions had driven the Atrebatas across the river and had captured their camp in the woods. subsidiō nostrīs: to the support of our troops.

16. Quī: refers to militēs implied in legiōnem.

17. quō in locō rēs esset: the state of affairs. How lit.?

19-20. versārētur: singular, in agreement with the nearest subject. nihil . . . fēcērunt: made all possible haste, lit. made themselves nothing left with respect to haste. reliqui is a predicate genitive of possession.

Construction of ut . . . Inferrent 6-7, Quō 7, praesidiō, impedimentis 12, gererentur 15, subsidiō, nostris 16, esset 17, versārētur 19.

22. CHAPTER 27. nostrī, etiam quī: even those of our men who. prōcubuissent: subjv. by attraction.

23. scūtis: for the ablative with innitor see A. 431 (254, b); B. 218, 3; G. 401, N. 6; H. 476, 3; H-B. 438, 2, a.

3. omnibus in locis: everywhere, i.e. regardless of the character of the ground. sē . . . praeferrent: tried to outdo. How lit.?

5. etiam in extrēmā spē: even though there was but slight hope.

6-7. ut, etc.: a clause of result, extending to remitterent, 10. prīmī eōrum: their front ranks. proximī: those nearest. iacentibus: dat. after the compound insisterent, mounted on the fallen.

8. his: and when these. quī superessent: the survivors. The subjv. is due to attraction.

9-10. ut: as if. intercepta remitterent: caught up and hurled back. For the participle instead of a coördinate verb cf. conversa, 68, 6, and references in the note. Many of these javelins must have been rendered practically useless from the bending of the iron heads, Introd. 19. nōn: limits nēquiquam. virtūtis: gen. of quality.

13. quae: things which, i.e. the exploits in 11-12. facilia: in the predicate after redēgerat, had rendered easy. ex difficillimis: though naturally most difficult, lit. from most difficult.

Construction of redintegrārent 68, 23; armātis 69, 1, dēlērent 2, pūgnandō, mīlitibus 3. Principal parts of prōcubuissent 68, 22, innixi 23; praestitērunt 69, 6, insisterent 7, intercepta 10, redēgerat 14.

16. CHAPTER 28. redāctō: takes the gender of the nearer noun, nōmine.

17. aestuāria, palūdēs: probably along the estuary of the Scheldt. confectōs: sc. esse.

18-19. victōribus nihil (esse) impeditum, victis nihil (esse) tātum: there was nothing to stop the victors and no safety for the vanquished.

23. vix ad quingentōs: an exaggeration of their losses, in view of the forces raised by the Nervii in subsequent years.

24-25. visus: sc. esse. vidērētur: be seen.

Page 70. 1-2. utī: sc. eōs as subject. suōs: their dependents.

Construction of nātā, 69, 16, victōribus 18, victis, arbitrarentur 19, vidērētur 25; prohibērent 70, 2.

3-4. CHAPTER 29. suprā: see 60, 3. cum: conjunction. cōpiis: abl. of accompaniment without a preposition. auxiliō Nerviis; to the aid of the Nervii. ex itinere: at once. How lit.? Cf. 57. 4.

6. oppidum: probably on Mont Falhize, north of the Meuse, though identified by some authorities with the citadel of Namur, at the junction of the Meuse and Sambre.

7-8. cum: while. omnibus: all (other). unā ex parte: i.e. to the northeast.

10-11. pedum: gen. of quality or measure, the comparative amplius being an adverb with no effect on the case. tum: at this time, and now.

13. Cimbris, Teutonīs: see note on 28, 27.

15. agere: drive, live stock forming a part of the impedimenta.

16-17. custōdiam: custodians, to care for the impedimenta. ex suis: from among their number. praesidium: as a protecting force, in apposition with milia. The custōdia and the praesidium seem to have been two different bodies. unā: along with (it), i.e. with the impedimenta.

18-19. eōrum: referring to the main body. cum . . . inferrent, aliās . . . dēfenderent: sometimes taking the offensive, sometimes the defensive. With inlātum sc. bellum, lit. warding off war waged upon (them).

20. eōrum omnium: i.e. their enemies. hunc locum: this region.

Construction of auxiliō, Nerviis, venirent 4, habērēt 8, pedum 10, poterant 15, annōs 18, sibi, domiciliō 20. Principal parts of revertērunt 5, dēsertis 6, relinquēbātur 10, dēlēgerant 21.

Page 71. 1. CHAPTER 30. vallō: a wall of circumvallation built by Caesar's army. It lay north of the Meuse, its ends touching the river east and west of the town. pedum duodecim: refers to the height.

2. mīlium: sc. pedum. oppidō: for the ablative without a preposition see note on castris, 56, 10.

3. aggere: constructed along the lēniter acclivis aditus, 70, 9.

4-6. cōstitutū: being erected. invidēre, increpitāre: for the historical infinitive see A. 463 (275); B. 335; G. 647; H. 610; H-B. 595. quod . . . instituerētur: a reported reason; for the mood see A. 540 (321); B. 286, 1; G. 541; H. 588, II; H-B. 535, 2, a. ā: away. tantō spatiō: abl. of degree of difference. quibusnam manibus, etc.: with what hands, pray, an indirect question depending on the idea of asking implied in increpitāre vōcibus.

7. praesertim hominēs: especially (as they were) men. hominēs is in apposition with the subject of cōfident.

8-9. omnibus Gallis . . . contemptū est: is a (matter of) contempt to all the Gauls, or excites the contempt of all the Gauls.

10. in mūrō: the Atuatuca evidently knew little or nothing of Roman siege operations.

Construction of vidērunt 4, statūrae 7, Gallis 8, contemptū 9, oneris, cōfident 10. Principal parts of extrūctō 3, invidēre 4, cōfident 10.

12. CHAPTER 31. movērī, adpropinquāre: moving, approaching; sc. turrim as subject.

14. ad hunc modum: in this fashion, to this effect. nōn: in emphatic position, but to be taken with sine ope.

16. quī: equivalent to cum eī, since they, A. 540, c (321, b); B. 283, 3, a; G. 633; H. 592; H-B. 523.

18-20. Unum: one thing, explained by nē . . . dēspoliāret, that he should not deprive them of their arms. suā: his well-known, his usual. statuisset: should decide.

22. virtūtī: dat. after a verb meaning to envy. trāditis armis: abl. absolute, if they should surrender their arms.

23-26. Sibi praestāre: it was better for them; the infinitive pati is subject of praestāre. eum casum: such a dilemma, that of submitting to the Romans or being left to the mercy of their Gallic neighbors. quavis fortunam: any fate, whatever (it might be). ā: at the hands of. per cruciātum interfici: be tortured to death. cōsuēssent: for the contracted form see A. 181, a (128, a); B. 116, 1; G. 131, 1; H. 238; H-B. 163, 1.

Construction of mūris 12, altitudinis, celeritate 16, audient 19, statuisset, armis 20, Sibi 21, possent 23, dēdicēretur 24. Principal parts of locūtī 14, statuisset 20, invidere 22.

Page 72. 1-2. CHAPTER 32. cōsuētūdine, meritō: abls. of accordance.

5. attigisset: for a fut. perf. indic. of direct discourse. By ancient custom it was too late for entreaties after the assault began.

7-8. nisi armis trāditis: except to deliver over their arms. For nisi with an abl. absolute cf. 63, 16-17. in Nervii: in the case of the Nervii.

9. finitimisque imperātūrum: and would order their neighbors, or by ordering, explanatory of id, quod . . . fēcisset. nē quam . . . inferrent: not to inflict any injury.

11. quae imperarentur, facere dixerunt: announced their obedience to his commands. The present infinitive, facere, instead of a future, is employed to indicate vividly their immediate submission; sē is to be understood as subject.

14. aggeris: the agger had been extended almost to the wall, probably to the outer edge of the moat, before the surrender occurred.

Construction of dēdidissent 5, fēcisset 8, adaequarent 14, perspectum est 15. Principal parts of attigisset, dēdidissent 5, iactā 13, retentā, patefactis 16.

19-20. CHAPTER 33. nē quam . . . acciperent: a clause of purpose.

21. praesidia: stationed in the Roman castella.

22-23. partim . . . partim: partly . . . partly, some . . . others.

24. ex: governs both cortice and viminibus intextis.

26. minimē arduus: least steep, implying that the Roman line of circumvallation was traced along high ground.

Page 73. 3. Ignibus: perhaps piles of brush and wood were in readiness for such an emergency.

4. eō concursum est: there was a rush to that point, impersonal passive, A. 208, d (146, d); B. 138, IV; G. 208, 2; H. 302, 6; H-B. 201, c.

5-7. pūgnātum ab hostibus . . . est, ut ā viris fortibus . . . pūgnārī dēbuit: the enemy fought as spiritedly as brave men ought to have fought, or freely as might have been expected of brave men; impersonal passive of pūgnō. qui . . . iacerent: a clause of characteristic. ūnā: alone, only.

8. ad: adverb, equivalent to circiter, about.

13. millium quinquāgintā: as fifty-three thousand, predicate gen. This number included the survivors in the town, but not the whole tribe, as we find the Atuatuca leagued with other Gallic tribes against the Romans in the year 54.

Construction of crēdiderant 72, 22, retinuerant 23, postulābat 25, cōsisteret 73, 8, dēfenderet 10. Principal parts of concursum est 4, Occis 8, refrāctis 10, vēndidit, emerant 12.

CLOSE OF THE CAMPAIGN, 34-35.

14. CHAPTER 34. legiōne unā: the 7th. This legion figures in the battle with the Nervii. Crassus was probably sent against the seacoast tribes immediately after. The siege of the Atuatuaci clearly occupied considerable time, their surrender occurring possibly in September, the battle with the Nervii towards the end of July.

16. quae: attracted to the gender of the predicate noun, civitātēs.

18. in diciōnem, etc.: the statement appears somewhat exaggerated, as they had only given hostages.

20. CHAPTER 35. omni Gallia: not to be taken literally, but applying merely to the defeated tribes.

Page 74. 1. incolerent: subjv. by attraction.

2. qui . . . pollicērentur: a relative clause of purpose. datūrās, factūrās: agreeing in gender with nātiōnibus, the envoys speaking, not for themselves, but for their respective tribes.

3. Italiam: i.e. Cisalpine Gaul.

4. initā proximā aestāte: at the beginning of the next summer.

6. quaeque civitātēs: for et in eas civitātēs quae.

8. Ob easque: in a prepositional phrase the enclitic -que is generally attached to the second word, if the first word is a preposition.

9. ex litteris Caesaris: as reported by Caesar's despatches. supplicatiō: a season of thanksgiving, decreed by the senate and celebrated with religious ceremonies.

10. quod: (a thing) which, (an honor) which, the neuter relative referring, as frequently, to the substance of a preceding sentence. The longest supplicatiō on record up to this time had lasted twelve days.

BOOK III.

INTRODUCTION.

Events at Octodurus.— The first episode of Book III belongs to the year 57. Servius Galba, one of Caesar's lieutenants, with one legion and a detachment of cavalry, was directed to free the road over the Alps by the Great St. Bernard from the control hitherto exercised by hostile mountaineers. The natives, though at first defeated and compelled to give hostages, finally mustered large numbers and attacked Galba's winter camp at Octodurus. The Romans succeeded in cutting their way out. Galba, however, fearful of his ability to obtain supplies, deemed it prudent to return with his force to the Transalpine province.

Rising of the Veneti.— The maritime tribes, nominally subdued by Crassus in 57, rose in rebellion under the lead of the seafaring Veneti, seized the officers sent to collect grain for Crassus's legions and demanded back their hostages. Caesar ordered the construction of a fleet in anticipation of naval operations in the summer of 56. Upon rejoining his army, he first sent detachments to various important posts to forestall a general uprising in Gaul. The attempt to reduce the Veneti by a land attack met with great obstacles, as their towns were situated on promontories cut off from the mainland at high tide. Before a capture could be effected, the inhabitants took to their fleet and escaped. The arrival of the Roman fleet under command of Decimus Brutus at last forced the enemy's fleet to battle not far from Quiberon Bay, Caesar with his army looking on from the heights near by. Strong hooks attached to long poles enabled the Roman sailors to destroy the rigging of the opposing fleet, after which the crippled vessels were boarded and taken by hand-to-hand fighting. The submission of the tribes involved followed.

Sabinus among the Venelli. — Meanwhile Caesar's lieutenant, Quintus Sabinus, had been sent to keep the Venelli and allies from uniting with the Veneti. The Eburovices and Lexovii, in a burst of warlike fury, put to death their senates, when the latter refused to sanction hostilities, and united under Viridovix, chief of the Venelli. Sabinus, after establishing his three legions in a strong camp, assumed an attitude of fear and sent a pretended deserter over to the enemy to lure them on. The ruse succeeded, the Gauls coming to the attack in all haste, whereupon the Romans made a sortie and routed them. The disheartened Gauls submitted to Sabinus.

Crassus in Aquitania. — Publius Crassus, too, with twelve cohorts, a large cavalry force, and certain auxiliaries, was no less successful in Aquitania. After defeating the Sotiates in the open, he besieged and took their stronghold, the site of modern Sos. Other Aquitanian tribes, now thoroughly aroused, summoned aid from neighboring Spanish tribes, together with leaders who had acquired skill in war under the Roman general Sertorius. Constructing a camp fortified after the Roman fashion, they determined to avoid a decisive battle for the present, to cut off the Romans from supplies, and then to attack them if they attempted a retreat. Crassus resolved to assault their camp without further delay. During the battle it was discovered that the rear gate afforded a vulnerable point. An entrance was effected here. The Aquitani, assailed front and rear, gave way and fled, the Roman cavalry pursuing and cutting down the fugitives. The greater part of Aquitania then offered its submission.

The Morini and Menapii. — The year's events closed with an effort by Caesar to subdue the Morini and Menapii, two Belgic tribes which had not yet acknowledged Roman authority. Defeated in the open field, the Gauls retired to the forests and marshes of their country. Caesar gave pursuit, but was eventually compelled to desist, baffled by the denseness of the forests and by inclement weather. The legions were quartered for the winter among the maritime tribes lately conquered.

BOOK III.

EVENTS AT OCTODURUS, 1-6.

Page 75. 1. CHAPTER 1. Cum . . . proficisceretur : Caesar spent the winter in Cisalpine Gaul, as usual. Ser. Galbam : Galba had already seen service in Gaul in the campaign against the Allobroges, in 61 B.C. He was Caesar's lieutenant through 55. In 44 he took part in the conspiracy against Caesar's life.

4. summās : summit of, upper.

5. iter : subject of patefieri. This is the road over the Great St. Bernard into Italy.

6. quō : abl. of the way or route. periculō : refers rather to attacks by the natives than to natural dangers. cum : with, by the payment of. portōribus : tolls levied by the mountaineers.

7-8. Huic permisit, . . . , uti : gave him permission to, etc. si . . . arbitrāretur : if he should think, for a fut. indic. in a direct statement.

10. castellis : strongholds, fortified villages.

11. eōrum : the three tribes mentioned above.

13. in Nantuātibus : near modern St. Maurice.

15-16. nōn magnā adiectā plānitē : with a plain of no great extent adjoining, abl. absolute. Cum : causal.

17. hic : sc. vicus. flūmine : the Dranse.

18. alteram : on the west bank of the Dranse. vacuam : predicate adjective after relictam.

21-22. CHAPTER 2. hibernōrum : in winter quarters. eō : adverb.

Page 76. 2. concesserat: indic. in an explanatory statement of the author's.

3. a multitudīne: "collective nouns referring to persons, and abstract nouns when personified, may be construed as the personal agent" (B. 216, 1).

5-6. Id: it, explained by the substantive clause of result, ut . . . caperent.

7-8. neque eam plēnissimam: and that not a full legion-dētractis, etc.: the abls. absolute give the reason for the depletion of the legion. In addition, this legion had met with severe losses in the battle with the Nervii. duābus: see 75, 12-13. complūribus: sc. militibus.

11. cum . . . dēcurrerent: when they should run down, the imperf. subjv. representing a future indic. of direct discourse.

13-14. Accēdēbat, quod: there was the additional reason, that, etc., lit. it was added, that; a substantive quod clause as subject. liberōs abstractōs (esse): at the taking of their children, an infinitive clause, object of dolēbant. nōmine: under the name, or guise.

14-17. Rōmānōs . . . cōnārī: that the Romans were attempting, indirect discourse after sibi persuāsum habebant, had persuaded themselves, were convinced. The participle persuāsum is neuter acc. to agree with the infinitive clause. sibi persuāserant might have been written; see A. 497, b (292, c); B. 337, 7; G. 238; H. 431, 3; H-B. 605, 5, a. possessiōnis: sc. causā.

18-19. CHAPTER 3. opus: the work as a whole, especially the quarters for the troops; see Intro. 30. perfectae: agrees with the nearer subject, mūnitiōnēs.

20. neque esset prōvisum: impersonal passive, nor had sufficient provision been made.

23-24. tantum repentinī periculī: such great and sudden peril; periculī is gen. of the whole.

25. complēta: in the predicate after cōnspicerentur, were seen to be.

26. subsidiō: dat. of purpose after the impersonal passive veniri; sc. posset and translate, and since it was neither possible for them to be reinforced, nor for supplies to be brought up.

28. ſus modi: gen. of quality, of this sort, to the effect; explained by the appositive ut clause, that they should hasten.

Page 77. 2. itineribus: abl. of the way by which; cf. quō, 75, 6. pervēniſſent: subjv. by attraction.

4-5. experiri, dēfendere: subjects of placuit.

6-8. CHAPTER 4. ut . . . darētur: a clause of result, the conjunction yielding its regular position of first in the clause in order to emphasize viz. cōſtituiſſent: for mood cf. pervēniſſent, 2, above. eis rēbus . . . conlocandis: for the gerundive construction in the dative see A. 505 (299, a); B. 339, 2; G. 429; H. 627, 2; H-B. 612, II. dēcurrere: rushed down, historical infinitive. Six others follow in the rapid and vivid narrative; see A. 463 (275); B. 335; G. 647; H. 610; H-B. 595.

9-10. integrīs vīribus: while their strength was fresh.

11. locō ſuperiōre: i.e. the top of the rampart.

12. dēfēnsōribus: abl. of separation. vidēbātur: was seen. eō: to that point, for ad eam partem. occurrere: they would run, historical infinitive with the force of an imperfect indic. of repeated action, to match vidēbātur.

13. hōc: abl. of specification, in this, explained by the quod clause, that, etc. superārī: were at a disadvantage.

16-18. nōn modo: sc. nōn, A. 217, e (149, e); B. 343, 2, a; G. 482, R. 1; H. 656, 3; H-B. 299. dēfessō, sauciō: substantives, dat. of indirect object. suī recipiendī: A. 504, c (298, a); B. 339, 5; G. 428, R. 1; H. 626, 3; H-B. 614.

19. CHAPTER 5. Cum iam . . . pūgnārētur: when the battle had continued; for the tense with iam see A. 471, b (277, b); B. 260, 4; G. 234; H. 535, 1; H-B. 485. The principle applies to the tenses of the subjunctive as well as to those of the indicative. hōris: abl. of comparison.

21. languidiōribus nostris: abl. absolute, now that our men's strength was failing.

22. fossās: plural with reference to different points, there being but one ditch. Cf. ripās, 31, 12.

24. prīmī pīlī centuriō: see Intro. 15. quem . . . dīximus: who, as we have said. See 67, 14. cōnfectum: sc. esse.

Page 78. 1. cōsiliī, virtūtis: for the genitive see A. 345 (215); B. 203, 1; G. 365; H. 440, 3; H-B. 355. Note the position and agreement of māgnī; it is to be taken with both genitives.

2-3. si ēruptiōne factā . . . experīrentur; in form a condition, if they should make a sortie, etc.; best translated as the subject of esse, was to make a sortie, etc.

4. certiorēs facit: directs, orders. What is the usual meaning?

5. intermitterent proelium: to check their fighting; for the subjv. see A. 565, a (331, f, R.); B. 295, 1, 8; G. 546, R. 2; H. 565, 4; H-B. 502, 3, a.

6. missa: hurled (at them). exciperent: parry. post: adverb.

9. CHAPTER 6. Quod iussī sunt: for id, quod facere iussi sunt. omnibus portis: through all the gates, abl. of the way by which.

10. quid fieret: an indirect question.

12-13. in spem vēnerant: had conceived the hope. potiundōrum: the endings -undus and -iundus of the third and fourth conjugation gerundives represent probably the original type in these conjugations. circumventōs interficiunt: surround and kill; for the participle instead of a coördinate verb see A. 496, N. 2 (292, R.); B. 337, 5; G. 664, R. 1; H. 639; H-B. 604, 1.

5. saepius: too often.

6-7. aliō cōsiliō: with one plan; aliis rēbus, different circumstances, i.e. from what he had expected. Galba had expected no effective opposition from the mountaineers.

8. commeātūs : other supplies, provisions in general.

9. prōvinciam : the Transalpine province.

RISING OF THE VENETI, 7-16.

14. CHAPTER 7. pācātā : in a peaceful condition. superātis Belgis, etc. : abls. absolute explaining causis.

15. initā hieme : at the beginning of winter, i.e. in the year 57.

16. eās : equivalent to of that province.

19. P. Crassus : see 73, 14.

20. mare : for the accusative with proximus see A. 432, a (234, e); B. 141, 3; G. 359, N. 1; H. 435, 2; H-B. 380, b.

22. praefectōs : see Introd. 16. complūrēs : with civitātēs.

2. omnis orae maritimae : equivalent to omnium civitatum maritimarum.

3. in Britanniam nāvigāre : see Introd. p. 60.

4. cōnsuerunt : are accustomed. What is the meaning of the perfects, cōgnōvi, memini, ōdi?

5. in māgnō impetū : because of (lit. in) the great violence.

7. habent vectigālēs : they hold tributary. Vessels from other states were made to pay harbor tolls.

9. Ab his fit initium retinendi Sili : these begin (the insurrection) by detaining Silius. The genitive is explanatory; A. 343, d (214, f); B. 202; G. 361, 1; H. 440, 4; H-B. 341.

10. per eōs : i.e. by holding them for exchange.

12. ut sunt, etc. : just as the resolutions of the Gauls are, etc., or quite in keeping with the sudden and hastily formed resolutions of the Gauls. Ut frequently introduces some general fact, to mark a particular fact as natural, to be expected.

14. inter se coniurant : pledge one another.

15. nihil (se) . . . āctūrōs (esse) . . . lātūrōs : indirect discourse, giving the substance of their pledge.

17-19. ut . . . mālint : to prefer, substantive clause dependent on solicitant. quam (18) : rather than; the idea of rather is in mālint.

21. velit, remittat: in direct discourse, via and remitte. What do suōs and sibi represent?

24. CHAPTER 9. longius: too far, i.e. to give immediate personal attention to the matter. nāvēs longās: see Introd. 38.

Page 81. 2. prōvinciā: the Transalpine province.

3-4. cum primum . . . potuit: as soon as the season permitted. The conference of the triumvirs at Lucca occurred in April, after Caesar returned to Italy from Illyricum. See Introd. p. xvi. Probably he did not rejoin his army before the first of May.

7. in se admississent: lit. had taken upon themselves, i.e. had been guilty of; subjv. in an indirect question.

8-10. līgātōs . . . retentōs (esse) . . . coniectōs (esse): in having detained envoys, etc., explaining facinus. The use of an infinitive clause instead of an appositive quod clause is doubtless due partly to the proximity of intellegēbant, partly to the desire not to employ quod too frequently in a short passage. quod nōmen: a title which. In applying the title "envoys" to officers sent merely to secure grain, Caesar is evidently trying to justify the following campaign. ad: among, or in the sight of.

12. hōc māiōre spēs: with (all) the greater hope. Explain the ablatives. multum: acc. of degree with cōfidēbant. nātūrā: for the ablative with cōfidō see A. 431, n. (254, b); B. 219, 1; G. 401, n. 6; H. 476, 3; H-B. 437.

13-14. concīsa, impeditam: predicate adjectives. inscientiam: i.e. on the part of the Romans.

15-16. neque: and not, the negative going with posse. diūtius: too long, very long.

17. cōfidēbant: trusted that, governing indirect discourse, nostrōs . . . posse. ac iam: then, too. ut: even though, granted that, A. 527, a (313, a); B. 308; G. 608; H. 586, II; H-B. 532, 2, b.

18. plūrimum posse: were very strong; the infinitive clause is governed by the continued force of sciēbant, 15.

19. Rōmānōs: (while) the Romans.

20. gestūri essent: were about to wage war. The periphrastic must be employed for past future expressions where the simple tenses would be ambiguous; gererent might mean were waging.

21-22. ac: and besides, furthermore. longē aliam atque: far otherwise than, far different from what it was. conclūsō marī: i.e. the Mediterranean.

26. cōnstābat: it appeared, it was generally supposed.

29. ex Britannīā: in Bk. IV, p. 109, 4-5, Cæsar offers as a reason for invading Britain the support furnished the Gauls from the island in previous campaigns.

Page 82. 1. CHAPTER 10. Erant: there were (it is true).

2. multa: many considerations, explained by iniūria, rebellio, etc.

3. iniūria retentōrum equitum: the wrong (done) in the detention of Roman knights. For the explanatory gen. cf. initium retinendi Sili, 80, 9, and note. Observe, too, that the participle expresses the leading idea, A. 497 (292, a); B. 337, 6; G. 664, r. 2; H. 636, 4; H-B. 608, 2. In the phrase "Roman knights" allusion is made to the fact that the tribunes were of the equestrian order.

4. datīs obsidibus: abl. absolute, after, or although, etc.

5-6. nē . . . arbitrārentur: (the fear) that the other tribes would think, a substantive clause on a par with the preceding nominatives in explaining multa. hāc parte: this quarter of Gaul.

10. cōspirārent: should conspire; for the mood with priusquam see A. 551, b (327); B. 292, 1, b; G. 577; H. 605, I, II; H-B. 507, 4, b.

11. sibi: dat. of agent.

14. CHAPTER 11. flāminī: what case did proximus govern in 79, 20? Which is the more common construction?

15. adeat: to visit, dependent on mandat. For the absence of an introductory ut see references on intermitterent, 78, 5.

16-17. auxiliō: dat. of purpose. arcessitī (esse): for the personal construction with the passive, dicebantur, see

A. 582 (330, b, 1); B. 332, c; G. 528, 1; H. 611, 1, n. 1; H-B. 590, 1. Observe that dicēbantur, standing in a parenthetical clause, is indic., while cōnentur is subjv., since its clause is an essential part of the instructions. per vim . . . trānsire: to force their way across.

18. legiōnāriis: added to distinguish them from auxiliary cohorts. See Introd. 5.

23. quī . . . cūret: a clause of purpose, to see that their forces are kept from concentrating. For the gerundive after cūrō see A. 500, 4 (294, d); B. 337, 8, b, 2; G. 430; H. 622; H-B. 612, III.

25. Pictonibus, Santonīs: see 80, 24.

Page 83. 2. eō: adv., for in Venetōs. pedestribus cōpīs: when may accompaniment be expressed without cum? With Galba's force Caesar had two legions and eight cohorts with him.

5. CHAPTER 12. extrēmīs: the ends of. pedibus: by land.

6. cum . . . incitāvisset: at high tide; lit.? For the subjv. of repeated action see A. 548 (322); B. 288, 3, a; G. 584, n.; H. 601, 4; H-B. 540. The mood may also be explained by the principle of attraction. quod: (a thing) which.

8. adflētārentur: subjv. by attraction to the mood of habērent. Why is not accidit also attracted to the subjv.? utrāque rē: from both circumstances.

9. impediēbātur: imperfect of repeated occurrences. Cf. also the tenses in the sentence following, in particular the pluperfect coeperant. sī quandō: whenever, lit. if ever.

10. operis: i.e. the Roman works of approach.

11. aggere ac mōlibus: two explanations have been offered for this expression; one assumes the construction of two parallel dikes, the space between affording ground for the maneuvering of troops; the other assumes but one large dike, which served as a causeway.

12. fortūnis: dat., for the outcome, lit. for their fortunes; dēspērō may take an accusative, a dative, or dē with an ablative.

13. cūius rei: for quārum. dēportābant: would carry off.
 17. summa: limiting difficultās.
 18. vāstō marī . . . nūllis portibus: abls. absolute, in the wide and open sea, where the tides were high, and where there were few and in fact almost no harbors.
 20-21. CHAPTER 13. Namque: frequently suggests an ellipsis; here, the Veneti had no such difficulties. factae, armātae: predicate adjectives. carīnae: sc. erant, also in the sentences following. quam nostrārum nāvium: than (those) of our ships, A. 297, f, n. (195, a, b); B. 247, 3; H. 445, 1; H-B. 273, b.
 22-23. quō facilius . . . possent: a clause of purpose.
 25. tōtāe: entirely, adjective with force of an adverb.
quamvis: from quīvīs.
 26. trānstra: cross-timbers, supporting the decks.

Page 84. 1-2. digitī pollicis crassitūdine: of the thickness of a thumb. Explain the cases. prō: instead of.

3. pellēa: (untanned) hides. vēllis: i.e. canvas sails. tenuiter cōfectae: worked thin, as compared with the untanned skins.

4. ēius ūsūs: its use; ēius is an objective genitive.

5. eō: for the reason, explained by quod . . . arbitrabantur. The first quod is a relative. vērī: for the case with simile see A. 385, c, 2 (234, d, 2); B. 204, 3; G. 359, R. 4; H. 435, 4; H-B. 339, c.

7. tanta onera nāvium: for tantī oneris nāvēs; translate, such heavy ships. The turn given the phrase emphasizes the idea of heaviness.

9. nostrae classī: of our fleet. Explain the case.

10. ūnā: only. reliqua: (while) all other conditions, adverbative asyndeton.

12. eīs: dat. governed by nocēre. Give the rule. nostrae: sc. nāvēs. rōstrō: see Introd. 38.

15-18. cōpulīs: see Introd. 38. Accēdēbat, ut . . . ferrent, etc.: then, too, they withstood, etc., lit. it was added that they withstood. For the substantive clause as subject see A. 569, 2 (332, a, 2); B. 297, 2; G. 553, 4; H. 571, 1; H-B. 521, 3, a. coepisset, dedissent: for mood see note on incitāvisset, 83, 6. in vadis cōsisterent: rode at anchor in the shallow water. ab aestū: abl. of agent; the tide is personified. reliotae: if stranded. nihil: not at all, acc. of degree.

19. nāvibus: dat., or abl.?

23. CHAPTER 14. neque eis nocēri posse: and that no harm could be done them. For the dative and the passive verb see A. 372 (230); B. 187, II, a, b; G. 346, R. 1; H. 426, 2, 3; H-B. 364, 2.

24. ubi . . . primum: as soon as.

26. armōrum: equivalent to armamentōrum.

27. portū: formed by the mouth of the river Auray. The army watched the battle probably from the heights of St. Gildas. nostris: dat. after adversae.

Page 85. 1-3. neque satis Brūtō . . . cōnstābat, quid . . . agerent . . . Insisterent: it was not quite clear to Brutus . . . what to do, etc. The direct question would be, quid agāmus aut quam ratiōnem insistāmus? What are we to do, etc. See A. 444 (268); B. 277; G. 265; H. 559, 4; H-B. 503. Rōstrō: abl. of means.

4-5. nocēri . . . cōgnōverant: knew that no damage could be done. turribus excitātis: even when towers were erected. See Introd. 38. ex: on, or of.

6-7. neque: correlative with et. et missa ā Gallis: while those hurled by the Gauls.

8. Ūna: emphatic, (but) there was one device (rēs). falcēs: in apposition with rēs. māgnō ūsuī: of great service. Explain the case.

9-10. nōn absimili fōrmā mūrālium falcium: in shape not unlike mural hooks, for nōn absimili fōrmā fōrmæ (dat.) mūrālium falcium. Explain the case of fōrmā and the supplied fōrmæ.

12-13. comprehēnsī . . . erant: for the mood and tense with cum, when (ever), see A. 542 (322); B. 288, B, 3; G. 584;

H. 601, 4; H-B. 579, N. adducti: pulled taut, lit. pulled towards (our ships).

16. nāvibus: dat. of reference, instead of a possessive genitive.

18. ūnō tempore: at the same time. Reliquum: after that.

19. superābant: were superior, absolute use of the verb.

21. paulō fortius: unusually brave.

23. in mare: down on the sea, the idea of down residing in the dē of dēspectus.

25-26. CHAPTER 15. bīnae ac ternae: it need not be inferred that the Roman ships were more numerous than those of the Veneti. As they were more easily maneuvered and had crippled many opposing vessels, they could attack, in groups of two or three, one vessel after another with comparatively little fear of interference. circumsteterant: for mood and tense cf. comprehēnsi erant, 12, above. VI: explain the case.

27. Quod: this.

Page 86. 1. eī rei: for this emergency.

3-4. quō: adverb, for in quam. ferēbat: used absolutely, in the direction of the wind. malacia ac tranquillitās: dead calm. The two words go to form a single idea, hence the singular verb, exstitit. movēre nōn possent: the ships of the Veneti were not supplied with oars.

6. singulās: one after the other.

8. cum . . . pūgnārētur: the battle lasting. hōrā ferē quārtā: the day between sunrise and sunset was divided at all seasons into twelve equal hours, the sixth ending at noon. Only at the equinoxes were the hours of equal length with the hours of modern time. As this battle probably occurred toward the close of the summer, the hours would nearly correspond in length to those of modern time; hōrā quārtā, then, is about equivalent to 10 A.M., for the word hōra, applied to a definite point of time, refers to the end of the hour.

11. CHAPTER 16. cum: correlative with tum, 13, not only . . . but also.

12-13. graviōris aetātis: genitive of quality, serving here to classify. cōnsili, dignitātis: genitives of the whole with aliquid. Likewise nāvium with quod, whatever of ships there had been anywhere, all the ships they had possessed.

15-16. neque, quō sē recipērent, etc.: had no (place) to which they could retreat, and no way in which they could defend their towns. The subjunctives are potential, quō and quem relatives. Cf. 120, 22-23, also nihil erat, quō famem tolerārent, 23, 16.

17. vindicandum (esse): impersonal, punishment must be meted out to them the more severely. eō and quō are correlatives, the latter introducing a clause of purpose.

20. sub oorōnā: as slaves. It had formerly been the custom to place a wreath on the head of a prisoner of war put up for sale. The sale of prisoners was managed by the quaestor, who disposed of them to traders following in the train of the army.

SABINUS AMONG THE VENELLI, 17-19.

21. CHAPTER 17. Dum . . . geruntur: for the mood and tense with dum see A. 556 (276, e); B. 293, I; G. 229, r.; H. 604, 1; H-B. 559.

22. eīs cōpīs: see 82, 22.

Page 87. 2. exercitum: a regularly organized army. cōpiās: seems to refer to troops levied for the occasion, to be employed if needed.

3. his paucis diebus: within these few days, i.e. while Sabinus was marching upon them.

5. nōlēbant: plural, a plural subject being supplied from the collective senātū.

8. quōs: for ei quōs.

10. rēbus: abl. of specification. locō: the site can not be determined with certainty. Napoleon thought it was probably to be identified with a hill about four miles east of Avranches.

11. cum: although. spatiō: abl. of degree of difference.

13. hostibus: dat. of reference, in the eyes of the enemy.

15. nōn nihil carperētur : did not escape criticism. nihil is acc. of degree.

18. eō : i.e. Caesar.

19. nisi : with abl. absolute, unless the ground were favorable or some (special) advantage were offered.

20. What is the force of dī- in dīmīcandum?

25. CHAPTER 18. prō : as, pretending to be.

27. neque longius abesse, quā, etc. : that no later than the next night Sabinus would lead, etc., or that Sabinus was about to lead his army out of camp the next night, etc. For the quā clause see A. 558 (319, d); B. 298; G. 556; H. 595, 1; H-B. 502, 3, b.

Page 88. 4. negōtī bene gerendī : of a successful engagement. irī : impersonal passive, subject of oportere, they ought to attack the camp.

8. erat prōvisum : impersonal, provision had been made.

9-10. quod . . . crēdunt : the fact that, a substantive clause in apposition with rēs, along with the nouns, cūctātīō, etc.

11-12. prius . . . quā ab eis sit concessum : until they give their consent; for the subjv. see A. 551, b, n. 2 (327); B. 292; G. 577, n. 2; H. 605, I; H-B. 507, 4, c. ut . . . contendant : a substantive clause, subject of sit concessum.

13. ut explorātā victoriā : as if victory were already assured.

14-15. quibus . . . compleant : with which to fill up, a clause of purpose.

17. CHAPTER 19. passūs mille : acc. of extent of space, to be taken with acclivis.

18. spatī : gen. of the whole after quā minimum, the least possible time.

22. portīs : abl. of the way by which, through the gates. Factum est : the result was, with ut . . . verterent, 24-26, as subject.

25. ac : here with adversative meaning, but.

4-6. ut . . . sic : just as . . . so, while . . . yet. animus :

spirit, which furnishes the impulse to action; mēns, mind, their disposition in general.

CRASSUS IN AQUITANIA, 20-27.

8. CHAPTER 20. P. Crassus: see 82, 18.

10. ex tertiā parte: as a third, possibly referring to Bk. I, Chapter 1. But it is there said merely that Aquitania is one of three divisions of Gaul.

12. Explain the cases of sibi and annīs. L. Valerius Praeconinus: known only from this passage. His defeat and death occurred doubtless in the war with Sertorius.

14. L. Mānlius: governor of the Transalpine province, defeated in 78 by one of Sertorius's officers. On his retreat from Spain through Aquitania he was attacked and defeated by the natives. āmissis: with the loss of.

15. nōn mediocrem: no ordinary.

17. comparātō: agrees with the nearer noun, equitātū. multis viris . . . ēvocātis: see Intro. 7. Tolōsā, etc.: for the abl. of town names see A. 427, 1 (258, a); B. 229, 1, a; G. 391; H. 491, II, 2; H-B. 451.

21. quō: in which.

26. Hi: though referring to cōpiās, is made masculine in accordance with the sense, cōstructiō ad sēsum.

Page 90. 2. CHAPTER 21. superiōribus victōriis: i.e. the victories over Praeconinus and Manlius. For the abl. with frētus see A. 431, a (254, b, 2); B. 218, 3; G. 401, n. 6; H. 476, 1; H-B. 438.

5-9. quid . . . possent: how strong they were, what they could (do), an indirect question depending on perspicī.

12. ex itinere: in its usual sense of at once, i.e. without resorting to regular siege works. oppidum: to be identified with modern Sos.

15. cuniculis actis: i.e. mines were extended out under the agger. If the latter contained much wood, it might be set on fire. See Intro. 36. rei: gen. governed by peritissimi, A. 349, a (218, a); B. 204, 1; G. 374; H. 451, 1; H-B. 354

17. sectirae: open cuttings, probably stone-quarries.

21. faciunt: they do (so), they obey.

24. CHAPTER 22. soldūriōs: a Celtic or Iberian term.

25-26. ut . . . fruantur, etc.: that they shall enjoy, etc., substantive appositive clause explaining condicio.

27. dēdiderint, accidat: subjv. by attraction. sī quid . . . accidat: euphemistic for if these meet a violent death.

Page 91. 2-3. memoriā: abl. of time within which. quī . . . recūsāret: a clause of characteristic. dēvōvisset: why subjv.?

4. cum his: repeating the idea of cum devōtis, above, after the long explanation.

7. tamen: i.e. in spite of his treachery. utī . . . ūterētur: substantive clause of result, object of impetravit.

12. CHAPTER 23. paucis diebus, quibus eō ventum erat: in the few days since his arrival. expugnātum: sc. esse.

15. citeriōris Hispāniae: predicate genitive, which belong to nearer Spain, between the Pyrenees and the river Ebro.

16. finitimae: limiting quae.

18. Ducēs: as leaders, a predicate nominative.

19. Q. Sertoriō: Sertorius was an adherent of the Marian party. As governor of Spain he trained an army and from 82 to 72 maintained a war against the government in Rome, terminated only by his assassination. omnēs annōs: all the years, of the Sertorian war.

21. loca: suitable positions, for camps in particular. Sertorius had taught the Spaniards Roman military methods.

24. Quod: this, object of animadvertit; the relative refers to the facts of the preceding sentence, and in turn is expanded by the infinitive clauses, cōpiās . . . didūci, etc.

25. hostem: (while) the enemy.

26. et: and yet.

Page 92. 1-2. nōn cōflectandum (esse), quā pūgnā dēcertāret: ought not to hesitate to fight a decisive battle. For the quā clause see A. 558, a, N. 2 (332, g, N. 2); B. 298, b; G. 555, R. 3; H. 595, 1; H-B. 502, 3, b.

3. idem sentīre: were of the same opinion. Construction of idem?

4. pūgnae: explain the case.

5. CHAPTER 24. duplīcī acīē: the small number of legionaries at Crassus's disposal made it necessary to employ the double line instead of the usual triple line, in order to present a front of sufficient extent. The auxiliaries, too, were removed from their customary position on the wings to the center; this made them more nearly an integral part of the line and less likely to give way.

7. cōnsillī: with quid, what plan. capere: would adopt, subjv. in an indirect question; for the tense see A. 483 (286); B. 269, 2; H. 545, II, 3; H-B. 507, 3. expectābat: waited to see.

9. etāī . . . existimābant: for the mood see A. 527, c (313, c); B. 309, 2; G. 604; H. 585; H-B. 582, 8. esse: the subject is potiri, 11.

12. coepissent: should begin.

13. sub sarcinīs infirmiorēs animō: less resolute because weighted by their packs. adoriri cōgitābant: they planned to attack; the infinitive is complementary.

15. suā: referring to hostēs.

17-19. vōcēs: exclamations, followed by indirect discourse, that they must no longer postpone an advance on the camp. expectāri, impersonal passive, is subject of oportere. For the quā clause cf. line 2. irētur is also an impersonal passive.

23. CHAPTER 25. quibus: governed by cōfidēbant, A. 367 (227); B. 187, II, a; G. 346; H. 426, 1; H-B. 362, 2. ad pūgnam: for fighting, may be rendered with quibus, in whose fighting qualities.

24. subministrandīs: by supplying, A. 507 (301); B. 339; G. 431; H. 630; H-B. 612, IV. aggerem: the agger on this occasion could not have been an elaborate structure, from the shortness of the time.

Page 93. 1. nōn timidō: fearlessly. Point out other instances of litotes in this chapter. locō superiōre: i.e. the top of the camp rampart. The Aquitani, under the guidance of the ducēs mentioned in 91, 18, had constructed a fortified camp.

3. ab: at.

8. CHAPTER 26. ab: in consequence of.

11. eās . . . mūnitiōnēs: that part of the fortifications, i.e. the rear gate.

12-14. prius quam posset: for the subjv. see A. 551, b (327); B. 292, 1, b; G. 577; H. 605, II; H-B. 507, 4, b, n. vidēri: depends on posset, to be supplied from posset. quid rei gererētur: what was going on, an indirect question depending on cōgnōsci. rei is gen. of the whole. ab eā parte: i.e. at the rear gate.

15. nostrī: i.e. those with Crassus in front of the camp. quod: a thing which, or as, referring to the fact in redintegrātis viribus.

18. per: over.

19. apertissimīs campīs: locative abl. without in, expressing the ground along which.

20-22. quae . . . convēnisse: infinitive clause, subject of cōnstābat. multā nocte: late at night.

Page 94. 3. Chapter 27. paucae ultimae nātiōnēs: for paucae, quae ultimae erant, nātiōnēs. tempore: abl. depending on cōnfisae, as in 81, 12. But cf. quibus, 92, 23, dat. of a person. cōnfisae: relying; for the perfect participle in a present sense see A. 491 (290, b); B. 336, 5; G. 282, n.; H. 640, 1; H-B. 601, 1.

THE MORINI AND MENAPII, 28-29.

6. CHAPTER 28. omni: all the remainder of. Morini Menapiique: (only) the Morini and Menapii.

7-8. essent, misissent: why subjv.? arbitrātus: thinking. See note on cōnfisae, 3, above. id bellum: equivalent to bellum cum eis.

9-10. longē aliā ratiōne ac: according to a plan far different from. For the force of ac following words of difference or dissimilarity, cf. longē aliam . . . atque, 81, 21.

13. eō: adverb.

15-16. neque . . . visus esset: without having seen.

19-20. longius: too far. locis: for the abl. see note on campis, 93, 19.

21. CHAPTER 29. deinceps: continuously, one after the other.

22. inermibus . . . militibus: abl. absolute, while the soldiers were unarmed.

Page 95. 1. conversam ad hostem: i.e. somewhat in the manner of an abatis. prō: to serve as.

3. cōnfectō: having been cleared. extrēma: the rear of.

4. tenērentur: the imperfect marks the imminence of the act, were about to be seized, were almost within our grasp. ipsi: (and) they.

6. continuātiōne: abl. of cause.

7. sub pellibus: i.e. in tents.

8. Itaque, etc.: comparison of these two chapters with Bk. IV, Chapter 38, shows that Caesar invaded only the country of the Morini in this campaign.

BOOK IV.

INTRODUCTION.

The Usipetes and Tencteri. — In the year 55 Caesar had again to check the danger to Gaul from German inroads. Two German tribes, the Usipetes and Tencteri, harassed by the more powerful Suebi, had crossed the Rhine in search of a home and had spent the preceding winter in the land of the Menapii. Upon Caesar's arrival at army headquarters, the newcomers were advancing farther into Gaul at the invitation of certain tribes, and were now in the country of the Eburones and Condrusi. Caesar hastened to intercept them. Learning of his approach, the Germans sent envoys with an offer of friendship and a request for an assignment of territory. They were warned to leave Gaul, but were told they might settle east of the Rhine in the land of the Ubii, who were now appealing to Caesar for aid against the Suebi. In the course of negotiations a treacherous attack on the Roman cavalry gave Caesar a pretext for a counter surprise, in which men, women, and children were massacred indiscriminately. The survivors fled across the Rhine. Caesar's dealings with these people met with severe censure in Rome, Cato declaring in the senate that Caesar ought to be delivered up to the Germans for his breach of faith in detaining their chiefs and for the ruthless massacre.

Campaign in Germany. — To enforce the lesson of Gaul for the Gauls, — and Romans, — and to strike terror into these dangerous foes, Caesar determined in turn to invade Germany. Germans should be made to understand that "the army of the Roman people had both the ability and the daring to cross the Rhine." The petition of the Ubii furnished the pretext. The passage of the river was made more impressive to German imagination by the construction of a bridge, the work of ten days. The Sugambri, whom Caesar wished to chastise for harboring the remnant of the Usipetes and Tencteri, withdrew before his advance into the solitude of their forests. As the Suebi adopted the same tactics, Caesar decided to proceed no farther, but recrossed the river and destroyed the bridge. A campaign of eighteen days on German soil was scarcely more than a demonstration in force. Conquest of Germany was beyond Caesar's resources. His wisdom was displayed in recognizing his limitations.

First Campaign in Britain. — An expedition to Britain next claimed Caesar's attention. As a reason therefor he alleges the assistance given his Gallic enemies by the Britons in previous campaigns. A spirit of adventure doubtless played no small part in his decision. Learning of his intentions, various British tribes sent envoys across the channel in token of submission. Obtaining what information he could from traders, Caesar assembled at the Portus Itius, Wissant or Boulogne, a fleet sufficient to transport two legions. Transports with cavalry were to sail from a neighboring port. The infantry transports set sail the night of August 26th, and anchored off the cliffs of Dover about ten o'clock the next morning. After waiting several hours in vain for the cavalry, the fleet proceeded up the coast to the low shore of Deal. In the face of stubborn resistance from the British cavalry and chariots the legionaries landed and put the enemy to flight. Envoys now came to sue for peace. Three days after the landing the cavalry transports approached the British coast, but were driven back by a storm. The same night storm and high tide did great damage to Caesar's fleet. Subsequently, while the repair of the shattered vessels was in progress, the Britons renewed hostilities in an attack on one legion, sent out to secure supplies. Timely arrival of reinforcements prevented a disaster. The Britons ventured some days later to assault the camp by the seashore, but being severely beaten, again sent envoys to offer their submission.

As the equinox was approaching, Caesar embarked his troops and returned to the continent. The expedition had served scarcely more than to discover a landing-place, to learn something of British tactics, and to stimulate a desire for further exploration.

The Morini and Menapii.—Two transports, unable to make the same harbors as the rest, were driven down the coast. The soldiers upon disembarking were attacked by the Morini, but after a brave resistance of several hours were rescued by cavalry reinforcements. A punitive expedition led by Labienus soon brought the Morini to terms. Before a similar expedition the Menapii retired to the protection of their dense forests.

The legions were quartered for the winter among the Belgae. In honor of the year's exploits the Roman senate voted a thanksgiving of twenty days. Upon his departure for Italy Caesar left orders for the construction of new vessels and the repair of the old, all with a view to another expedition to Britain in the following year.

BOOK IV.

THE USIPETES AND TENCTERI, 1-15.

Page 96. 1-2. CHAPTER 1. Et hieme: i.e. the winter of 56-55. qui: attracted to the gender of the predicate noun, annus; see A. 306 (199); B. 250, 3; G. 614, R. 3, b; H. 396; H-B. 326, 1. Cn. Pompēiō, M. Crassō cōsulibus: Pompey and Crassus entered upon their consulship Jan. 1, 55. See Introd. p. xvi.

4. nōn longē: probably in the vicinity of modern Cleve. It was not far, relatively speaking. marī: (that part of) the sea. quō: adverb.

7. Suēbōrum: cf. 31, 12 ff. The Suebi included a number of tribes, the most prominent being the Semnones, according to Tacitus. The same author attributes to the Semnones the centum pāgi into which Caesar represents all the Suebi as divided.

9. singula mīlia: a thousand each.

11. rūsus: again, of the repetition of the fact. in vicem: in their turn, of the change of persons.

13. ratio, ūsus: theory, practical experience, parts of one idea, the art of war; hence the singular verb, intermittitur. privātī . . . agrī nihil, etc.: in Bk. VI Caesar asserts this of the Germans generally.

15-16. multum, partem, multum: accusatives of degree. sunt: equivalent to versantur, engage.

17. quae rēs: subject of alit and efficit, 20-21.

18-20. quod . . . faciunt: the clause explains libertate vitae. officiō, disciplinā: in, or to, no duty, etc. Caesar employs the ablative or an infinitive to express the thing in which or to which with adsuēfaciō.

20-21. et . . . et: both . . . and. immānī corporum māgnitūdine: it was the "huge stature" of the Germans that caused the panic in Caesar's army when it was about to march against Ariovistus. See 33 ff. hominēs: predicate accusative; sc. eōs, renders them men, etc.

22. ut, etc.: a substantive clause of result in apposition with cōnsuētūdinem. Translate, they have accustomed themselves to wear . . . and to bathe. For the voice of lavārentur see A. 156, a (111, a); B. 256, 1; G. 218; H. 517; H-B. 288, 3. vestītūs: gen. of the whole with quicquam, no clothing but skins. Observe neque correlative with et.

Page 97. 1. habērent, lavārentur: for the tense see A. 485, a (287, a); B. 268, 1; G. 511, R. 3; H. 546; H-B. 481.

2. est: why not subjv. by attraction?

3-4. CHAPTER 2. Mercātōribus est aditus: traders are allowed access to them. eō: abl. of cause, explained by the clause of purpose, ut . . . habeant. cēperint: subjv. by attraction. quibus vēdant: (some one) to whom they can sell, potential subjv. The unexpressed antecedent of quibus is the object of habeant. quam quō: than because; for the mood of dēsiderent see A. 540, N. 3 (321, R.); G. 541, N. 2; H. 588, 2; H-B. 535, 2, b.

5. iūmentis: in the restricted sense of saddle-horses.

7. importātis nōn ūtuntur: do not import for use.

9. summī labōris: genitive of quality in the predicate, render capable of the greatest endurance. The ut clause is a substantive clause of result, object of efficiunt.

10. pedibus: on foot.

11. remanēre: for the construction with adsuēfaciō see note on officiō, 96, 18. vestigiō: locative abl. without a preposition.

15. Vinum, etc.: cf. what is said of the Nervii, 59, 16.

18. CHAPTER 3. Pūblicē: not publicly.

19. vacāre agrōs: subject of esse, laudem being a predicate accusative. In Bk. VI, Chapter 23, increased safety from attacks by other tribes is given as an additional reason for the custom described here.

21. finā ex parte: probably the east is meant. ā Suēbīs: from the country of the Suebi, to be taken with circiter . . . centum.

22. agrī . . . dīcuntur: note the personal construction.

23. fuit: was (formerly), used to be.

24. ut est captus Germānōrum: according to the German standard. quamquam sunt: for the mood see A. 527, d (313, f); B. 309, 2; G. 605; H. 586, I; H-B. 556.

27. ipsī: i.e. the Ubii. mōribus: for the case see note on officiō, 96, 18.

Page 98. 2. vectīgālēs: predicate accusative; also humiliōrēs and infirmiōrēs.

4. CHAPTER 4. causā: condition, or situation.

5. suprā: see 96, 2 ff.

6. ad extrēmum: at last, finally.

8. quās regiōnēs: (to) the districts which. ad: on.

11. trāns: across (from the standpoint of Gaul), i.e. east of the river.

12. trānsire: from crossing; for the construction with prohibeō see note on ingredi, 50, 5.

13. omnia: every (other) expedient. vī contendere: to force their way across.

16. trīduī: gen. of quality or measure. viam: for the acc. with prōgressi see A. 390 (238); B. 176, 4; G. 333, 2; H. 409; H-B. 396, 1.

17. equitātū: by the cavalry. The main body followed and crossed with the cavalry in the captured boats. cōfectō: limits itinere.

18. -que: and consequently.

21. Hīs, eōrum: the latter, their, both referring to the Menapii. priusquam . . . certior fieret: before that part . . . could be informed. For the mood cf. prius quam posset, 93, 12, and note.

24. partem: acc. of duration of time. cōpiis: stores, resources.

27. CHAPTER 5. veritus: fearing. For the present force of the perfect participle see references on cōnfisae, 94, 3.

Page 99. 1-2. nihil . . . existimāvit: thought he dared not rely upon them, i.e. he must go in person to meet the threatened danger from a German invasion. cōnsuetudinis: predicate genitive, lit. this belongs to Gallic custom; freely, the Gauls have the custom, explained by the ut clause, of compelling travelers to stop, etc.

8-9. quōrum eōs, etc.: which they are forced to repent of forthwith; for the cases with paenitet see A. 354, c (221, b); B. 209, 1; G. 377; H. 457; H-B. 352, 1.

10. plērīque: referring to viātōrēs and mercātōrēs. ad: to suit. ficta respondeant: invent replies.

12. CHAPTER 6. graviōri: too formidable, i.e. in case the Gauls welcomed the Germans and allied themselves with them against the Romans.

13. mātūrius: possibly in April. ad exercitum: the army had wintered among the Aulerci and Lexovii, 95, 9. Caesar had spent the winter in Cisalpine Gaul.

16. utī . . . discēderent: i.e. to penetrate farther into Gaul.

17. postulāssent: should demand, representing a future perf. indic. of direct discourse. fore parāta: for a future perf. indic. of direct discourse; it may be paraphrased in English, the Germans would find everything made ready by the Gauls. See A. 164, c, n. (147, c, 2); B. 270, 4; H. 619, 4.

22. permulsis et cōfirmātis: Caesar deals with the Gallic chiefs as if they feared the Germans.

23. cōstituit: here in the sense of announced his intention.

25. CHAPTER 7. ea loca: Caesar's route can only be conjectured. The campaign map is after Napoleon.

Page 100. 1. quibus: sc. locis. iter: acc. of extent of space.

3. neque priōrēs . . . Inferre: freely, would not take the initiative by making war on the Roman people.

4. recūsāre, quīn contendat: refuse to fight; for the quīn clause see A. 558 (319, d); B. 298; G. 555; H. 595, 2; H-B. 502, 3, b.

6. resistere, dēprecārī: offer resistance, resort to entreaties, both verbs used absolutely.

7. Haec tamen dīcere: nevertheless they had this much to say. A subject, sē, is understood with dīcere and the following infinitives.

8. eīs: i.e. the Romans.

9. attribuant, patiantur: let them, etc. What are the equivalents in direct discourse? eōs: sc. agrōs. The subject of tenēre is readily supplied from the context.

10. quibus: dat. after parēs.

11-13. reliquum, nēminem: both words stand in emphatic positions. What mood, or moods, of direct discourse, are represented by possint, 11, and possint, 13?

14. CHAPTER 8. quae visum est: what seemed appropriate (to reply).

16-17. vērūm: (equivalent to iūstum) fair, a true principle of action. Understand eōs as antecedent of quī and subject of occupāre. aliēnōs: sc. finēs.

19. licēre: sc. eīs, they might.

24. CHAPTER 9. post diem tertium: the third day after, i.e. in two days. In such phrases Latin reckons in the day from which the period begins.

25. sē: acc. after propius, A. 432, a (261, a); B. 141, 3; G. 359, n. 1; H. 420, 5; H-B. 380, b.

Page 101. 5. CHAPTER 10. monte Vosegō: (that part of) the Vosges. The Meuse rises in the plateau of Langres, Caesar giving Vosegus a greater extent than is now understood by Vosges.

6. parte: arm, branch.

8. inde: i.e. from the confluence of the Waal and the Meuse. In Caesar's time the junction was probably near Fort St. André.

10. Nantuātium: there seems to be no very satisfactory way of reconciling the location of these people as given here and in 75, 2, where they are placed south of Lake Geneva.

11. citātus: adjective for adverb.

13. multis ingentibusque: many large, A. 323, d (208, 3); B. 241, 3.

14. ex quibus sunt, qui: to whom belong those who.

16. capitibus: mouths. The word usually means source, in reference to a river.

18. CHAPTER 11. ut erat cōstitutum: see 100, 24.

19. congressi: having met (him).

21. praemitteret: used absolutely, send ahead, or send orders ahead.

23. mittendī: depending on potestatem. Observe that the gerund has a direct object, lēgātōs. Give the gerundive construction. For the occasion of the embassy see 100, 19 ff.

24. iūre iūrando fidem: an oath-bound pledge. fēcisset: would give, represents what mood and tense of direct discourse? The verb agrees in number with the nearer subject, senātus.

Page 102. 2. daret: let him grant. Give the equivalent in direct discourse. The time asked for seems scant for a trip to and from the country of the Ubii, and constitutes an argument against placing the final battle so far north.

3. eōdem illō pertinere: had the same purpose in view, explained by ut . . . reverterentur.

4. equitēs: antecedent of qui. abessent: subjv. by attraction. For the fact see 101, 1-3.

6. aquātiōnis: i.e. at some stream, possibly the Niers.

9. mittit: an object is to be supplied, messengers. nūntiārent: give orders. nē: with lacesserent only; ut is to be supplied with sustinērent.

10. et: but. sustinērent: hold out, stand on the defensive, used absolutely. exercitū: used here of the infantry only.

11. accessisset: for a fut. perf. indic. of direct discourse.
 13-14. CHAPTER 12. cum: although. amplius: adverb, with no influence on the case of equitēs.
 17. indūtīs: dat. of purpose.
 18. hīs: i.e. the Roman cavalry.
 23. vēnissent: subjv. by attraction, representing a perf. indic.; see A. 551, a (327); B. 291, 2; G. 576; H. 605, I; H-B. 550, b.
 25. Pisō: an Aquitanian who had probably received a Roman name along with Roman citizenship. See note on civitate, 42, 14.
 26. genere: for the abl. with nātus see A. 403, a (244, a); B. 215; G. 395; H. 469, 2; H-B. 413.
 27. amicus: see note on amicus, 3, 13.

Page 103. 2. quoad: as long as.

4. id: object of animadvertisset. excesserat: why not subjv. by attraction?

5. incitātō equō: putting spurs to his horse.

7-8. CHAPTER 13. neque iam: no longer. ab: from.

Page 104. 2-3. expectāre: subject of esse, 3. augērentur: should be increased. The subjv. would be retained in direct discourse, A. 553 (328, 1); B. 293, III, 2; G. 572; H. 603, II, 2; H-B. 507, 5. equitātusque reverterētur: -que introduces an explanation, by the return of the cavalry. summae dēmentiae esse: would be (an act) of the utmost folly.

4. cōgnitā: knowing (as he did).

6. sentiēbat: felt instinctively, guessed.

8-9. cōnsiliō: his plan, explained by the appositive clause, nē . . . praetermitteret, not to let pass. pūgnae: genitive.

10. quod: that, etc., in apposition with rēs.

11. eādem . . . ūsī: with the same pretense and perfidy.

12. adhibitīs: including.

13. suf: A. 504, c (298, a); B. 339, 5; G. 428, R. 1; H. 626, 3; H-B. 614.

14-16. quod . . . commississent: the reason given by the Germans, therefore the subjv. contrā atque: in violation of what had been agreed upon, etc. What is the meaning of aliter ac, idem atque, pār atque? ut, sī quid possent, . . . impetrārent: in order to gain by trickery anything they could in the matter of a truce. Quōs . . . oblātōs gāvīsus: glad that they had been put in his power.

20. CHAPTER 14. Acīō: instead of the usual marching column, agmen. See Introd. 31. mīlium: sc. passuum.

21-22. prius . . . quam . . . possent: explain the mood.

23. et . . . et: both . . . and. celeritāte, discessū: ap-positives explaining rēbus.

24-25. suōrum: i.e. the chiefs and others, 12, above. habendī, capiendī: gen. of gerundive and gerund depending on spatiō. perturbantur: were thrown into confusion, followed by the indirect question, cōpiāsne . . . praestāret, whether it would be better to lead, etc.

Page 105. 7. quōs: referring to multitūdō, but made masculine plural by construction according to sense.

9. CHAPTER 15. clāmōre: i.e. of the women and children.

12. Rhēnī: the Waal is meant, Caesar regarding it as part of the Rhine. But because of the considerable distance from the Ubii (see note, 102, 2), and the necessity of long marches and countermarches in Caesar's subsequent movements, it has been urged that Mosellae be substituted for Mosae. The manuscripts, however, all have the latter reading.

15. ad ūnum omnēs: all to a man.

16. ex: after, implying although they had had reason to fear. cum: since.

18. eīs: see 104, 17.

20. veritī: fearing.

21. libertātem: seems to mean permission (to do so). For the feeling in Rome relative to Caesar's conduct in this whole affair see the Introduction to Bk. IV.

CAMPAIGN IN GERMANY, 16-19.

Page 106. 1. CHAPTER 16. iūstissima: strongest, most cogent. quod: that.

2-3. suis quoque rebus timere: to fear for their own land also. cum intellegerent: when they should understand, by making them understand; imperfect subjv. for a fut. indic. in direct discourse.

5. Accessit etiam, quod: there was the additional fact, that.

6-7. supra: see 101, 1-3. commemoravi: the first person, of Caesar the author. proeliō: dative. Why?

10. quōs: the Sugambri.

11. dēderent: that they surrender, for the subjv. without ut see A. 565, a (331, f, r.); B. 295, 1, 8; G. 546, r. 2; H. 565, 4; H-B. 502, 3, a.

13. aequum: in the predicate, if he thought it unfair for the Germans to cross over into Gaul.

14. sui . . . imperi aut potestatis: predicate genitives of possession; lit. why should he claim that anything beyond the Rhine belonged to his dominion and authority.

18-20. quod . . . premerentur: whose reason, and why subjv.? facere: from doing, depending on prohiberetur. occupatōnibus rei publicae: by affairs of state, by official duties. exercitum, Rhenum: for the two accusatives see A. 395 (239, 2, b); B. 179, 1; G. 331, r. 1; H. 413; H-B. 386. modo transportaret: let him but transport.

21. reliqui temporis: for the future.

23. sius: his. Ariovistō, etc.: abl. absolute, expressing cause.

24. ad: among.

29. CHAPTER 17. transire: subject of esse, 107, 1, 2.

Page 107. 1. neque . . . tutum: i.e. to depend upon boats might endanger his communications.

2. suae dignitatis: predicate genitive, in accord with his own dignity.

3. faciendī: in constructing. The site of the bridge cannot be fixed definitely. It may have been at Bonn, as the campaign map indicates, or farther up the river, nearer Coblenz.

7. Tigna: object of iungēbat. bīna: in pairs gives the force of the distributive.

8. paulum: with praeacūta, i.e. the piles were given blunt points to facilitate driving. ab imō: at the lower end. dīmēnsa ad: their length proportioned to the depth of the river; for the participle see A. 190, b (135, b); B. 112, b; G. 167, n. 2; H. 222, 2; H-B. 291, d.

9. intervallō pedum duōrum: refers to the space between the two tigna of each pair. inter sē iungēbat: he fastened together.

10. māchinātiōnibus: engines, with some device for holding a pair of tigna at the proper angle while being rammed down by the driver. dēfixerat: the pluperfect indic. of repeated instances. immissa: render as a coördinate verb, had let down.

11. publicae modō: in the manner of an (ordinary) pile.

12. secundum nāturam flūminis: down stream.

13. duo: sc. tigna. ad eundem modum: in the same manner, as described above.

14. quadrāgēnum: forty feet in each case, measured perhaps at the surface of the water. ab inferiōre parte: farther down (stream).

16-18. trabibus immissis: abl. absolute. quantum: a relative (acc. of degree) referring to the noun idea in bipedālibus. fībulis: abl. of means or abl. absolute. Translate freely, the opposite pairs of piles were (connected and at the same time) held apart by letting in from above a cross-timber two feet thick, which was the distance between the piles (of each pair), with two braces at each of its ends. The nature of the fibulae is much disputed.

19. quibus: the opposite pairs of piles in each case. revinctis: braced.

20. ea rērum nātūra: lit. such the nature of things; in translation the phrase may be included in the result clause following, that from the nature of the case, etc.

21. quō māior, etc.: the more violently the water dashed against them. inligāta: sc. figna.

22. Haec: i.e. the cross-timbers, or perhaps used loosely of the whole structure so far described. dōrōctā māteriā iniectā: with timbers laid lengthwise (of the bridge).

24. et: correlative with et, 26. ad inferiōrem partem flūminis: i.e. on the lower or down-stream side of the bridge.

25-26. quae . . . exciperent: a relative clause of purpose, which . . . were to break. prō ariete: as buttresses. aliae: sc. agēbantur. Though Caesar does not say so, these piles above the bridge were probably driven perpendicularly.

28. essent immissae: should be sent down, for a fut. perf. indic. in a direct statement. See note on si vellet, 43, 8.

29. eārum rērum: i.e. the logs and boats. neu: and that not, B. 282, 1, e; G. 543, 4; H. 568, 6; H-B. 464, 1.

Page 108. 1. CHAPTER 18. Diēbus decem, quibus: within ten days from the time when. Cf. paucis diēbus, quibus, 91, 12. coepta erat: had begun; for the passive of this verb see A. 205, a (143, a); B. 133, 1; G. 423, N. 3; H. 299, 1; H-B. 199, 2.

2. ad utramque partem: at each end.

5. quibus . . . petentibus: to their petition for peace and friendship.

8. hortantibus eis: abl. absolute, under the urging of those, i.e. the cavalry detachment, 106, 5.

10. in: in, lit. into, with the acc. because of the motion implied in abdiderant. Cf. 11, 3.

15. CHAPTER 19. premerentur: should be harassed, for a fut. indic. in the direct promise.

18. utī . . . dēmigrārent, etc.: dependent on the idea of command in nūntiōs, messengers (with orders) that the people should abandon, etc.

21. medium: in the predicate; freely, the place chosen was about the center, etc.

23. dēcertāre: to fight a decisive battle.

24. rēbus: purposes, explained by the purpose clauses, ut . . . iniceret, etc., namely, to inspire the Germans with fear, etc.
rērum: omit in translation.

28. ad: with respect to, from the standpoint of. prōfectum: observe that ō is long.

FIRST CAMPAIGN IN BRITAIN, 20-36.

4. bellis: abl. of time when, A. 423, d (256); B. 230; G. 394, R.; H. 486, 1; H-B. 439, 3.

5. auxilia: the summoning of British contingents is mentioned specifically only in Bk. III, p. 81, 29. si: even if.

7-8. si modo adisset: if he should merely visit, or merely to visit; the conditional clauses are in thought the subjects of fore.
aditūs: landing-places.

10. illō: adverb.

12. Galliās: plural with reference to the divisions of the country. vocātis: although he summoned.

13. quanta esset, etc.: indirect questions depending on reperire, 17.

15-16. quibus institūtis ūterentur: what sort of institutions they lived under. māiōrem: unusually large.

18. CHAPTER 21. priusquam periculum faceret: before he should make trial, before he should venture on the enterprise; for the subjv. see A. 551, b (327); B. 292, 1, a; G. 577; H. 605, II; H-B. 507, 4, a.

20. Huic mandat, ut: he commissions him to, etc.

22. inde: i.e. from the country of the Morini.

24. quam, classem: for eam classem, quam. See 80, 24 ff.

Page 110. 3. quī polliceantur: to promise. dare, obtemperāre: objects of polliceantur, A. 580, c (330, f, n.); B. 328, 1; G. 531, n. 4; H. 619, 1; H-B. 593, a.

5. pollicitus: used absolutely, after making promises.

7. Atrebātibus superātis: i.e. in the battle with the Nervii; see 65, 3 ff. The appointment of Commius as king has not been mentioned before.

9. in his regiōnibus: i.e. in that part of Gaul where the Atrebates were situated. māgnī habēbātur: was counted great, or valued highly; for the genitive see A. 417 (252, a); B. 203, 3; G. 380; H. 448, 1; H-B. 356, 1.

10. adeat: to visit; for the subjunctive without ut see references on dēderent, 106, 11. quās possit cīvitatēs: what states he can; the subjv. is due to attraction.

11. fidem sequantur: see vocabulary, fidēs.

13-14. eī: indefinite, a man, one. facultātis: gen. of the whole after quantum; translate, so far as opportunity could be afforded one who, etc. quī . . . nōn audēret: a clause of characteristic.

15. quae . . . perspexisset: an indirect question.

17. CHAPTER 22. Dum . . . morātur: Caesar probably reached the port of embarkation in the latter part of July.

19. superiōris temporis: in time past, referring to the year before. See Bk. III, Chapters 28-29. cōnsiliō: policy, conduct.

20. hominēs barbarī et . . . imperītī: being a barbarous people and unacquainted with our policy. cōnsuetudinīs: i.e. the policy of sparing and protecting those who voluntarily submitted to Roman authority. For the gen. with imperītī see A. 349, a (218, a); B. 204, 1; G. 374; H. 451, 1; H-B. 354.

21-22. sē . . . factūrōs (esse): contrast the simple present infinitive dependent on polliceor, 3, above. ea, quae imperāset: his bidding. The pluperfect subjv. represents a future perf. indic. of direct discourse.

25-26. hās . . . occupātiōnēs: attention to such unimportant matters as this, lit. these employments in unimportant matters.

Britanniae antepōnendās : should be given preference over (the expedition to) Britain.

27. eis imperat : levies upon them, demands of them.

Page 111. 1. quot : relative, a number which.

2. duās : the 7th and 10th. quod : acc. with dependent gen. of the whole, nāvium, all the war galleys he had in addition.

4. Hūc accēdēbant : there were besides.

5. eō locō : though Caesar does not give definite information on the point, the harbor from which he sailed on this first expedition was in all probability the Portus Itius from which the second expedition started, as related in Bk. V. Portus Itius is to be identified with Wissant or Boulogne, more probably the former. The harbor eight miles distant will be Ambleteuse for Boulogne, or Sangatte for Wissant. ā millibus passuum octo : eight miles distant. tenēbantur : were held, connoting prevented and so followed by quōminus . . . possent, from being able, A. 558, b (319, c); B. 295, 3; G. 549; H. 568, 8; H-B. 502, 3, b.

10-11. dūcendum : to lead, lit. to be led; for the gerundive with verbs like cūrō, dō, etc. see A. 500, 4 (294, d); B. 337, 8, b, 2; G. 430; H. 622; H-B. 612, III. eō . . . quod : such . . . as.

14. CHAPTER 23. tertiā vigiliā : the third watch began at midnight. From data in these chapters and in Bk. V, and with the aid of astronomical calculations, the night of August 26-27 has been fixed upon as the date.

16. esset administrātum : used absolutely and impersonally, the order (to embark) having been acted on somewhat slowly by them. In consequence the cavalry transports lost the advantage of favoring winds and did not reach the coast of Britain till three days later.

17. hōrā quārtā : shortly before 10 A.M. See note on hōrā quārtā, 86, 8.

18. ibi : Caesar's landing-place has been the subject of endless discussion, based chiefly on the account of his passage in the second expedition. The choice seems to lie most likely between the level shore near Deal and that near Romney Marsh. If the former, as the campaign map assumes, then the cliffs mentioned here are the cliffs of Dover.

19. haec: such.

23. dum . . . convenirent: for the rest of the ships to arrive; for the subjv. with dum see A. 553 (328, 1); B. 293, III, 2; G. 572; H. 603, II, 2; H-B. 507, 5. hōram nōnam: about 3.30 P.M.

27. ut, ut: as, as. maritimae rēs: naval maneuvers.

28-29. postularent: subjv. by attraction. ut quae . . . habērent: lit. as (things) which involved, better since they involved, involving as they did; quae refers to rēs. For the use of ut and for the mood see A. 535, e, n. 1 (320, e, n. 1); B. 283, 3, a; G. 633; H. 592, 1; H-B. 523, b. omnēs rēs . . . administrārentur: that all orders be executed by them; the subjv. depends upon monuit without ut, which would have been awkward in view of the three preceding. Cf. imperat, adeat, 110, 10.

Page 112. 1. aestum: tidal current. Consideration of the tidal currents in the Straits of Dover is one of the most important items in the attempt to determine Caesar's landing-place.

3-4. apertō . . . litore: where the shore was open and level; for the abl. see A. 429 (258, f); B. 228, b; G. 385, n. 1; H. 485, 2; H-B. 436.

6. CHAPTER 24. quō . . . genere: a class of troops which. The reference may be not merely to the charioteers, but to the mixture of cavalry and charioteers. See Chapter 33.

8. ēgredi: from landing.

9. nisi: except. in altō: in deep water, and consequently quite a distance from the shore.

10-11. militibus: dat. of agent with dēsiliendum, etc., the soldiers had to leap. pressis: weighed down (as they were).

13. cum illi: while they, the Britons.

Page 113. 1. insuēfactōs: trained to such maneuvers.

2. generis: for case after imperitū see note on cōsuētūdinis, 110, 20.

3. quō: agrees in gender with the nearer antecedent. utī: exhibit.

6-7. CHAPTER 25. mōtus ad ūsum expeditior: i.e. were more easily maneuvered, because propelled by oars.

8. latus apertum: the unprotected flank, i.e. the right.

9. inde: for ex eō locō. tormentis: see Introd. 38.

11. quae res: this maneuver.

13. inūsitatō genere tormentōrum: by the artillery, a kind of arms unfamiliar to them.

18-20. qui aquilam ferēbat: equivalent to aquilifer. obtestātus deōs, ut . . . ēveniret: with a prayer to the gods that his act might result, etc. For the substantive clause see A. 563 (331); B. 296, 1; G. 546; H. 565; H-B. 530, 2.

22. certē: at least, or for my own part.

24. praestiterō: shall have done. cum: the conjunction, when.

27-28. cohortātī inter sē, nē . . . admitterētur: urging one another not to permit. tantum dēdecus: see Introd. 28.

Page 114. 1. ex proximīs nāvibus: (the men) on the nearest ships.

4. CHAPTER 26. utrisque: both sides. For the plural of uterque cf. utraque, 107, 16, and note on his utrisque, 60, 2.

5. firmiter: for the form of the adverb see A. 214, c (148, c); B. 77, 4; G. 92, 2; H. 309; H-B. 126, 2. With insistere, gain a firm footing.

6. alius aliā ex nāvī: one from one ship, another from another, or indiscriminately from the different ships.

7. sē adgregābat: sc. a dative, his or eis. Compare the battle with the Nervii, 64, 9.

9. ubi: whenever, as often as, followed by the pluperfect indic. of repeated action. singulārēs: singly, apart from their comrades. adoriēbantur: also of repeated action, would attack.

10-11. plūrēs: in large numbers. paucōs: small detachments. ab latere apertō: on our unprotected flank. finiversōs: our line as a whole.

15. quōs: whomever, whenever any.

16. simul: occasionally, as here, for simul atque, as soon as.

18. neque potuerunt: but they were unable.

20. Hōc ūnum . . . dēfuit: lit. this one thing failed Caesar with respect to his previous good fortune, better with this one exception Caesar's good fortune attended him as hitherto. For the Roman conception of fortune see note on fēlicitātem, 35, 24.

24. CHAPTER 27. quaeque: for et ea quae.

26. suprā: see 110, 6. dēmōnstrāveram: for the tense cf. dixerāmus, 48, 4, and note.

2. orātōris modō: in the capacity of envoy.

3. tum: but now.

4. ēius rei: this act, i.e. their treatment of Commius.

5-6. ut Ignōscerētur: impersonal passive, that pardon be granted, that they be pardoned.

7-9. quod . . . intulissent: why subjv.? cum: although. lēgātis missis: for the fact see 110, 2. Ignōscere: sē as subject is understood from the context.

11. arcessitam: make coördinate with datūrōs, would summon and give.

15-16. CHAPTER 28. post diem quārtum, etc.: three days after he arrived, lit. the fourth day after. Cf. post diem tertium, in two days, 100, 24, and note.

17-18. suprā: see 111, 4 and 15. superiōre portū: identical with the ulterior portus of 111, 15.

23. occāsum: for the case see note on sē, 100, 15.

24-26. tamen: i.e. in spite of the storm, applies to ancorīs iactis only. Translate freely, and though they did cast anchor in spite of the storm, yet as they began to fill. adversā: see Vocabulary. in altum prōvectae: having put to sea.

Page 116. 1. CHAPTER 29. Eādem nocte: the night of August 30–31. quī diēs: the day which.

2. aestūs māximōs: spring tides at Dover are said to rise nineteen feet.

3. id: i.e. the fact of such high tides. The tides of the Mediterranean are but slight.

4. exercitum trāsportandum cūrāverat: had had his army transported. For the gerundive with cūrō see references on dūcendum, 111, 10.

5. subdūxerat: see Introd. 38.

7–8. administrandī: of managing them, on the part of the sailors. auxiliandī: of rendering assistance, on the part of the troops ashore.

10–11. āmissis: by the loss of. id quod . . . accidere: as was inevitable, lit. a thing, the happening of which was inevitable. quod is accusative, subject of accidere, while the infinitive clause as a whole is subject of necesse erat.

13. possent: sc. cōpiae or militēs as subject.

14–15. erant: Why not subjv., like possent, 13? omnibus cōstābat: it was clear to all, it was generally assumed. hiemārī oportēre: that they should winter. in hiemem: for, or against, the winter.

17. CHAPTER 30. principēs: subject of dūxērunt, 23.

19–20. Rōmānīs deesse: that the Romans lacked.

21. hōc etiam angustiora: so much the smaller.

23. optimum . . . dūxērunt: concluded the best thing to do was to renew hostilities, etc. For the supine (factū) see A. 510 (303); B. 340, 2; G. 436, N. 1; H. 635; H-B. 619, 1.

24. rem: the struggle, the war.

25. his superātis: if these, etc.

27. rūrsus: in turn, in contrast to their recent peaceful attitude.

Page 117. 1. castris: i.e. the Roman camp, which they had visited freely since peace had been made. ex agris dēdūcere: equivalent to muster their forces. See 115, 12–14.

4. CHAPTER 31. ſventū nāvium: what had happened to the ships, the disaster to the ships. ex eō quod: from the fact that.

5. dare: with intermiserant, had ceased to give. fore id, quod accidit: that things would turn out as they actually did.

8. nāvēs: antecedent incorporated in the relative clause. Translate as if eārum nāvium quae. aere: bronze, for the rostra and for spikes.

11. administrārētur: the work was carried on.

12. reliquis ut . . . posset, effēcit: he made the rest fairly seaworthy, lit. brought about that sailing could be done well enough with the rest.

13. CHAPTER 32. geruntur: explain the mood and tense. ex cōsuētūdine: to be taken closely with ūnā, one legion as usual. frūmentātum: supine, expressing purpose.

BOOK V.

INTRODUCTION.

Second Campaign in Britain.—During the winter of 55–54 the assizes in Cisalpine Gaul occupied Caesar's time as usual. In the spring he visited Illyricum, his least important province, and exacted reparation from a neighboring tribe for depredations on the province. Upon returning to northern Gaul he found that a large fleet of vessels, which he had ordered to be constructed after a certain design, was all but ready to launch. The Portus Itius was named as the place of embarkation. Before starting for Britain it was necessary to make sure of the allegiance of the Gallic Treveri by supporting the ambitions of a friendly chieftain, Cingetorix, in preference to his rival Indutiomarus. At the port of departure chiefs from various Gallic tribes had assembled, it being Caesar's intention to take most of them with him as hostages. Further delay was occasioned by the attempt of Dumnorix, the Haeduan, to escape during the process of embarkation. Pursued and overtaken by Caesar's cavalry, Dumnorix offered resistance and was killed in consequence, in pursuance of Caesar's orders.

Leaving Labienus on the continent in charge of three legions and two thousand cavalry, Caesar set sail in the latter part of July with the same number of cavalry and five legions. The landing in Britain was effected this time without opposition, the place being the same as the year before. A camp site chosen, Caesar marched against the Britons, some twelve miles distant, routed them, and captured their rude woodland stronghold. A message soon came announcing that the fleet had been badly damaged by a storm. Ten days were spent in beaching the ships for repairs and in the construction of an extensive naval camp. The British forces facing the Roman army had meanwhile greatly increased and were now united under the command of one chieftain, Cassivellaunus. The Roman forces were at first baffled by the character of the British attack with chariots. By keeping cavalry and infantry close together they were finally able to repulse the Britons, who then retired north of the Thames. Dismissing the greater part of his forces, Cassivellaunus thereafter employed his chariots alone, and for the purpose of harassing the Roman advance by sudden sallies.

Certain tribes now submitted to Caesar, notably the Trinovantes, at whose request Caesar restored the young prince Mandubracius to the throne his father had occupied before him. The capture of Cassivellaunus's fortified town soon followed. Meanwhile an attack on the Roman camp at the seaside, made by the Kentish tribes, at Cassivellaunus's bidding, had failed. The British chief now came to terms. It was clear enough to Caesar that nothing substantial was to be gained by prolonging the campaign. He therefore led his army back to the coast and returned to the continent. The two campaigns in Britain were really barren of any practical results. As Tacitus puts it, Caesar had merely "pointed the attention of posterity to Britain, without handing down the country as a possession."

Winter Quarters. Defeat of Sabinus and Cotta. — The legions were now distributed in winter quarters at various points in northern Gaul, in an area covered by a circle with a radius of one hundred miles, Caesar remaining until the distribution should be effected. Two lieutenants, Sabinus and Cotta, were placed in charge of one legion and five cohorts in the country of the Eburones. The Gauls, instigated by Indutiomarus of the Treveri, soon rose in revolt. Repulsed in a sudden attack on the camp, they asked for, and were granted, an interview. The Gallic leader Ambiorix, though attempting to exculpate himself, craftily represented the attack on the camp as part of a general plan, according to which all the winter camps were to be assaulted in one day. Declaring himself under obligations to Caesar for past favors, he urged Sabinus and Cotta to withdraw their cohorts and join one of the nearest camps, promising them safe passage through his country. A hot dispute arose among the officers as to the acceptance of the Gallic chieftain's advice, Sabinus favoring and Cotta opposing. It was finally decided to abandon their position. At daybreak the column started in a long line, unprepared for danger. In a valley about two miles from camp they found themselves caught in a carefully planned ambushade. Before night nearly all the men had fallen either on the field or in the camp, where some of them made their final stand. Sabinus himself was treacherously slain during a parley with Ambiorix. Cotta fell while cheering his men on to the fight. A few stragglers made their way to Labienus and reported the disaster.

Siege of Cicero's Camp. — Elated with victory, Ambiorix proceeded to the camp of Quintus Cicero, spreading the news of his victory and summoning the neighboring tribes to arms. The first attack was repulsed with difficulty. During the following night the Romans began strengthening the camp fortifications with towers. Day and night the work continued, the Gauls attacking by day. They at last asked for a parley, and endeavored to entice Cicero into the same fatal blunder made by Sabinus and Cotta. Cicero refused to accept terms from an armed enemy. The siege became more desperate, the Gauls adopting Roman devices for attack, towers, sappers' huts, etc. In spite of wounds and fatigue the legionaries held out, hoping for aid from some quarter. At length, after many vain attempts, Cicero succeeded in getting a message to Caesar, who had not yet left for Italy and was at Samarobriva. Caesar was soon on his way with one legion, and was joined on the march by another. Upon learning of his approach the Gauls raised the siege and hastened to intercept him. Warned by Cicero, Caesar succeeded in luring the enemy to attack him in camp, whereupon his army made a sortie and repulsed them. Caesar soon joined Cicero, and bestowed merited praise on commander and men for their gallant defense. Caesar himself decided not to proceed to Italy, but to spend the winter in headquarters at Samarobriva.

Revolt of the Senones and Treveri.—The ensuing months of this winter were filled with rumors of plots forming among the Gauls, inspired by the annihilation of Sabinus and Cotta's cohorts. With the exception of the Haedui and Remi, almost every Gallic tribe was suspected of disaffection. The Senones in particular expelled the king whom Caesar had placed over them, their senate refusing to obey Caesar's summons to appear before him. Indutiomarus at the head of his followers among the Treveri was about to attack Labienus, when deterred by Caesar's arrival in Cicero's camp. Later, after gathering a considerable force of malcontents and adventurers, he appeared before Labienus's camp. Labienus, as Caesar had recently done, by creating an impression of fear, gained a favorable opportunity for a sortie. The cavalry was ordered to seek out and kill Indutiomarus at all hazards. His death brought about a quieter condition in Gallic affairs.

COINS OF CAESAR.

BOOK V.

SECOND CAMPAIGN IN BRITAIN, 1-23.

Page 122. 1. CHAPTER 1. L. Domitiō, Ap. Claudiō: consuls, 54 B.C. The official year began January 1st, which corresponded to December 12th, 55 B.C., of the Julian calendar. Caesar seems to have remained with his army in Gaul in the autumn of 55 until some time after the new consuls took office.

3-5. utī . . . aedificandās . . . cūrent: to have as many ships as possible built in the winter and to have the old ones repaired. For the gerundive with cūrō cf. 116, 4.

5. modum: size.

6. subductiōnis: see Introd. 38. humiliōrēs, etc.: the new vessels were to have comparatively low sides, broad beam, and flat bottoms.

7. quibus: for cae quibus. nostrō marī: the Mediterranean.

8. id: felt perhaps as the object of a verb to be supplied, facit; translate, and the more so. commūtātiōnēs: the choppy seas of the channel are due rather to the narrowness and shallowness, together with the conflict of winds and currents.

9. ad, etc.: asyndeton.

10. ac: and especially.

11. lātiōrēs: predicate accusative; sc. eās facit. reliquis maribus: i.e. the various parts of the Mediterranean, to which special names were given. Hās . . . fierī: an infinitive clause is occasionally found with imperō. What is the usual construction? actuāriās: see Introd. 41.

13. Ea, quae sunt ūsuī: i.e. metals, iron and copper; a kind of broom used in making ropes for rigging was also found in Spain.

16. Pirūstīs: a tribe of which little is known. In 167 they had taken sides with the Romans against the Illyrian king, Gentius.

18. mīlitēs; i.e. auxiliary troops.

20. pūblicō cōnsiliō: with the sanction of the state.

Page 123. 8. CHAPTER 2. cum vēnisset: about June 1st. circumitīs: having gone the round of, on a tour of inspection.

9. in: in, notwithstanding.

10. cūius: instead of quod, attracted to the case of the antecedent, generis.

11-12. neque multum, etc.: and that it was not far from possible to launch them in a few days. For the quin clause cf. 87, 27, and note.

14. portum Itium: see note on eū locō, 111, 5.

16. mīlium: gen. of quality or measure, limiting trāiectum.

17. huic rei: for this purpose, i.e. to protect the fleet from attack as it assembled at the Portus Itius. mīlitum: gen. of the whole after quod, what seemed an adequate force.

20. concilia: beginning with this year, 54, Caesar seems to have attempted to hold regular assemblies of the Gauls, one in the spring and one in the autumn of each year. Among other things the quotas of auxiliaries were fixed for the various tribes, also the amount of provisions they were to furnish for the legions in winter quarters.

22. CHAPTER 3. equitātū valet: see 66, 10.

24. suprā: see 82, 14.

25. Indūtiomārus: father-in-law of Cingetorix. See 159, 10-11.

2. cōgnitum est: impersonal; translate, as soon as he learned.

3. officiō: see Vocabulary.

6. cōgere: dependent, with parāre, on instituit.

7. in armīs esse: equivalent to arma ferre.

13. rēbus: interests. petere: used absolutely, to make petitions, to solicit his favor.

14. civitatī: in contrast to privātis rēbus. Fear of Indutiomarus prevented them from consulting the interests of the state as a whole. possent: subjv. in a reported reason. veritus: limits Indutiomārus, to be supplied.

16. idcirco: with this purpose in view, explained by the clause of purpose, quō . . . contineret.

17. nē: for fear that, or in order to prevent.

18. omnis nōbilitātis discessū: equivalent to a conditional clause, if all the nobility departed.

19. civitātem in suā potestāte esse: he had the state under control.

22. CHAPTER 4. quae rēs: what consideration, i.e. the defection of the chiefs, 11, above.

23. institūtō: already formed, original.

26. in eis: among them.

28. ēvocāverat: sc. Caesar as subject.

Page 125. 1. principibus: i.e. the chiefs who had hitherto favored Indutiomarus.

3. quod: a thing which, referring to the fact related in hōs . . . conciliāvit. cum: correlative with tum, not only . . . but also.

4. māgnī interesse: it was of great importance. The genitive is one of indefinite value expressing the "degree of concern or interest." The subject of interesse is the infinitive clause, ēius auctōritātem . . . valēre. ēius: of one.

6. factum: substantive, this (act), explained by suam grātiam . . . minui, the impairment of his influence among his people.

7. quī: equivalent to cum is, inasmuch as he, or although he.

8. hōc dolore: equivalent to hūius rei dolore, through resentment at this.

11. CHAPTER 5. pervenit: probably late in June. nāvēs, etc.: these vessels were doubtless brought down the Marne and Seine. According to Strabo, Caesar's naval arsenal was at the mouth of the Seine, to which eodem, 13, naturally refers.

18. obsidum locō: as hostages.

19. cū ipse abesset: when he himself should be away.

21. CHAPTER 6. cēteris: sc. principibus.

22. ante: see 3, 15, and 15, 12 ff.

23-24. cupidum: predicate accusative of an adjective expressing a quality, along with two predicate genitives of quality. māgnī animī: of high spirit, ambitious.

25. Accēdēbat hūc, quod: there was the additional reason, that.

26. sibi . . . rēgnū dēferri: he had an offer of kingship in his state from Caesar. Compare the case of Commius and the Atrebates, 110, 7. But Dumnorix had doubtless invented the story about himself in order to alienate the Haedui from Caesar.

3. hospitibus: i.e. among the Haedui.

6. nāvigandī: objective genitive depending on insuētus, unused to sailing.

7-8. timēret, diceret: for the subjv. see A. 540, 2, N. 2 (321, 2, N. 2); B. 286, 1, a; G. 541, N. 3; H. 588, II, 1; H-B. 535, 2, a, N. 3. religiōnibus: religious scruples or motives, perhaps referring to omens warning him not to go, or to vows, the performance of which would keep him at home.

11-12. territāre: historical infinitive. ferī, ut . . . spoliārētur: did it happen that Gaul was being despoiled.

13-14. ut . . . trāductōs necāret: to take over and put to death, a substantive clause explaining id. fīdem interpōnere: pledged his word; the infinitive again is historical.

15. iūs iūrāndum: as an oath, in predicate agreement with the clause, ut . . . administrārent, which is the object of poscere. quod: for id quod.

18-19. CHAPTER 7. tantum dignitātis: a place of so much importance. As the Haedui had been friendly so long, it would be a great blow to Caesar's prestige not to be able to hold them in allegiance.

21. longius: too far. prōspiciendum (esse): depending on statuēbat.

22. quid: acc. of degree limiting nocēre, do any harm. sibi: Caesar. rei publicae: the Roman commonwealth.

23. chōrus ventus: for the noun in apposition cf. such combinations as terra Gallia, mare Oceanus.

24. partem: acc. of duration of time. omnis temporis: equivalent to tōtius anni.

Page 127. 1. impeditis: equivalent to occupātis, pre-occupied, i.e. with the task of embarkation.

5. retrahī: sc. eum, and see note on Hās . . . fieri, 122, 11.

6. sī vim faciat: if he should offer violent resistance.

7. quī: equivalent to cum is. praesentis: sc. Caesaris.

10. III: the Roman cavalrymen.

12. omnēs: emphatic, without exception.

16. CHAPTER 8. prō tempore et prō rē: according to time and circumstances.

17-18. quīnque legiōnibus: only the 7th is mentioned by name in the narrative. parī numerō quem: the same number as; pār atque is more common, as in 23, 26. ad solis occāsum: the date, from various considerations, seems to have been about July 20th.

20. longius: quite a distance, i.e. to the northeast. When the fleet set sail the current was running southwest; a few hours later it shifted to the northeast.

22. aestūs commūtātiōnem: about daylight the tidal current turned southwest again.

23. eam partem insulae: i.e. the shore near Deal.

26. vectoriis . . . nāvigiis: with the heavily laden transports. nōn intermissō rēmigandī labōre: by unremitting work at the oars. See Introd. 38.

28. Accessum est, etc.: the entire fleet reached Britain; the verb is impersonal; nāvibus is abl. of means.

Page 128. 2. cum: although.

3-5. quae amplius octingentae, etc.: which were seen at one time, more than eight hundred in number. privātis: sc. nāvibus. The reference may be to vessels owned by traders and by such members of Caesar's staff as could afford it.

6.. loca: why not an abl. instead of an acc.?

9. CHAPTER 9. cohortibus decem: the employment of this phrase instead of unā legiōne may mean that the cohorts were drawn from several legions, perhaps two from each of the five legions.

11. eō minus veritus nāvibus: feeling the less anxiety for his ships.

12. mollī atque apertō: gently sloping and open. Cf. the description, apertō ac plānō, 112, 4.

Page 129. 1. flūmen: probably the Great Stour, above Wye. ex locō superiōre: with coepērunt. The northern bank was higher than the southern.

5. domesticī: i.e. with some neighboring tribe.

6. crēbris arboribus succisīs: a barricade of felled trees. Cf. 135, 25-28.

7. ex silvis: from the (vantage-ground of the) woods. rārī: in small groups.

8. prohibēbant: tried to prevent, the conative imperfect.

9-10. testūdine: see Introd. 34. aggere: the siege mole in this instance was doubtless of very simple construction. adiectō: having pushed forward.

12. prōsequī: sc. militēs as subject.

16. CHAPTER 10. in expeditiōnem: as a flying column. Cf. the adjective expeditus, lightly equipped. misit: Caesar himself, apparently, remained at the camp of the night before, in which case he would naturally keep with him a detachment of troops.

17. aliquantum itineris: some distance. Explain the cases.

18. extrēmī: may mean the rear of the enemy's forces or only the rear of our columns.

19. superiōre nocte: the night before.

21. sustinērent: held firm.

23. ex eō concursū: from the ensuing collision.

26. CHAPTER 11. in itinere resistere: lit. to resist upon the march, i.e. to retire on the defensive. The troops most likely returned to the field camp; see line 13, above.

28. āmissis . . . nāvibus: although, etc.

3. scribit, ut . . . instituat: writes Labienus to fit out. legiōnibus: abl. of means.

5. erat . . . labōris: involved much labor and trouble. Explain the genitives.

6. finā mūnitiōne: we may imagine that two lines of ramparts were constructed, running from corners of the camp down to the shore and inclosing a beach sufficient to accommodate the shattered vessels.

8. ad labōrem intermissis: being exempt from toil; ad, lit. with respect to.

11. quās ante: as before. eōdem: i.e. to the field camp.

14. administrandī: with belli only.

17. mīlia passuum octogintā: measured from Deal to the point where Caesar crossed the Thames. Huic . . . bella intercesserant: he had been continually at war.

21-22. CHAPTER 12. quōs nātōs (esse): subject of prōditum (esse); translate freely, who are said to be indigenous to the island, according to oral tradition. The Britons were in reality all mainly of Celtic origin.

24. Isdem nōminibus: two tribes at least, the Belgae and Atrebates, bore names also found on the continent.

Page 131. 3. aedificia: round, wooden, straw-thatched huts. Gallicis: sc. aedificiis.

4. tāleis ferreis: it has been suggested recently that these iron bars are to be identified "with certain iron objects found, sometimes with Celtic remains, in the south and west of Eng- land. These iron objects somewhat resemble unfinished sword blades. They are flat and slightly tapering blades with blunt, vertical edges and rude handles made by turning up the edges to meet one another at one end." See Classical Review, May, 1905, report of a paper by Mr. Reginald A. Smith.

5. ad certum pondus examinātis: of a fixed weight. prō nummō: as money.

6. plumbum album: tin from the mines of Cornwall had been known to Phoenician traders from early times. medi-terrāneis, maritimis: a mistake; the terms should be reversed in their application.

7. exigua: the great development of the iron mines was yet to come. aere: copper mining in Britain was not extensively carried on until the eighteenth century.

9. fāgum, abietem: the beech is certainly indigenous to Britain. The fir is perhaps to be identified with the silver fir, not indigenous and not introduced till modern times. (Stock.)

10. fās nōn putant: the reason for this aversion is unknown. haec: explain the gender. animī causā: for amusement.

11-12. Loca: the climate is the English idiom. frīgoribus: the cold. For the plural see note on frigora, 14, 2.

14. CHAPTER 13. alter angulus: approximately the North Foreland.

15. adpelluntur: direct their course, put in.

16. Inferior: sc. angulus; Land's End. The southern side of the island is given too much of a north-south direction in this description.

18. Alterum: sc. latus. vergit ad Hispāniam: ancient writers conceived of Spain as being much farther north than it is.

20-21. parī spatiō . . . atque: the distance across is the same as. spatiō is an ablative of quality, limiting Hibernia. In hōc mediō cursū: halfway across, inaccurate as applied to Mona, Anglesey. Caesar, however, may have confounded it with the Isle of Man.

22-23. complūrēs minōrēs: this may be a reminiscence of vague reports of the Hebrides. obiectae: sc. esse, to lie opposite, i.e. the west side.

24. nōn nulli: Greek writers, probably.

26. nisi: except that, or but. ex aquā: i.e. by means of the clepsydra, water clock.

28. ut fert opiniō: according to the opinion. Cf. cōnsuetūdō ferret, 117, 18. illōrum: the nōn nulli of 24.

Page 132. 1-2. Tertium: sc. latus. ſiūs: sc. lateris. angulus alter: this must be identical with alter angulus, 131, 14.

6. CHAPTER 14. his: the Britons.

8. cōnsuetūdine: manner of life.

9. plērique: as a rule. frūmenta nōn serunt: in contrast to the Britons of Kent. See 117, 7, 13.

10. sunt vestiti: clothe themselves.

12-13. horribiliōrēs sunt aspectū: present a more fearful appearance. capillō, parte: abls. of quality; translate, wear their hair long and shave the entire body.

16-17. quī: for ei quī. eōrum liberī habentur: are considered as the children of those. quō: equivalent to ad quōs.

18. CHAPTER 15. Equitēs, etc.: the narrative of Chapter 11 is here resumed. For the method of fighting from chariots see 118, 7 ff. For the combination of cavalry and chariots see 112, 5-7 and 118, 5-6.

20. partibus: equivalent to locis.

23. intermissō spatiō: after some time.

26. conlocāti: predicate adjective.

Page 133. 1. atque his primis: and the first cohorts at that. The first cohort of a legion contained the best soldiers.

2. cum: although, i.e. notwithstanding the very narrow interval separating the two cohorts.

3. novō: this word seems to show that these troops had not participated in the first expedition.

4. perrūperunt: sc. hostēs as subject.

7. CHAPTER 16. Tōtō hōc in genere pūgnae: throughout a battle of this kind.

8. dīmicārētur: impersonal. nostrōs: the legionaries.

10. neque ab signis discēdere audērent: i.e. did not dare to break up into small detachments, as would have been necessary to pursue the small detachments of the enemy, rāri, 17. The Roman infantry was equipped and trained for fighting in large bodies and in close array.

12. illī: the enemy.

13. cōderent: would give way, repeated action; so also the pluperfect after cum, when (ever), and the two imperfects following.

14. disparī proeliō: in an unequal battle; the Roman cavalry was at a disadvantage when thus opposed to the dismounted charioteers. The latter were also doubtless supported by their cavalry, for which see Bk. IV, Chapter 33.

15-16. ratiō: the manner, the terms. cōdentibus et Insequentibus: sc. nostrīs. Translate, the terms of a cavalry engagement brought the same danger to our cavalry in retreat as when in pursuit. When the Roman cavalry followed up the Britons it met with the difficulties described in the preceding sentence; in retreat it was pursued and overtaken by the British cavalry and chariots.

17-18. Accēdēbat hūc, ut numquam . . . proeliārentur: there was the additional fact that, etc., or then, too, they never fought. stationēs: detachments, of reserves.

19. aliōs alīf deinceps exciperent: would succeed one another in turn.

26-27. CHAPTER 17. sic utī . . . nōn absisterent: lit. so that they (the enemy) did not refrain from the standards and legions; freely, and even advanced up to the standards and legions.

Page 134. 1. quoad: until. For the indicatives following see A. 554 (328); B. 293, III; G. 571; H. 603, II; H-B. 550. subsidiō: explain the case.

4. Ex hāc fugā: after this rout.

6-7. summīs copiis: in full force.

8. CHAPTER 18. cōnsiliō eōrum: the British plan is explained in Chapter 19.

9-10. ūnō locō: the place of crossing cannot be determined with certainty from the data afforded here. hōc: sc. locō, and even here with difficulty. Cf. atque his primis, 133, 1.

16. eā: such.

17. militēs: i.e. the infantry. cum: although.

19. -que: but.

21. CHAPTER 19. suprā: see 5-7, above.

22. contentiōnis: i.e. effective resistance in full force. ampliōribus: the greater part of.

28. liberius: with too little caution.

Page 135. 1. viis, sēmitis: abls. of the way by which.

3. hōc metū: from fear of this. vagārī: a subject accusative is to be supplied from his.

4-7. Relinquēbātur: the substantive ut clause is subject. Translate, the only thing left Caesar was not to permit (the cavalry) to depart too far from the column of legions, and to inflict only so much injury on the enemy, etc. discēdī: impersonal. nocērētur: impersonal, lit. that only so much injury should be done to the enemy. in labōre atque itinere: in the course of laborious marching, a case of hendiadys.

10. CHAPTER 20. fidem secūtus: see Vocabulary, fidēs.

12. ipse: while he himself.

13. deditūrōs: sc. sē as subject.

15. Cassivellaunī: at the hands of Cassivellaunus.

16. quī praesit: to rule over them. The verb is used absolutely. What case might it govern? imperium obtineat: to hold independent power, added to emphasize their release from allegiance to Cassivellaunus. His imperat: demands of them.

19. ad numerum: to the required number.

20-21. CHAPTER 21. dēfēnsis: i.e. against Cassivellaunus.

omni iniuriā: the soldiers were forbidden to plunder. prohibitis: having been secured.

23. eō locō: the place where the embassies met Caesar. oppidum: possibly Roman Verulamium, modern St. Albans.

25. autem: in the sense of now, in a parenthetical statement.

Page 136. 9. CHAPTER 22. quibus regiōnibus: for cui, referring to Cantium.

11. castra nāvālia: see 130, 5-7.

17. Commium: see 110, 6 ff., and 114, 25 ff.

19. hiemāre in continentī: the army would of course winter in Gaul. Caesar himself expected to go to Italy as usual. repentinōs mōtūs: i.e. uprisings that might occur. Cf. 125, 19-20.

21-22. quid vectigālis: how much tribute. penderet: was to pay. Explain the mood. As no force was left in Britain to exact this tribute, it was never paid.

26. CHAPTER 23. nāvēs refectās: see Chapter 11.

3. dēsiderārētur: was missing, was lost.

4-5. priōris: the first of the two mentioned in 136, 28. postea: i.e. after the storm had damaged the fleet; see 130, 3-4.

6. faciendās cūrāverat: had caused to be built; see note on reficiendās cūrent, 122, 5. locum: destination.

10-11. angustius: more closely, than on the first trip. primā lūce: it was about September 21st.

ASSIGNMENT OF WINTER QUARTERS, 24-25.

13. CHAPTER 24. conciliō: see note on concilia, 123, 20.

14-15. frūmentum . . . angustius prōvenerat: there was a shortage in the grain crop. siccitātēs: plural of an abstract noun, referring to different places, as in 120, 21.

17-18. ūnam dūcendam dedit: gave one to Caius Fabius to conduct.

19. Q. Cicerōni: brother of the orator, Marcus Cicero. Quintus had joined Caesar at the beginning of this year's campaign in the capacity of légātus.

23. Ūnam legiōnem, quam proximē cōscripserat: these words may mean that a new legion had been levied in the winter of 55-54, or they may refer to one of the two legions levied in 57. See 48, 18. The location of the various quarters is given definitely, after Napoleon, though the data are really insufficient to make certain of the sites. trāns: from the standpoint of Rome, i.e. north of the Po.

24. cohortēs quinque: these five cohorts, apparently, are the remnants of a legion; the other five may have been used to repair losses in other legions, or they may have fallen in battle. in Eburōnēs: at a place called Atuatuca, as we learn from Bk. VI.

Page 138. 7. mīlibus passuum centum continēbantur: the exact meaning of these words is difficult to determine. The explanation of a circle with a radius of one hundred miles is plausible.

8-9. quoad . . . cōgnōvisset: until he should know; for the mood see A. 553 (328); B. 293, III, 2; G. 572; H. 603, II; H-B. 507, 5.

10. CHAPTER 25. summō locō nātus: a man of noble birth.

13. in omnibus bellis: i.e. in all of Caesar's Gallic campaigns hitherto. singulārī ōius operā fuerat ūsus: had found his services of unusual value. fuerat: instead of erat, to express action prior to that of restituērat.

14-15. hunc: Tasgetius. inimicī: personal enemies. multis auctōribus: with the sanction of many citizens, i.e. adherents of the anti-Roman party in the state, who naturally opposed a king placed over them by Caesar.

17. ad plūrēs pertinēbat: lit. it extended to many, better many were involved in the affair.

20-21. comprehēnsōs ad sē mittere: to arrest and send to him.

23. perventum (esse): impersonal, they had arrived.

DEFEAT OF SABINUS AND COTTA, 26-37.

24. CHAPTER 26. Diēbus circiter quīndecim, etc.: about fifteen days after their arrival. How lit.? Cf. 108, 1. The legions probably reached winter quarters toward the end of October.

25. initium ortum est: somewhat pleonastic, for initium factum est.

Page 139. 1-2. cum: although. finēs: boundaries, frontier. Sabinō . . . praestō fuissent: had come to meet Sabinus and Cotta.

3. Indūtiomāri: see Chapter 3 ff.

8. dēsperātā rē: despairing of success.

9-10. conclāmāvērunt: implying a request, hence the clause ut aliqui . . . prōdīret. habēre sēsē, quae . . . vellent: they had certain things to say of mutual interest.

18-19. CHAPTER 27. plūrimū dēbēre: was deeply indebted.

20. ei: what pronoun should we expect instead of the demonstrative?

22. obsidum numerō missōs: though sent as hostages.

23-24. id, quod fēcerit dē oppugnātiōne castrōrum: translate simply, the attack on the camp, object of fēcisse.

25. imperia: his authority; explain the use of the plural.

27. Civitātī porrō: now in the case of the state; explain the dative.

Page 140. 5. hībernīs oppugnandīs: gerundive construction, dative of purpose.

7. Gallōs: subject of potuisse, but at the same time assigns a reason, since they were Gauls.

10. pietāte: loyalty, patriotism.

13. conductam: hired, mercenary.

14. Ipsōrum esse cōsiliū, velintne: it rests with the Romans themselves to consider whether they wish, lit. the consideration is their own, etc.

18. Illud : this, explained by the infinitive clause, sē . . . datūrum (esse).

19-20. Quod : a relative. Translate the clause, in doing so.

Page 141. 1. CHAPTER 28. facere : equivalent to inferre. vix erat crēdendum : it was hardly credible.

2. eōs : those participating in the council of war.

6. discēdendum (esse) : impersonal, they must not leave.

8. rem : the fact, explained by the quod clause. testimōniō : dat. of purpose or end, this fact served as a proof, that, etc.

12. esse : for the mood see A. 586 (338); B. 315, 2; G. 651, R. 1; H. 642, 2; H-B. 591, a.

13. auctōre hoste : abl. absolute, by the advice of an enemy.

14-15. CHAPTER 29. cum : when. convēnissent : should have assembled.

19. fuisse captūrōs (esse) : would have adopted, representing cēpissent of direct discourse.

20. nostrī : observe the form the pronoun takes as an objective genitive.

21. auctōrem : as an adviser, for advice. rem : the actual facts.

23. Ariovisti mortem : Ariovistus, it will be remembered, escaped after the battle in 58. See 46, 14-15. The time of his death is not known.

26. hōc : of this, object of persuādēret.

28. in utramque partem : in either event. nihil dūrius : no unusual difficulty.

Page 142. 4. habēre : offer. For mood see reference on esse, 141, 12.

7. CHAPTER 30. in utramque partem : pro and con.

8. primis ordinibus : i.e. the centurions of the first rank. ācrit̄ resisterēt̄ur : strong opposition was offered.

9. et id : and that too. Cf. atque id, 122, 8, and note.

10-11. is, quī . . . terrear : the man to be terrified.

13. sī per tē liceat : if you would let them, were it not for you.

15. nōn intereant : instead of perishing.

17. CHAPTER 31. Cōnsurgitur : impersonal, the council breaks up. comprehendunt : grasp by the hand. utrumque : i.e. Sabinus and Cotta.

20. sī modo : if only, provided. ūnum : one thing, the same course.

22-23. dat manūs : gives in; metaphor from the battlefield, the signal of submission made by a soldier asking for quarter.

25. cum sua, etc. : each soldier looking through his belongings, to see what he could take with him, etc.

27-28. Omnia excōgitantur, etc. : reasons of every sort are thought of, why they may not remain without danger, etc.

Page 143. 2-4. ut quibus esset persuāsum : for ut et quibus, etc., as men convinced, A. 535, e, N. 1 (320, e, N. 1); B. 283, 3, a; G. 626, N. 1; H. 592, 1; H-B. 523, b.

6. CHAPTER 32. sēnsērunt : used absolutely, followed by dē and an ablative, found out about.

7. ā : away, off.

12. nostris : dat. after iniquissimō, very unfavorable to our troops.

14. CHAPTER 33. quī : equivalent to cum is, since he.

15. trepidāre, etc. : historical infinitives. dispōnere : tried to form in order of battle. haec tamen : sc. faciēbat, and cf. et id, 142, 9.

16. ut : for ita ut. quod : a thing which.

17. in ipsō negōtiō : cf. English on the spur of the moment.

18. quī : as in 14.

23. sē : referring to the subject of possent, Sabinus and Cotta.

25. prōnūntiārī : the command to be given.

26. orbem : see Introd. 33.

28. incommodē cecidit : had an unfortunate result.

Page 144. 2. id : i.e. the formation of the orbis.

3. quod fieri necesse erat : as was inevitable.

4. quaeque : for et eu quae.

8. CHAPTER 34. tōtā aciē : all along the line. prōnūntiārī : as in 143, 25.

9. illōrum : predicate gen. of possession.

11. existimārent : let them consider, representing an imperative of direct discourse.

12. duce : Sabinus. fortūnā : personified, hence the preposition.

14. prōcurrerat : i.e. from the orbis. Observe the pluperfect and imperfect of repeated action.

17. et : but. quam : whatever.

19. nihil eis nocērī posse : that no harm could be done them; eis refers to the Eburones. sē recipientēs : i.e. the Romans.

21. CHAPTER 35. cum : whenever.

23. eam partem : referring apparently to the charging cohort, which would lose the protection of the orbis.

25. erant progressī : explain the number of the verb.

26. quī cesserant : only those of the enemy immediately in front of the cohort would fall back. proximī : those of the enemy on the left and right of the charging cohort.

27. locum : their place, in the orbis.

28. locus : opportunity.

Page 145. 1. Tamen : the concessive idea lies in cōnflctātī and acceptīs, though afflicted, etc.

5. ipsis : for the case with indignum see A. 418, b (245, a, 1); B. 226, 2; G. 397, 2; H. 481; H-B. 442. esset : explain the mood.

6-7. T. Balventiō : dat. of reference instead of a possessive genitive; best translated as if subject of trāicitur. primum pīlum dūxerat : see Introd. 15. Possibly Balvenitus was now serving as ēvocātus, Introd. 7.

9. ēiusdem ordinis : observe the gen. of quality used as an attributive without the intervention of an appositive.

10. dum . . . subvenit : while attempting to rescue.

18. CHAPTER 36. impetrārī : sc. as subject id, antecedent of quod. Cf. what Ambiorix said before, 139, 25-26.

19-20. ipsi vērō, etc.: to Sabinus at any rate no harm shall be done. inque eam rem, etc.: and he pledges his word thereto.

21. Ille: Sabinus. cum . . . communicat: informs, or confers with, implying also and requests, and so followed by an ut clause. sī videātur: if it seems best.

23. impetrārī: impersonal, that the request can be gained.

24. ad armātum hostem: for Cotta's attitude cf. 141, 12-13.

26. CHAPTER 37. quōs: for eōs quōs.

7. victōriam conclāmant: raise the cry of "victory."

17. III: those Roman soldiers who made their way into the camp.

SIEGE OF CICERO'S CAMP, 38-53.

27. CHAPTER 38. neque noctem . . . intermittit: without stopping night or day. The march began that very night.

3. sui liberandī . . . ulciscendī: dependent on occāsiōnem.

4. iniūriis: see 69, 15 ff.

7. nihil esse negōti . . . legiōnēm . . . interfici: there would be (lit. was) no difficulty in suddenly surprising and destroying the legion, etc. The subject of esse is the infinitive clause following.

12. CHAPTER 39. sub imperiō: see Introd. 65. eōrum: the Nervii.

14-15. Huic quoque: in his case also, as in the case of Sabinus and Cotta, 139, 4. The dative is governed by accidit. quod: which, as.

16. lignātiōnis mūnitiōnisque causā: to get timber for the fortifications.

18. māgnā manū: with oppugnāre incipiunt.

21. Aegrē . . . sustentātur: with difficulty did the troops hold their own that day. diēs is here made the subject. How lit.? Cf. the impersonal construction in aegrē eō diē sustentātum est, 51, 26.

23. adepti: if they should win.

25-26. CHAPTER 40. ad Caesarem: Caesar was at Samarbriva. pertulissent: should deliver, with nūntiū to be understood as subject, litterās as object. Explain the subjunctive.

27. missi: those sent, the couriers.

28. turres: these towers were erected on the rampart. The work was not finished this first night.

Page 148. 2. resistitur: resistance is made.

4. ad . . . intermittitur: is exempt from. Cf. 130, 8.

7. praeustae: i.e. charred to a hard point. mūrālium pilōrum: see Introd. 19.

8. contabulantur, etc.: the towers were divided by floors into several stories. Each floor was furnished with breastworks, lōricae, of hurdles, above which rose at intervals the pinnacles, pinnae, also of hurdles, intended to protect the soldiers as they hurled their missiles through the intervening spaces.

9. cum: although.

11-12. ut . . . cōgerētur: a clause of result.

14. CHAPTER 41. aditum: opportunity, claim.

19-20. fidei faciundae causā: to inspire confidence, to give color to their story. Ambiorix would not have been likely to leave his own country unless he had destroyed the Roman force quartered there. Furthermore, as he had hitherto appeared friendly, his presence now tended to confirm the story of a general revolt. Eōs: Cicero and his men.

22. hōc esse animō: are so disposed.

23-24. hanc cōnsuetudinē: this practice, of quartering Roman troops in Gallic territory. per sē: so far as they are concerned. incolumibus: predicate dative in agreement with illis.

28. accipere, etc.: cf. Cotta's words, 145, 24.

4-5. CHAPTER 42. hāc spēs: the hope of drawing Cicero into an ambushade. pedum decem: i.e. in height; pedum quīndecim, in width.

7-8. nūllā cōpiā: abl. absolute, having no supply.

9. caespitēs: for the rampart.

13. turrēs: inovable towers are meant. ad altitudinem: suitable to the height of the Roman rampart, i.e. high enough to hurl missiles from them into the Roman camp.

17-18. CHAPTER 43. glandēs: possibly these clay balls were mixed with bits of coal found in the vicinity. fervefacta iacula: probably darts with some inflammable material attached.

18. casās: the huts of the winter quarters, Introd. 30.

6. ea: equivalent to tālis. ut: separated from its verbs, dēcēderet, etc., by an intervening concessive clause, cum . . . intellegerent.

12. dēmigrandī causā: to abandon his post.

14. tum ācerimē: now more spiritedly than ever.

17-18. ut . . . interficerētur: appositive clause explaining eventum. ut (18): as, for.

20. turrī: one of the Gallic towers.

25. dēturbātī (sunt): sc. hostēs as subject.

28. CHAPTER 44. prīmīs ōrdinibus: see Introd. 15.

Page 151. 2. uter alterī anteferrētur: which should be given preference over the other, indirect question depending on contrōversiās. locō: rank.

5. locum: chance, opportunity.

8. inrumpit: makes an attack. Nō . . . quidem: not . . . either.

12-13. ex multitudine: with prōcurrentem. quō . . .

exanimātō, hunc . . . prōtegunt: quem . . . exanimātum prōtegunt might have been written. The construction adopted serves better to contrast the prostrate comrade, hunc, and the lone enemy, illum.

15. Pullōnī: dat. of reference instead of possessive gen.

16. Āvertit, etc.: the sword was worn at the right side.

17. cōnantī: when he attempts. See note on Pullōnī, 15.
impeditum: sc. eum.

19. labōrantī: in his plight.

23. in locum dēiectus Inferiōrem: having stumbled into a hole.

28. versāvit: dealt with; how lit.? inimicus: though a rival.

29. anteferendus: deserving of preference.

Page 152. 3. CHAPTER 45. rēs . . . pervēnerat: the defenders had been reduced to a few.

4. litterae: dispatches, plural, but singular in 10.

5. quōrum: referring to nūntiū only, as litterae nūntiūque are equivalent to nūntiū cum litteris.

6. ūnus: a single, one only. intus: for in hibernis.

7. ā primā obsidiōne: at the beginning of the siege.

8. suamque ei fidem praestiterat: had given him evidence of his trustworthiness.

11. ille: the slave. in iaculō inligātās: possibly the dispatch was concealed in the spear shaft, hollowed out to receive it. Gallus: as he was a Gaul.

15. CHAPTER 46. M. Crassum: see 137, 21. Crassus's legion was to relieve that of Trebonius quartered near Samarobriva, which Caesar took with him.

19. ut . . . addūcat: to lead, explaining Alterum (nūntium). sibi: i.e. Caesar.

20. rei publicae commodō: in accordance with the interests of the state, or simply, advantageously. As Labienus occupied an important and dangerous post near the Treveri, and could best judge the situation himself, he was allowed to act at his own discretion.

22. veniat: to come. Reliquam partem: the legions with Roscius and Plancus. See 137, 19, and 138, 18.

23. equitēs: possibly a detachment of cavalry was kept in hand during the winter. See Introd. 6.

Page 153. 1. CHAPTER 47. Crassum . . . praeficit: learning of Crassus's approach from the arrival of his advance guard, Caesar seems to have started at once, leaving orders for Crassus to assume command at Samarobriua.

2. impedimenta: each legion had its own baggage train in winter quarters. Extra munitions of war may have been included in the baggage at Samarobriua. litterās publicās: official records.

5. nōn ita multum morātus: without losing much time.

VOCABULARY.

In the case of compounds the component parts are simply spaced—e.g., ab-dūcō—when the composition is obvious. In other cases the etymology is given in square brackets [], the meaning of such parts being added as are not found elsewhere in the Vocabulary.

The English pronunciation of each proper name is given in parenthesis, with the following vowel values. Other phonetic devices are self-explanatory. Unstressed vowels vary somewhat, and are usually left unmarked, as the student will have no difficulty in adjusting their pronunciation to the accompanying sounds.
